The Power of Money

When William Payne, the banker at Bisonville, decreed that no farmer who did not raise cows as well as wheat could borrow money from him, the angry grain growers almost lynched him. But they had to do as he demanded—and today he is the most popular man in the community. Under his county's influence the cattle in a blowaway desert, his depositors and borrowers are prosperous farmers, his bank is looked upon as the agricultural father of the whole countryside. Such is The Power of Money for Good. Herbert Quick, formerly a member of the Farm Loan Board, tells the story in the February 7th issue of

HANDLE READY-MADE HOUSES

Norwegian Company Anticipates Good Business in Selling Them for Export in England.

Many homes are for sale in Norway, the present owners of which are longing to get out of the country to England, but they expect the English to endeavor to get Norwegian homes, and that they hope to persuade them to import houses from Norway. The ready-to-inhabit houses like the ready-to-wear suit of clothes, is a modern invention, which has developed with marked success in Norway since the first ready-to-inhabit houses were made some 30-odd years ago. The ready-to-inhabit house, to be sure, is less immediately usable than the ready-to-wear suit, for it must be put up and fastened together. The chief factory for the manufacture and export of Norwegian ready-made houses is near Christiansand and the houses are mostly of the cottage type with variations that give considerable range to tastes and preferences, and they have all the modern conveniences. Naturally the factory is just now hoping to contribute a good many houses to the interior of the country, where in other countries prices are reputed dumbfully," says the Norwegian correspondent, "wooden houses are to be fairly sold, after a century's experience in Norway, to be had as brick, if kept properly to repair. The wooden house in daily use in Norway after 30 years' experience has now developed to great perfection, and the wooden dwelling offers a satisfactory solution for the housing problem." The factory will deliver a house in six weeks after it has been ordered, but one of the recognized elegancies in the British housing situation is that your real estate wants at least part of his house made with bricks.

COLLEGES PLAN HIGHER SALARIES

Nearly All American Institutions of Learning Taking Steps to Pay Adequately Their Teaching Forces.

Nearly every American college and university is taking or has already taken steps to bring about an increase in salaries for the teaching forces of these institutions.

New York University has announced plans to raise two million dollars to be devoted to increasing salaries of teachers in the University. Four millions more are to be set aside to be devoted to needed buildings and funding indebtedness. Assistant professors of this professor from $2,000 to $3,000 a year, and assistant professors per year from $1,200 to $3,000. Chancellor Brown says:

"Many of our faculty can not live on those salaries. They are obliged to eke out their salaries by outside work, and by 'pedlaiing' knowledge in a degree that is detrimental to their teaching efficiency."

Yale's New Scale $5,000 to $6,000.

Yale has announced a new scale of salaries, raising the former $4,000 to $6,000 a year. These salaries, generally regarded as a maximum for Yale, will begin with scars by professional baseball players in the New York Times, which expresses some curiosity as to whether other men are large enough to hold able men in their employ. It is understood that the general educational institutions could pay $6,000 a year to men who have demonstrated and expressed that has been a valuable addition to the college campus in the results of their labors. Yale authority made this increase possible, it is said, by the increased annual amount of more than $686,000.

Cornell After Ten Millions.

Cornell University is starting a campaign for ten million dollars in order to increase salaries that have not been advanced for nineteen years, professors receiving $3,500 a year, assistant professors, $2,172, and instructors, $1,929. To provide a small advance in these ridiculous salaries for 2,112 professors will require ten million dollars, it is said, and the campaign is to be conducted by the graduates of the university, of whom have not "any money," as a truly deplorable necessity." And be sure on to say:

"But seriously as it concerns Cornell professors and instructors, that is only a small sample of the imperilled danger. The very life of higher education in the United States is menaced. Where are their successors to come from? The teaching profession will be deserted by the forceful and logical men, and by the men who have a genius for the monopoly of dull and unambitious mediocrity."

Tech Goes to Industry.

Massachusetts Institute of Technology, which trains most who lead in the big work of industry in this country, is appealing directly to the industries which benefit most from its training, to help it increase the salaries which are necessary to keep the type of men it has been training on the teaching staff. It has received from the great manufacturing corporations to which it furnishes college graduates nearly almost every department.

There can be only a few of the many movements in the direction of better pay for college teachers. Practically all of the colleges, large and small, have the same problem and program, for the teacher is worthy of his hire and knows it. Business, big business is letting him know he can do better in his way of salary elsewhere, and is urging him to consider a change.

HENRY CLAY A PROFESSOR IN TRANSYLVANIA COLLEGE.

It may be news to many Kentuckians that Henry Clay, one of her greatest statesmen, was at one time a professor in Transylvania College, and that he was a member, after leaving the college for the field of politics until his death in 1852. Mr. Clay's connection covered the three years from 1804 to 1807.

CHANDLER SIX
Famous For Its Marvelous Motor

If You Don't Want to Wait Next Spring, Order Now

LAST year's production of the Chandler Six was of record volume and before, partly perhaps because hundreds of thousands of Americans were unable to secure new cars last year. And these great crowds of motor enthusiasts have found no better value in the whole exhibit of six cylinder cars than that which Chandler offers.

Chandler leads so distinctly in the medium-priced fine car field because it does offer each splendid feature of its really marvelous motor developed through seven years of production in the Chandler plant and seven years' service on the road in the hands of a host of owners; because of its sturdy, dependable mechanical construction throughout the entire chassis; and because of its attractive and comfortable body.

Compare them all, all the sixes, then pick out yours.
It will be a Chandler if you ask Chandler owners.

Now in National Forest.

Congress has set apart 1,316,000 acres of land in Idaho known as the Thunder mountain region as a national forest land. This great tract, difficult of access and having not over one per cent of its area suitable for agriculture, has for years been the scene of destructive fires and devastation due to overgrazing. It is now to be added to the Payette National forest, which adjoins it on the south and west.

Dancing Craze Affects Scotland.

The dancing craze has reached earthly proportions, even to kilter Scotland that it came up before the Inverness magistrates. Baillie Petrie, who fixed restrictive before, said he would not now oppose dancing to four o'clock in the morning, because after considering the question, he considered the evils which he had in view were not the direct outcome of those dances. Baillie McAdam moved that dancing be restricted to two o'clock, but it was agreed that it should be permitted until four o'clock.

WELCOME HOME
By LIZZIE M. PEABODY.

Oh, the old cabin seemed steeped in glorious splendor that day, and a welcomed home it certainly was from the various branches of our service; hale and hearty, hearts played and banners waved everywhere.

The beautifully staged feasts, each representing the bill of history, each bearing legal men and women who had in their keeping the sacred trust in help win the war, were also generously garnished as they passed on their way.

After the parade came the banquet and speeches, and then dancing in the town hall. Certainly each returned man and boy should have felt his heart swam with appreciation of the hearty welcome given the 1st call Hundred Glenn, honorably discharged that very day, and who had arrived in town only a short time before the parade started had honestly appreciated every effort made to his behalf as a returned soldier, and yet there was a dreadful look in his dark eyes as they roved around the hall, and dancing was he danced with the prettiest girl and best dancer there.

He was looking for little Betty Pleasant, and she had not yet appeared.

Seven laboriously written letters which should have passed the censor he had sent to her.

Even while keeping step to the gay music he mercifully admitted to himself that as far as he was concerned he might as well have been at war with each letter and have dropped it into the deep sea, for he had not heard from her. Members of his company had received letters from the little town more or less regularly, but the envelopes which made that little dainty heart flutter, enameled at home, and he had asked no questions of them.

Although he was fond of dancing he suddenly decided early in the evening to go home, and there he found himself walking rapidly in the direction of the Pleasant homestead, where Betty lived with her grandmother, a mile and a half in the opposite direction from his boarding place.

Supposing that Betty had stayed away from the dance and heard of him, he argued to himself—supposing even that she had believed and during the evening at home with someone who had taken his place in her heart. There really wasn't any reason why he shouldn't walk right in the old-fashioned gambrel-roofed white cottage where he lived, and he was then standing close to the old fireward cane-back chair where he had sat with her as a part of the boy and girl farewell scene, when Betty's grandfather in a suitable stepping stone to the door, and Betty stood motionless for a short.

Without being wholly convinced she tried to tell the truth, the gregarious young woman into her inner sanctum, and she was then and there engaged to be married to him, and that was what had happened. From force of habit, independence and conceit she had refused the old brass knocker and rapped quickly, all the same.

It was Betty who came, opened the door quickly, and Glenn walked in.

"Why, Betty, I—I—I—"

"Oh, Glenn, I'm so glad you've come back!" she cried, and then she threw her arms around his neck and kissed him.

"You told me you would send your address, and I waited for you to write.

"At first I was too ashamed, and then I—but oh, I didn't get any letters, Betty—" and he looked at her with a queer look in both hands.

A feeling of perfect comprehension crept over him. Couldn't he understand well enough why he had to bear the strain of waiting? Eagerly he caught at the hand and drew them swiftly away from her face.

"Then you haven't?" he asked softly.

"Seven letters I wrote and sent and would have written, only I really made up my mind at last that you did not care for me, and that was why you left me without a word."

Betty's head drooped. "I—I—I—" she replied faintly. "And no one else in all the dide world could be so welcome to me."

As a few moments later she stood in the sitting room Glenn's arm was as he placed his hat on the hook in the little front entry, her smiling eyes and lips seemed to him to still be saying: "No one else in all the wide world could be so welcome."

Looking over her shoulder he noted the big old armchair, the red and green woolen carpet, the old clock and even the little sitting room echoed her glad welcome home, and then suddenly it up his face as he remarked:

"The right sort of welcome from the right girl. Can you beat it?"

Soldier's Number Being on Shell That Failed to Explode, He Had No More Fear.

A man is one of the infantry regiments in No Man's land was taking up an little room in a small hole as possible during a hot fight, with everything staging overhead. At last a German shell landed right in the hole with him, but the cat exploded as soon as he recovered from his fright and could think again, he took a look at the shell and found it was a dud. The shell with defective fuse which does not explode. Next he noticed the number on the shell, and something about the mark him as being peculiar. It was 1,317,413.

He reached inside his shirt and pulled out his identification disc. The number which stared him in the face was 1,317,413. He walked out of the shell hole and back to his line with the bullets singing all about him, but was not hit. He reported to his commanding officer with a salute and a grin.

"Captain," he said, "ask me to do anything now. They had one with my number on it, and it was a dud."

The dear little boy was loved and adored by many friends where he left behind, besides his heart-broken parents who survive him, and who are very and and lonely without the sunny little chap, who was the sunshine of the home.

The dear little boy was buried in a very unusual way. Mr. Barbee's Troop gave him a military funeral. Over 200 soldiers and civilian friends attended the funeral. The hose was stacked with flowers. It took one extra car to carry the flowers to the cemetery.

The Chaplain delivered a very beautiful sermon at the home and conducted services at the cemetery.

Mr. Barbee is the son of Mrs. Leo Barbee, of 116 Morgan street, Carlisle, Ky., Mrs. Barbee was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Kennedy, of Philadelphia, before her marriage to Mr. Barbee.

COLLEGE PROFESSORS ADD TO SALARIES BY PREACHING

Professors in Transylvania College and the College of the Bible at Lexington, Ky., have added to their meagre pastorates of Christian Churches in surrounding villages from Lexington. It is absolutely necessary that they do this, for the average annual college professor salary is not paid but little more for his services than the skilled laborer and often less as much. Efforts are to be made soon to increase the salaries of the two Lexington institutions by at least 50 per cent.

WAR RISK INSURANCE WITHIN 18 MONTHS STILL HOLDS GOOD

To relieve any confusion that may exist in the minds of former service men on account of the special provisions in the World War Veterans' Act which authorized reinstatement up to December 31, 1919, regardless of date of discharge, announcement is made by Director R. G. Cholmeley-Jones of the Bureau of War Risk Insurance that the provisions for reinstatement and lapsed or canceled insurance for 18 months from date of discharge, upon payment of only two months' premiums on the amount of insurance to be reinstated, and upon good health is in as good health as at the date of discharge or expiration of the grace period whichever is the later date, as states in his application, still in good.

The provision that discharged service men are permitted to reinstate at any time within three calendar months following the month of discharge by merely paying the two months' premiums, without making a formal application or a statement as to health is also still in force.

The provisions for reinstatement do not protect a man until he actually reinstates. If he has not been so he is as good health as he was at the time of discharge and consequently must not be able to secure reinstatement.

Don't put off reinstatement. Do it now!

"OH DADDY"

The management of the Opera House announces as its attention for Thursday, February, 12. This announcement will undoubtedly be received with pleasure by those having the new musical farce, although tellingly a vastly different story from its other comedies, still retains the pep, dash and vigor. The production is a thing of beauty, the musical numbers were written by T. H. Willhite, and are bright, popular and catchy and as it bound to be whistled and hummed all over the city. The company is headed by Clarence Backus & Grace Mannering, supported by reconstituted comedy artists of the highest class and a chorus of youth, pleasure, 3-8 ever sixteen, who can really sing and dance. No lover of fun, music and dancing should miss "OH DADDY."

Don't forget the date, Thursday, February 12.

CENSUS TAKERS USE AEROPLANES

Everything from aeroplanes to mosquitoes is being used by the agents of Uncle Sam in taking the 1920 census of the United States. About the only modern method of transportation either on, over, or below land or water that has not been employed in enumerating Uncle Sam's nieces and nephews seems to be the submarine.

Aeroplanes have come in handy in that they do this, for the use of islands off the coast of Florida; yachts and rowboats have been used on the harbors of the country; native canoes have been used to enumerate the Alaska Islands; "flivvers" are being used everywhere; the tried and trusty mule team and buggy are the favorites out on the desert regions; and horseback has become the favorite mode of the census gatherers in the northern mountains.

In the central part of New York state, near Oswego, a New Jersey agent encountered a man who was living in a houseboat. The agent rowed to the dwelling only to find that an abandoned man was needed more than the census gatherer as the man of the family had been sick in bed for several days and the farm animals were suffering for lack of food and water. The enumerator, with the aid of neighbor, stopped long enough to do the chores, dig out quite through the deep snow and put things in shipshape order before continuing his journey.

DISCIPLES' COLLEGE

TRANSYLVANIA, COLLEGE OF THE BIBLE AND HAMILTON COLLEGE WILL GO OUT FOR NEARLY TWO AND A HALF MILLIONS NEXT FIVE YEARS.

$588,000 FOR COMING YEAR

Many Former Students of Lexington Institutions Attend Inter-Church World Movement Conference in St. Louis.

Lexington, Ky.—Sixty million dollars is the goal set by the Disciples of Christ for work of that church for the next five years, and twelve million for the next year. Transylvania and the College of the Bible, including Hamilton College, at Lexington, had asked for $3,362,000 for the five-year period, which was reduced to $2,454,803, and to $588,124 for the one-year period, by the Conference.

President R. H. Crossfield and Secretary J. L. Pinnell, of Transylvania, have returned from St. Louis, where they attended the Disciple Conference of the Inter-Church World Movement, composed of 106 representatives of the Board of Education, the United Christian Missionary Society, the Temperance Board and the Committee on Christian Unity.

Education Gets Half.

It was declared by the conference that the United Missionary Society and the Board of Education are equally interested and will receive $6,000,000, as "respects the Inter-Church World Movement; that all ordinary machinery of these organizations be limited so far as possible without the creation of additional machinery for the campaign; that all other boards and educational organizations are granting through a transitional period, reorganization and adjustment will be necessary; that Hamilton College and the Disciples of Christ for the five-year period and $12,000,000 for the year 1920. Of the sixty millions, thirty millions is to go to the work of the colleges of the Board of Education, and a like amount to the organizations of the United Missionary Society.

The asking of the $12,000,000 for the present year is to be divided in the same ratio, and the added cost of the campaign will be met by the schools of the two Lexington institutions by at least 50 per cent.

Askings Are Reduced.

Though the Disciples colleges of the Board of Education had asked for forty-one millions for the five-year period, as the amount necessary to make them thoroughly efficient and up to the standard set by the Association of American Colleges, it was decided to reduce this sum to thirty millions. The same adjustment was made in connection with the askings of the organizations of the United Missionary Society.

Of the 106 representatives who attended the Conference, the following were former students of Transylvania and the College of the Bible: Richard Bricken, attorney, Detroit; Guy E. Turner, superintendent of the North west; I. E. Adams, pastor Beverly, Louisiana; C. McWain, attorney, Kansas City; Frederick D. Kershner, St. Wood, president, Bethany College; D. R. Mason, President, Hiram College; Coby D. Hall, Dean, Texas Christian University; R. M. Waits, President, Texas Christian University; Grant K. Lewis, Secretary, American Christian Missionary Society; Paul R. Baines, Western Bible School Secretary; Mrs. W. M. Harman, Bible School Secretary, Department Christian Evangelist; E. M. Bowman, Secretary of Education; E. W. McCash, Minister, St. Louis; T. N. Roberts, Pastor, Phillips University; J. T. T. Hasley, President, Lexington College; Miss Thomas Young, Missionary to Japan; W. M. Harman, Bible School Secretary; C. W. Cashin, State Secretary of Indiana; J. E. Mills, Bible Secretary of Missouri; E. C. Lougee, State Secretary of Kansas; Frederick Lehmann, a Caldwell, Dean, Drake University; A. R. Mines, Superintendent of Missions State; H. W. Elliott, State Secretary of Kentucky.

PLANS ADDITIONS AT TRANSYLVANIA

President Crossfield Would Add to Administrative and Teaching Staffs of Transylvania College.

President R. H. Crossfield, of Transylvania College at Lexington, Ky., plans the addition of 12 members to the personnel of the college staff, when finances will warrant the increase. Four of the station will be in the administrative department, a secretary to the president, an assistant to the business manager and two assistant librarians. The twelve to be added to the teaching faculty include the following:

One additional professor in English, one in Education, one in Physics, one in Chemistry, two additional in the French, one in Old Testament, one in Homiletics, one in Economics, and three additional assistant professors, one each in Physics, Biology and one in Mechanical Drawing.
