New War Risk Policies Ready

Former Service Men May Now Convert Their Insurance Into Permanent Policy.

PROVISIONS ARE VERY LIBERAL

Ruling Permits Reinstatement of Lapsed or Canceled Insurance Before July 1, Regardless of How Long Man Has Been Discharged.

Washington.—When congress passed the war risk insurance act, which has been characterized as "the most liberal ever placed on the statute books of a grateful nation," it provided that the wartime policies, which were planned to endure for only five years, might be converted into permanent forms of life insurance to be issued by the United States government after the termination of the actual provisions of the Bolshevik revolution. Mount's bay, 12 miles from Plymouth, England, was the members of the crew were saved.

Two thousand troops from England were landed at Barry and consigned by distributed throughout West Cork, and Americans forces, on terms which have been made economically free from the government pays all the costs of transportation.

A total of 4,670,388 applications for war risk insurance, representing more than $40,000,000,000 have been received by the bureau of war risk insurance. The applicants in many cases have been awaiting definite assurance as to the terms of the new policies before applying for conversion of their war risk insurance to permanent forms of insurance extended their war risk term more or permitted it to lapse. Inasmuch as it is necessary that the war risk (term) insurance must be in effect at the time of conversion to enable the permanent forms of insurance, it is assumed that many who dropped their war risk insurance will hasten to reinstate it before the liberal ruling which permits reinstatement of lapsed or canceled insurance, any time before July 1, 1920, on payment of only two monthly premiums on the amount of insurance to be reinstated, the application to be accompanied by a satisfactory statement of health.

The permanent forms of United States government life insurance into which war time insurance may be converted are:

1. Ordinary life.
2. Twenty-payment life.
3. Thirty-payment life.
4. Twenty-year endowment.
5. Thirty-year endowment.
6. Endowment maturing at age sixty-two.

The New and Important Features.

The principal features in the United States government life insurance contracts, which have been approved by the president of the United States, and are being issued by Director Churchill of the bureau of war risk insurance are:

That the insured have three optional settlements:

Option 1. Insurance payable in one sum. Settlement under this option will be made only when the beneficiary has been selected by the insured during his lifetime, and when no one was in receipt of payment in his last will and testament.

Option 2. Insurance payable in equal monthly installments for ten years.

Option 3. Insurance payable in installments through life. The installments may be payable throughout the life of the designated beneficiary if he or she so elect, but if such designated beneficiary dies before 240 such installments have been paid, the remaining unpaid monthly installments will be payable to the beneficiary provided by the provisions of the policy.

Second, the policies provide for total and permanent disability.

Third, the policies provide for total and permanent disability.

Fourth, the policies provide for total and permanent disability.

Fifth, cash surrender and paid-up insurance values, reserves and non-forfeiture provisions and policy loan provisions shall be effective only after premiums for 18 months have been paid and values, reserves and non-forfeiture
