The VALLEY OF THE GIANTS

BY

PETER B. KYNE

AUTHOR OF "CAPPY RICKS"

COPYRIGHT 1919 BY PETER B. KYNE

A BLACKBERRY PIE.

Synopsis.—Homer is the Carlisle ash redwood region, John Cardigan, at forty-seven, is the leading citizen of Sequoia, owner of mills, shipping and timber interests. He has a fine, clear affair, three years of college life, and father of two—boy and girl. Cardigan's will provides that his mother, the pioneer and read the estate with his daughter.

"Don't this young Cardigan a truly remarkable young man?" Mrs. Tully declared. "Why, I have never heard of anything like his conducting action. If he had only one atom of gratitude in Jonathan Bounty nature from his father's memory he would have left the railroad alone. But, no, he's the ungrateful thing he always was. Well, I'm glad I'm not his mother, and I'm sorry for Mrs. Tully, John Cardigan's old house-keeper. Mrs. Tully, John Cardigan's old house-keeper. Mrs. Tully, John Cardigan's old house-keeper.