SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. Walker

IT'S WORK THAT WINS.

WHEN a great player sits at the piano and touches the keys in exquisite manner, the whole audience thrills with exquisite sensation.

As you listen and drink in the waking music, you realize that it is good for the soul.

There is joyful inspiration in every singing note.

You yield to unrestrained enjoyment. Long have you been thirsty.

Now you will drink your fill.

So it is with a picture revealing in composition, subtle harmony, masterly coloring—when we are apt with more or less extreme of manner to drink in taste as real art.

There is always pleasure in watching the proficient man do his work, and noting the self-confidence with which he approaches it, whether he be an artist, a carpenter or a cobbler.

He exhibits skill in his every movement, and this very skill of his sets him off as a master in his particular calling.

He has acquired dexterity by constant practice—by doing over and over again the identical parts until he earns additional reward.

• • •

Nothing worth while in life has he gained except by continuously applied effort, which, in the basic sense is work—hard work, oft repeated.

Lincoln worked his way to home and fame by reading and studying at night, tying prone on the floor.

He only had light then that the burning wood in the open fireplace threw out in its flickering.

Edison and his partner had less than eight hundred dollars when they first ventured in the oil business. But they overcame the many obstacles confronting them by working and keeping at it.

• • •

Work is the key that unlocks the world's treasure chest.

The pianist spends hours every day in practicing fortissimo passages; the painter in mixing colors and half-starved, paints and rubs out, until he gets the effect he has visioned, and so it goes with every man and woman who attainsany rises to distinction.

The mistakes they make act as incentives for greater effort and more earnest work.

• • •

Work! Work! Work! That's the thing that wins.

The man who works never admits defeat, never ceases exercise till he "arrives" at the top of the hill where success is waiting with outstretched hands to confer honor and riches beyond his dreams.

LYRICS OF LIFE

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THE MAN YOUR BOY WILL BE.

YOU sometimes worry, wonder what Your boy will be a little while?
You like to look ahead a bit,
The future try to scan;
You hope he'll be a man in fact
And not a man in name,
And so your worries you'll not lack
You watch with anxious eyne.

But do not worry needless so!
The man your boy will be,
Is largely what you want him to,
You try to make him see
You need not watch his sighs and days
In search of what he'll be;
To only see to it your guys
Save yourself a-wife.

There is the place for one to look
To see what he'll be from a book,
They learn it from their sire.
The boy will be the man you are
Must be the rule for you,
The boy will heed the thing you say,
Not what you think to do.

It is not difficult to know
The future of the boy
If you but watch the man
Exactly like the dad.
The life he leads as time unfolds,
What boyhood days are fed.
The boy will be the man you are
The life he'll live the father's.

POLITICAL POSITIONS.

THERE are many civic positions which will certainly be open to women in a short time not only here and there, but everywhere. In many or our smaller cities and counties women's clubs have done a great deal of good work, and many women have given well fitted to do such work. There is no reason at all why a woman should not be competent to direct street cleaning, and there seems to be many reasons pointing to the fact that she would be an excellent one. As factory inspectors, as overseers, and in positions having to do with the household side of the community, women can do excellent work.

Women have also an innate position up-with a sense of accuracy, the lack of which is the cause of many public evils. Let any woman who knows and dresses, many women are going to find themselves invited to fill jobs.

If you have a bent toward civic work, study the problems in your own community. The past generation saw the marvelous development of women as to the business world. The coming one is sure to see an equally amazing entry into the world of political work.

So far women who have been appointed to positions of any importance have not had to play politics to get them. They have been appointed because they were fitted for them and had the necessary training. That is the secret. Let your training and fitness for your struggling, know your problems and the origin of people with whom you must work. If you are fit for the job, you are given a chance to prove you're to be it—or you will have to prove that it is not worth while.

The past generation saw the marvelous development of women

A DESSERT which is different but delicious and attractive and nutritious is

Ice Cream Tart.

Roll two and one-half tablespoonfuls of rice in a pint of milk with three fourths of a cupful of sugar, a pinch of salt and when done rub through a sieve; when cool add one-half cupful of finely powdered sugar, one-half of a cupful of powdered sugar, one cupful of whipped cream and two stiffly beaten egg whites. Freeze and serve in sherbet glasses garnished with cherries.

Raisin Pie.

This is the last word in raisin pies. Have together one cupful of cooked raisins and one-quarter of a cupful of their juice, one cupful of sugar, one-half cup juice. And three tablespoonfuls of butter and flour enough to make a thick paste. Put in pastry lined pans and roast in moderate oven. Make a shell that has been previously baked, cover with a meringue made with the whites of the eggs and two tablespoonfuls of sugar.

Sweet Potato Salad.

Wash and peel potatoes and cut into balls with a small vegetable cutter; there should be two cupfuls. Cook in boiling salted water until tender, drain and pour over the following dressing after they are cool: Mix one-half teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of pepper, four tablespoonfuls of vinegar, one-half cupful of finely minced celery, two slices of lemon

"What's in a Name?"

By MILDRED MARSHALL.

(Copyright.)

HORTENSE.

HORTENSE is essentially a French name, though she has been adopted by all countries and she has become the almost unique distinction of being universally known by her first name. Josephine, diminutive of affection or of any form, Hortense she begins and continues to the end of her career. Napoleon, with the single exception of Italy where the "H" is sometimes dropped and she is called Ortensia.

Like Sylvia, she is something of an ancient syrian name, having come originally from the Latin "hortus," meaning a garden. The slave who tended the garden was called Hortensius, probably horticulturist, and, finally the most strange quirk of fancy, it came to name an honorable and plebeian gens.

For literary centuries it continued in Italy and gradually the masculine form Ortensio came into use as a proper name, quickly followed by the feminine form Ortensia. The most famous bearers of this name was Ortensia Hortensi, the niece of Hortensio. This notable lady carried her name into the realm of poetry, and Ortensio Hortensi placed the stamp of their learned ability by calling it Hortense. Since that time many famous women have borne it, particularly those of literary bent.

Hortensio's jewel is the diamond, which is said to give its wearer freedom from enemies, invulnerability and to bring victory in any endeavor, provided, however, that it is received as a gift and not purchased. It is also said to lend power; it should be set in gold and worn on the left hand. He who wears for Hortense is supposed not only with love, but is extended to enhance the love of a husband for his wife. Saturday is her lucky day and six her lucky number.

The daisy, signifying innocence, is Hortense's flower.

SPIDER ATTRACTED BY MUSIC

According to Organist, He Was Always Sure of One Listener When.

An organist, telling of his experiences while playing the great instrument in a Boston hall, relates another story of his most regular listener. He was playing one day when he noticed in the organ loft a spider busily at work. It remained there for about two days.

It was a musical little fellow, and the spider received for it a special web given almost to a test with his wonderful web. Finally spider left the organ loft, and listen. When he had finished a piece it would come down to the floor, and when he began it would climb back to its place.

Further an organist who was playing a slightly local daily published a story of a spider which attracted his attention. He was playing in the Ann Arbor's town, he said, and had the home paper follow her as she sat in the organ loft. She would spin a web and then listen to the music. Sometimes she stayed with Eli Lamberton in the organ loft for an entire service at church. She refused to be disturbed by the choir singing or the assembled Princess Helena of Greece, but she would leave her web at the time unless. It is this latter marriage that has caused the organist to think a few baptizing two wives for every one he made today toward the Santa Claus.

"I hesitated at the sound of voices, but I thought I heard a voice I knew. It was a voice I knew. At that moment she appeared. She was a girl with whom we were young, accomplished and fair.

Sweet Revenge.

A couple of years ago Clarence wore a long mustache. Then he married and Dorothy there had always been considerable friction between the two. Uncle Dan Deacon Diggs, "I have always had a mustache and I intend to keep it on the chance that somebody else may marry me."

"Well, I'm not," replied Dorothy, "and I intend to have my husband shave off his mustache."

"Then," said Uncle Dan, "I will not shave off mine."

Dorothy thought a moment and then said, "Very well, uncle, if you will not shave off your mustache I will not shave off mine."

Uncle Dan thought I was a mistake, but Dorothy was firm, and so was Uncle Dan. Finally Dorothy's mother was called in to settle the matter. She decided that Dorothy should shave off her mustache.

"Very well," said Dorothy, "I will shave off my mustache, but I will not shave off my mustache."

Uncle Dan thought a moment and then said, "Very well, I will not shave off my mustache."
