Try One Brunswick Then Decide

The best way to know for yourself the superiority of the Brunswick Tire is to buy one and compare it.

That is, if the very name of Brunswick isn't sufficient proof to you, as it is to most men, that here is an extraordinary tire.

Thousands of men who have known the name of Brunswick for years, realize that a Brunswick Tire has to be the best—for a mediocre product could never bear this historic name.

Long before the Overland Trail became famous, the House of Brunswick was established. It was one of the chief users of rubber for fifty years before automobiles came into use.

No concern with such a history could afford to offer anything but the best. For reputations are built slowly, but can be quickly destroyed.

This is a practical guarantee that Brunswick Tires offer more than the usual, yet at no added cost.

Get your first one now. You'll not be satisfied until you have ALL Brunswicks.

Speaking Ill of the Absent.

"When the absent are present, said Henry Ward Beecher, "speak good of them, more than usual, lest some one, who does not always speak first; for they have a natural advantage over you. Remember, also, that it is not so difficult to make heads of others fall, and tell them over every day; I say, to make them, if you want to know how the devil does, you do know if you are such a one."

Not Pure Reading Matter.

"How long is a short story?" runs a newspaper headline. The space would be better filled by telling people how to tell the truth when awake.—Boston Transcript.

Oils and Their Uses.

Crushing seeds to extract oils has been employed in the East for centuries. Rape seed oil has long been used for frying fish and lubricating, and is today the principal fat in the Japanese diet. Cottonseed oil was used as a substitute for rapeseed oil and for lighting purposes. The ancient Japanese also understood the extraction of oil.

Beautiful Belief.

We are born to a higher destiny than that of earth. There is a reality where the rainbow never fades, where the stars will spread before us the islands that slumber on the ocean, and where the beings that pass before us like shadows will stay in our presence forever.—Hoover Lytton.

AMERICAN LEGION HEAD GIVES BOOST

Says Soldiers Were Strong For the Salvation Army in Days of the War and Since.

No organization that saw service with the American soldiers in the world war is stronger in the hearts of the men than the Salvation Army, according to Franklin D'Olier, National Commander of the American Legion. In a recent statement regarding the Salvation Army's second Home Service Fund campaign, May 10-20 Commander D'Olier said:

"The American people owe a great debt of gratitude to the Salvation Army, and that how great that debt is they have only to ask their own brothers and husbands who saw the death in the trenches on the battle fields of France. Every man who wore the American uniform is fully aware of the manner in which the soldiers of the Salvation Army suffered all sorts of privations, faced the dangers of battle and entirely forgot them selves in order to care for the soldiers fighting for the cause of liberty and humanity.

"There is not an ex-service man who is not glad to do whatever he can to help the Salvation Army, and I feel safe in saying that the people of this country will be satisfied to take the word of those who have seen at first hand the Salvation Army in an organization that deserves the support of the American people.

"The service of the Salvation Army during the war is but an example on the noble work those men and women have been doing for years among those who needed their services. There are very few cities or towns in a great many suffering humanity the world over, but they have been there years gone by and just as they will in years to come.

"The campaign that the Army is in put on at an early date is one that an sure everyone will lend support to. You may rest assured that whenever you find an ex-service man you find a friend of the Salvation Army. There were several organizations that did great work with the troops, but none of them excelled the Salvation Army, and none of them have a warmer place in the hearts of the American ex-service men than the Salvation Army."

Each of the last five Presidents of the United States has seen fit publicly to indorse the activities of the Salvation Army and to call the attention of the nation to the betterment of humanity and the "duty of the hour" especially. As President Wilson put it: President Roosevelt pronounced the two great—fortresly in those days regions where the battle for liberty was still in progress; President Taft asserted that the Salvation Army and its charity are of the highest usefulness.

The accounts of the Salvation Army are audited regularly and published at intervals. Every cent expended goes for the needy. The army funds for 1,500,000 soldiers and sailors and their sons in the United States last year. Feeding them is only one of its many activities.

The Passion Play.

Accounts of the Passion Play that marks the beginning of the Oberammergau "Passion Play" from time to time it that the custom was instituted centuries before the crude, primitive way with a connection during that period, which, however, is interesting. The play cannot be treated further back than 1634. Then Bavaria was visited by a vow that if the plague would cease they would give the play every ten years. The plague was stayed and the vow they faithfully kept until the sequence was broken because of the war.

Children's Library for Madrid.

The ministry of public instruction in Spain has established a public library for children in the building of the National Library. It is open during the same hours as the adult library itself and it is to be a model children under 14 years of age will not be permitted entrance into any other library and children without a special permit specifying the books they may read. Funds have been provided for the library, which will be advertised by the Juvenile book lovers, but also receives and papers that are considered popular and in many of the surrounding countries and their particular problems.

His Closing Schedule.

She was at the back of the church and she was getting impatient and anxious to leave. Finally was restless, another beckoned the usher to her. "Is the sermon nearly finished?" she whispered.

"No, Another half-hour yet," replied the usher. "Have only been preaching an hour."

"Why, I wish he'd take that long to say his 'hasty'!" she asked anxiously.

"No, mum! There's two more word and then comes the 'Hallelujah,' and the 'in conclusion' to come yet."

MEN "WALKED WITH DEATH"

Sailors on Mine-Sweeping Trawlers in Constant Peril of Sudden and Awful Disaster.

Imagine yourself trying to walk through a dense wood at midnight without a light, the penalty for which may be a tree being death. That will give you some idea of the dangers that the men on mine-sweeping trawlers faced when their vessels were plowing their way through a freshly sown mine field. The mine-sweepers were divided into two groups, each of which was commanded by a number of officers. The vessels left harbor about daylight and steamed out to sweep for mines.

They worked in pairs abreast of each other, 1,000 yards apart. Between them the vessels swung the sweep wire, sunk to the necessary depth to make a safety passage for the ships. Elaborate arrangements for signaling on the same principle as ordinary air lines.

These wires can be regulated to travel at any depth beneath the surface. When mines are caught they are dragged away to one side and destroyed by rifle fire. If the bullets hit the detonator the mine generally explodes at once; but, if on the other hand, water enters the buoyancy chamber and floods it, the mine goes to the bottom and is a less dangerous nuisance.

As the trawlers themselves may draw as much as 12 feet of water, they must keep more than double a mine laid at or above that depth. If mine sweeper is struck and the resultant explosion occurs forward in the hold, the bulkheads are strained and usually be tossed into harbor by one of her consorts. If the detonation takes place amidships or in the stern, however, it is all over with the ship. She would survive, and the men in the engine room or below would probably only perish with the vessel.

ROAD SIGNS EASY TO FOLLOW

Comprehensive System Soon to Be Put in Effect on the Highways of France.

A new system of road marking, both with letters and figures, is in effort in France as soon as may be completed. The old milestone will disappear, and in its place will be signs which those who ride in fast motor cars may read without slowing. On both sides of the fighting lines there great roads, related to each other, are long bulletin boards, on which, in all small letters, were set esthetic, but we can never forget them. Though to that, the new plan provides for boards at least 20 feet long, on which will be painted the place where it is posted shall be reached. The letters will be in red ground, with only slightly smaller in dimension. Kilometers—and the kilometers—of the next place in either direction will be given, related to the roadside are to have distinctive signs marking the road and other has only to follow the red or the blue to reach his destination. The road experts plan to file a relic of the system first introduced in America by paint ing the telegraph poles along main highways white.

Chinese Adopt United States Idea.

There are about 150 Chinese women and girls in Hong Kong city, all of them students, but most of them wives, mothers and daughters of merchants and other business men. These women are not interested in the fads and frills on western ideas and methods, and especially in the clothes worn by western women. They are interesting themselves in the study of the Chinese system do. "We are hoping to learn what is best in our own system," one of them says, "and keep one of their leaders, of all the Chinese civilization." This is a Chinese version of the U. W. U. and the girl train women in citizenship, American education, organization, civic, physical exercise and all the rest of it.

Certain-teed Is Easy to Lay

Certain-teed Roofing can be easily laid by anyone who will follow the simple instructions enclosed in every roll.

You don't have to hire experienced roofers. You don't even have to worry about finding skilled workmen. They are mighty hard to get these days.

This fact means two things to you. You save the difference between the wages of skilled and unskilled men. You get your roof laid quickly by men you can be easily obtained.

But Certain-teed Roofing provides far more than a roof that is easily laid. It is guaranteed for five, ten or fifteen years, according to weight. It has never been known to wear out on the roof. It is weather-proof, fire-resisting, and economical.

Though there is a shortage of many kinds of roofing you can always get Certain-teed Smooth-Surfaced Roofing.

See your dealer at once. He either has Certain-teed or can get it quickly from a nearby Certain-teed warehouse.

DEATHS

FOSTER—Mr. G. Ed Foster, aged 77 years, died at the home of his niece Mrs. John Yancey, near Blue Licks, last Thursday, after a long illness, with a complication of diseases. Mr. Foster was a Confederate veteran, being a member of General John Hunt Morgan's famous command. In August 1863 he joined the Ninth Kentucky Cavalry, Breckinridge's regiment, and served in that organization until the surrender in 1865. Mr. Foster had spent his entire life in this county, most of the time in the Blue Lick neighborhood. He was one of the best known men in that section. The funeral services were held from the late home Sunday morning, being conducted by Rev. W. P. Crouch, pastor of the Carlisle Christian Church. Interment took place in the Carlisle cemetery.

BARFEE—Mrs. Sallie Barbee, wife of Mr. Jack Barfee, died at her home near East Union Sunday after a long illness with a complication of diseases. Mrs. Barbee was born October 25, 1852, and when about 15 years of age she united with the Baptist Church and lived a consistent Christian life until the end. Knowing her illness was one from which she would not recover, she said she was prepared to meet her Maker. Besides her husband she is survived by twelve children, seven daughters, Mrs. Elias Mann, Mrs. Olive Jarvis, Mrs. Kate Varbey, Mrs. Mattie Knickendeffer, Mrs. Ida Elsea Georgia, Miss Margaret Barbee and Miss Mary Barbee and five sons, Messrs Ben, Marshall, Hayes, George and Howe Barbee, all of the children living in this county. Three sisters, Mrs. Eliza Hinds and Mrs. Lou Barbee, of this county, and Mrs. Susan Beckett, of Lexington, and three brothers, Ben Everman, of Corville, George Everman, of Winchester, and James Everman, of Orangeville, also survive. The funeral services were held at the Baptist church Tuesday afternoon, conducted by Rev. B. V. Bolton, after which interment took place in the Carlisle cemetery.

HOWARD—After a lingering and painful illness of several months, terminating with a complication of diseases, Mrs. Margaret Howard passed into eternal sleep at her home on Main street Tuesday morning, after having attained the ripe old age of 79 years and 11 months. Her death did not come as a surprise and much loved woman cast a shadow of sorrow over the community, as Mrs. Howard was universally known and loved by all who knew her. She was a native of this county on June 25, 1840, the daughter of Thomas and Fredrika Odell Fisher, and made her home in this city and county during her entire life. In October 1861, she was united in marriage to Mr. William B. Howard, who died several years ago. To the union two children were born with the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and was one of the charter living members of that church in the county. Mrs. Howard was the last member of a large family of children, three brothers, Ben, George and Jacob Fisher, and a sister, Mrs. H. M. Bryson, all of whom preceded her. TOBACCO OUTLOOK GOOD IN KENTUCKY THIS YEAR

Washington, May 18—That the report of the Census Bureau on the amount of tobacco in the hands of dealers and manufacturers, made public today by the Department of Commerce under the provisions of the Internal Revenue Act, "is the main, encouraging to the growers of tobacco," was asserted today by Congressman J. Campbell Cantrill, Democrat, of Kentucky, in a statement issued today.

"The report shows that of all types of tobacco in the United States, there are today 37,000,000 pounds less in the hands of manufacturers than there was a year ago, and, across whatever exception, the stocks of nearly all types of tobacco are reduced below what they were a year ago. Of special reference to the Burley type of tobacco, there are 4,000,000 pounds less in the hands of the dealers and manufacturers than there was April 1, 1919, and, so far as this particular type is concerned there is every reason for encouragement, and for a good selling season.

"It is true that of some types of tobacco, especially in Western Kentucky, the stocks of last year's crop are mainly in the hands of farmers, owing to the failure of foreign countries to buy their tobacco. Most of this type of tobacco is exported to Europe, since European countries are in such dire financial distress that they are not yet unable to buy a good percent of the Western Kentucky tobacco. It is entirely to be hoped that within a short time some plan will be worked out whereby relief in a financial way may be furnished to the growers of Western Kentucky tobacco so that they may realize on last year's crop.

"Outside of this particular type of tobacco grown in Western Kentucky, the outlook is encouraging, and from this year, and if some plan is worked out to relieve the situation in Western Kentucky, there is every hope that a good market will be found for this type of tobacco also. I find nothing discouraging in the report in a general way, and the outlook, especially for Burley, seems to be bright for this season. The stock of Burley tobacco on hand is less than that of a year ago and is just about the normal amount usually carried by the dealers and manufacturers of this type."

PRODUCE REVIEW

(Prepared by Swift & Co.)

A general "Swat the Rooster" campaign is on throughout the producing States, and it is expected the marketing[illegible] season for the season of four weeks.

The following extract from Bulletin No. 1 of the Poultry Experimental Station, is quoted:

"Under the best management of farm flocks which, from the view point of improving quality of eggs, is worse than all others combined, the production of eggs, especially in the Nine-tenths of the vast number of eggs that are sold are not strictly fresh nor are unfit for food are fertile eggs in which the germ has started to develop. A temperature of twenty degrees will start the germ in a fertile egg to slowly develop, and a fertile egg, subjected to a temperature of one hundred degrees F. for twenty-four hours, will be unfit for food, while an infertile egg may be subjected to the same temperature for a week and still be perfectly good for eating purposes. The simple expedient of shutting up or disposing of the male birds as soon as the hatching season is over, it should remove the danger of heated eggs and result in the saving of millions of dollars worth of eggs every season. Another source of wastage in having a males in the laying pens is the fact that the hens will not make running with them are much more gentle and quiet. The male is a disturbing factor."

The demand for eggs for table use is not as large as last year, and while receipts are somewhat lighter, they are ample for present requirements.

April and May eggs are of the highest quality, and a result, a good proportion are placed in storage. A part of the June production is also placed in storage, but as an approach to summer weather, are not the satisfactory quality when they show in the candle, consequently the demand for storage is therefore limited. Fresh eggs are selling at 40c, while storage eggs be gathered fairly, kept in a cool place and marketed promptly.

Cream production is increasing, due to improved pasture conditions. Buying prices are generally lower in the large consuming centers, which has resulted in somewhat lower prices for butterfat in producing territories.

Movement of poultry has shown some increase during the week, with not any marked change in values. Storage stocks are lighter than usual.

MEN'S FUR FELT HATS

The Figures Behind the Prices

All Men's Fur Felt Hats are made of Coney, Beaver and Hare's Fur

COST OF FUR CONEY FUR
1914	1920
$5.00 per lb.	$14.00 per lb.
BEAVER
$7.00 per lb.	$15.00 per lb.
HARE FUR
$2.75 per lb.	$7.50 per lb.
COST OF TRIMMINGS
$1.50 per doz.	$3.00 per doz.
LEATHER SWEAT
$10.00 per gross	$24.00 per gross
COST OF LABOR

The cost of labor on every one of the sixteen operations through which a hat goes before finished, has more than doubled, which is just as it should be.

BUT THE MANUFACTURER PAYS 100 per cent more for fur in that hat 200 per ct. more for trimmings and 200 per cent more for another in hat

The buyer of the hat is shocked at the price he must pay, and the retailer is shocked at the price he must charge.

And yet we are selling our hats at far less than the cost to manufacture would indicate. We have a style to suit and fit every face and pocketbook. SEE US.
