THE VALLEY of the GIANTS

By PETER B. KYNE

Author of "Cappy Ricks"

Copyright by Peter B. Kyne

"GOD HELP YOU"

Synopsis.—Pioneer in the Carlisle redwood country, Bryce Cardigan arrives at forty-seven, in the leading timber town of Carlisle, owner of mills, steamships, a fleet of schooners, a score of square miles of timber and considerable money. He is a widower and has a daughter Cardigan. At fourteen Bryce had left his father's farm to become a lumberjack, a logger and finally to be a river pilot. Together with Jim Farley of the United States Secret Service Cardigan and Bryce had run down the gang of timber thieves and their secret mill, and Bryce is full of faith in Cardigan's ability to succeed in business as he has succeeded in everything he undertakes. He goes to dinner at Fernandez's on Sixth street, where he meets Ruth Fernandez, the young woman with fiery hair he knew in Bryce knew Jaime Fernandez, Ruth's father, in the redwoods, and because of Fernandez' refusal to sell the last tree on Fernandez Point to Bryce, the two men had quarreled. Bryce had left the Fernandez home with his self-respect shattered, and a big debt, Bryce Cardigan, and a big debt, Bryce Cardigan, and a big debt, Bryce Cardigan