REAL FACTS STRANGER THAN WEIRDEST FICTION STORIES

Imagination of the Most Gifted Novelist Outdone by Life's Real Romances—No One Could Have Imagined or Written Such a Stupendous Tragedy as the War the World Has Just Gone Through.

New York.—Among the bright-eyed and magazine on the news stands is one whose name announces that it is devoted to true stories, and a subtitle calls attention to the good old theorem that "truth is stranger than fiction." Truth in this case makes the commonplace of trying to appear as much like fiction as possible. But it is not in the realm of imagination that one would look first for the verification of our ancient adage that truth is stranger than fiction. The news of the world as it is turned out day by day is to a very large extent concerned with the strange and unusual without even such a stupendous tragedy through. It is a case where the plain facts have a strangeness of their own which is not the least important thing looking into the future. Old Bernardi, the German military writer, has declared in mind, knew that war with France and Russia would surprise the world as a whole had slowly been prepared through years for a final explosion clash. But no one foresaw a conflict in which the whole world would be involved, a war which would leave millions of lives and money piling into the hundreds of billions of dollars.

What Stranger Than This?

Not only the war as a whole is itself, but remembered phases and incidents of the war possess the quality of the imagination of the men who wrote before America's part in the war. The war forces an almost unbelievable episode. Want never would have surprised the side even ago, to have told of an American army of 2,000,000 men landing over the old battlefields of Northern France and Belgium!

What brilliant fictionist could have depicted the results of the war? The consecration of crushed nations of Europe. The break-up of old empires? What revolutionary genius of fiction could have fancied a Constitution under the Bolsheviki for nearly three years? What novelist would have given us the unsolved mystery of the Czar of Russia and Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany?

The true stories of the heroic deeds of the war, the personal experiences and single incidents, are in many cases too strange and unreal to have passed the censorship of the minds of fiction. A gun with a range of seventy-five miles drops a shell into a Paris street at the moment it is crowded for good Friday service. No wonder that the days the world would not believe that a thing had happened before. The first new of gas by the Germans against the allies in the Ypres sector was disbelieved that the world could not bring itself to believe that great effort. The first airplane, the first submarine attack on a passenger steamer, the first use of poison gas—all that the German troops were mobilizing in Belgium before the war all the power of thinking in a supposedly civilized world which has been going through the days since August, 1914, will have no reason to doubt that the truth is stranger than fiction.

Outdone Jules Verne.

For years the imaginative story of Jules Verne, the submarine boat, the through her compartments as the doors were opened between her sections and men climbed in the part of the ship that stood above the water —and knowing that any part of the ship was above the water line could be for nearly thirty hours the crew had to live without drinking water, breathing atmosphere poisoned with chlorine gas and with the sea all about them.

They ripped a hole in the steel plates of the vessel put a rod about on a pipe and waved their signal until they were seen. Then such disciplined crowding for business by giving praise to the one who was first in the crew, they were rescued by steamship captains and a heroic engineer who brought them to port. Every ship that comes into the port brings some story, perhaps more than a page among, that matches those of Jules Verne or Conan Doyle. Truth, but fiction, is the story of Jacob Cohen,

INTERESTS OF U.S. ARE EXCLUDED BY GREAT BRITAIN

It Reveals England Had Completed Plans to Exclude Them From Participation in Resources of Mandatory Territory Throughout World.

Western Newspaper Union News Service

Washington.—Secretary Bainbridge Colby's note to Great Britain on Mesopotamia, made public, reveals that England has completed plans to exclude the United States from any participation whatsoever in the resources of all mandatory territory throughout the world on the ground that this Government is not a member of the League of Nations. Protesting that the United States, as a contributor to the success of the war, "can not be debarred from the free development of its consequences," Secretary Colby, in his note, declares "that the principle mandate forms," particularly those of Mesopotamia, Palestine and Syria, which have been kept secret, "be communicated to this Government for its consideration before their submission to the council of the League of Nations." In the note, which is regarded as the most important sent out by the state department since the armistice was signed, Secretary Colby charges that Great Britain is guilty of flagrant disregard of its obligations.

Mr. Colby points out that "it would be manifestly unjust if this Government should be given to the drafts of mandatory forms after the decisions had been put into the council, in order that the other powers might have the right to consider their terms in relation to the principles which they had announced as the basis and the respective interests of the United States and its associates, to be determined, concerned so affected."

The first of many of the great operas which the Metropolitan will give in the works of fiction not so great, are based on the theme of the war, the conflict between democracy, or some other crime. Accordingly, the first opera announced by the jewels of the Diamond Horseshoe will be Giordano's "Madame Sans-Gene."

Many of the hundred or so members in this city every year fre-quently there are a few who get before the police step in, are just as many more who escape the attention of Thomas Hardy—although Hardy could his cause in the end—and who hasn't read the stories the newspapers print into milldom?

Stories of Heroism.

True stories of heroism? There was the deputy sheriff who was shot and killed in Kansas who had been kicked out of the Democratic party for his work in the war department, and at the risk of his life rounded up a family of draft dodgers living in the Chinese embassy at Washington—one of the pages of fiction in this city? Or the Dallas ventriloquist who drops a shell into a Paris street at the moment it is crowded for Good Friday service. No wonder that the days the world would not believe that a thing had happened before. The first new of gas by the Germans against the allies in the Ypres sector was disbelieved that the world could not bring itself to believe that great effort. The first airplane, the first submarine attack on a passenger steamer, the first use of poison gas—all that the German troops were mobilizing in Belgium before the war all the power of thinking in a supposedly civilized world which has been going through the days since August, 1914, will have no reason to doubt that the truth is stranger than fiction.

Outdone Jules Verne.

For years the imaginative story of Jules Verne, the submarine boat, the "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," was a favorite among readers and talkers who wished to mention the supernatural and the fantastically imaginative. Yet the vividness of that story seemed nothing so grotesque and certainly nothing so true as that tale of undersea adventure and horror brought into this port and Philadelphia from off the Japanese coast by the survivors of the Japanese steamer Kasuga Maru.

Doubled in a practice crash dive, the submarine was filled by that time number so that her stern stood out of the water and her bow was driven through her compartments as the doors were opened between them, and men climbed in the part of the ship that stood above the water —and knowing that any part of the ship was above the water line could be for nearly thirty hours the crew had to live without drinking water, breathing atmosphere poisoned with chlorine gas and with the sea all about them.

Government Authorities Worried About Spread of Strange Propaganda Doctrine.

Tokio.—Japan's new religion Omoto-kyo, founded by a peasant woman, Nao Deguchi, is declared by the police to be a seditious and even Bolshevist movement. Nao Deguchi is in prison, but her daughter, Sumiko, is said to have control of the sect's funds, the story of Sumiko Deguchi, who has been called the "Mad Russian Country," and the "Roman Student," who sells the religion by means of money to country, everywhere deemed an undesirable and turned out by the immigration authorities, and by one country to go to, he sails from port to port, a citizen of Nagoya's description, perhaps changing ships several times, but always traveling the seas. It is time for him to arrive back at another ancient refuge that might be stranger than fiction. The news of the world as it is turned out day by day is to a very large extent concerned with the strange and unusual without even such a stupendous tragedy through. It is a case where the plain facts have a strangeness of their own which is not the least important thing looking into the future. NO WONDER TABLE GROANED

According to This Description, the Board Was Liberally Spread Sixty Years Ago.

Some one has come up to a letter written by a young married woman of Cleveland to a girl friend in Nova Scotia, 1858. Here is an extract which describes the Thanksgiving day feast:

"We were all at mother's for dinner—children and grandchildren, 28 in all. I wish you could have seen the table! It was loaded down. Our server saw bigger turkeys—father furnished five for the occasion. He carved one and John carved the other. Then there was mashed potatoes and squash, and carrots, and beets, and pickles, and the best cranberry sauce, and gravy that made your mouth water. There were two kinds of preserves—neither gets the first prize at the county fair—and there was quince jelly and strawberry jam. Then there were pies and cake to drink, and for the wishup there was mince pie and pumpkin pie and layer cake and pound cake, and a plum pudding with a brandy sauce! The pudding was the only thing mother had to help in—everything else was on the table—can you imagine it! We had a splendid time and didn't any of us get up till early candle light. Our little Mary Ann got up with the roosters, and I was quite ashamed of her. I didn't feel quite myself, but I made the best of it."

The particular stench of road wax was especially severe when put on by a Frenchman. If such a thing were possible, it was worse than the very worst and heaviest motor car smell concerning it. HOW DOCTORS TREAT COLDS AND THE FLU

First Step in Treatment Is a Brisk Purgative With Calomel, Followed and Refined Calomel Tablets that are Noiseless, Safe and Sure.

Doctors have found by experience that no medicine for colds and la grippe can be depended upon to relieve the patient so promptly and surely as calomel, when given in the right way. The first step in the treatment is the new, noiseless calomel tablets, Calotabs, which are free from the sickening and weakening effects of the old blue mass calomel. Doctors also point out that a cold or the flu, if not checked in a long way will run a definite course, and one of the most important factors in avoiding pneumonia and other serious complications is to keep the bowels clean and active.

One Calotab with a swallow of water—that's all. No taste to mind, no interference with your eating, please you or work. Next morning your cold has vanished, your liver is active, your bowels are clean and you are feeling fine, with no "dope" effects. Calotabs are sold only in original sealed packages at 30c per five cents. Your money will be cheerfully refunded if you do not find them delightful.—(Adv.)

FROM FORTY-FIVE TO SIXTY

A Word of Help to Women of Middle Age From Mrs. Raney.

Morse, Texas.—"When I was 45 years old Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me by a friend. I was passing through the Change of Life and was a nervous wreck. I had a family of small children to look after. My daughter and neighbors thought I could not live. I occasionally use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it always does me good."—Mrs. Alice Raney.

Millions for a New Stomach

One of the greatest American millionaires said to his physician, "A million dollars, Doctor, spot cash and no grumbling, for a new stomach." and then the sick man groaned and turned away. All his millions could not buy him happy or contented, for happiness largely depends upon digestion. Without health where does happiness come in? After all the stomach plays a great part in everyday life. Without a healthy stomach and good digestion the blood is thin, watery and poor, our nerves become weak and irritable, our brain gets tired and dull, our memory fails, our muscles become flabby, our complexion is spoiled, we lose appetite, we lose sleep, we lose the bowels in order and strengthening the system against the germs of disease.

Dr. Pierce, of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y., years ago combined Golden Seal, Stone root, Queen's root, Black Cohosh, Cascara and Pepsin, and then by experimenting and scientific methods, discovered certain proportions of these ingredients that would produce the most wonderful results in the cure of stomach troubles, indigestion, dyspepsia, biliousness, constipation, sick headache, etc. He named this combination Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. This discovery gives no false stimulation but acts naturally and gently on the entire system. It helps digestion and the assimilation of such elements in the food as are required for the blood. It gives to the blood the full measure of the nutrition it should receive. For over fifty years it has enjoyed the confidence of the American public. Try it now!

HOW DOCTORS TREAT COLDS AND THE FLU

First Step in Treatment Is a Brisk Purgative With Calomel, Followed and Refined Calomel Tablets that are Noiseless, Safe and Sure.

Doctors have found by experience that no medicine for colds and la grippe can be depended upon to relieve the patient so promptly and surely as calomel, when given in the right way. The first step in the treatment is the new, noiseless calomel tablets, Calotabs, which are free from the sickening and weakening effects of the old blue mass calomel. Doctors also point out that a cold or the flu, if not checked in a long way will run a definite course, and one of the most important factors in avoiding pneumonia and other serious complications is to keep the bowels clean and active.

One Calotab with a swallow of water—that's all. No taste to mind, no interference with your eating, please you or work. Next morning your cold has vanished, your liver is active, your bowels are clean and you are feeling fine, with no "dope" effects. Calotabs are sold only in original sealed packages at 30c per five cents. Your money will be cheerfully refunded if you do not find them delightful.—(Adv.)

Poor Results.

The trouble with mixing the little town together. They called at sister's new house, and agreed to share the proceeds.

As one waited at the gate of a dreadful flower-embowered cottage his hopes ran high. Surely the person who dwelt in this peaceful spot must be kindly.

"Get anything?" he whispered eagerly, as his pal came down the path.

"No, mate" was the reply.

"Didn't you tell 'er that you were starving?"

"Yes, and all she did was to offer me some flowers to put on their graves."

NEWS CULLINGS From Kentucky

Williamstown.—George Epperson, a farmer, of Kinder, was burned to death when his home was destroyed by fire. His body was found scorched in the ruins of his home.

Lexington.—Robert Harvey was shot and killed here. Burt Tudor, who was arrested charged with the killing, stated Harvey had shown attentions to his wife.

Lancaster.—The home of Samuel Hurt, at Point Leavell, five miles east of here, burned, with all the contents, the family being away from home. The cause of the fire is unknown. Loss $2,000 with no insurance.

Pikeville.—A. J. Potter, chief of police and deputy sheriff, was shot and killed by Ed Hall, a fugitive from justice. Hall escaped and has not been apprehended.

Louisville.—A jury in Judge Field's court acquitted Jessie T. Scamp of murder for $700 against William Culbertson. Culbertson shot Scamp in the face during the home of Mrs. Henry Best. It is charged Scamp was intimate with Best, placed a pistol against his side and fired. The wounded man was taken to a Covington hospital, where he died from the effects of the shot. It is said the bullet had pierced his intestines three times.

Louisville.—Negligence on the part of Stella Davis in alighting from a car recently resulted in personal injury to her and was not the fault of the company, according to a verdict returned by the jury in two minutes by the Jefferson Circuit Court. Miss Davis was attempting to alight from the car when it started with a jerk, throwing her to the ground, causing the injuries complained of.

Whitesburg.—The Dawsonian Oil Co. organized at Ashland, Ky., with $25,000 capital, will launch another new coal operation in the Big Elkhorn coal fields north of here, where there are large deposits of high grade coal. Nearly all of these have started operations.

Louisville.—Mere pay for actual teachers is imperative," George Colvin, superintendent of schools, told Gordon Frankfort, declared in addressing the Louisville Rotary club at the Seelbach hotel. "Teachers are the first that proper training of the young. Yet they are the only ones who are given wards at uniform on its future, no matter what the views which the wardsprys were to entertain about the importance of the goddess and finally sent pupils to the high school, where they were given a fine polish.

Louisville.—Mrs. Ida Rosata Cox, granted grand agricultural fruitcake and the aurices at harvest time in the Kentucky mountains, the people marched in great processions around the capitol, with the fruit of the land upon the growing crops. In the cities they celebrated with great festivals and carnivals, offering sacrifices of honey and grain. Like the Jewish celebrations the ceremony lasted for several days, terminating in feasting and games.

System Counts.

The difference between a confirmed drunkard who is always on the job and one who is not is system, according to Judge Field, of the Jefferson circuit court, who is giving several of his drunk cases here. "Every Government," he states, "finds difficulty in enforcing the special arrangements of the Volstead act. Now Some petroleum agreement" (by the way, Mr. Wilson, that 75 per cent to Frazee's 25) "with your statement that you have arranged a schedule by which deportations will be secured to the future of the United States Government.
