BURLEY TOBACCO ON HAND

There has been much discussion as to whether or not there is a surplus burley tobacco in the hands of manufacturers and dealers.

Congressman Cantrill, in his speech in the house of Representatives on November 29, quoted as having stated that the manufacturers had on hand October 1, 482,780,489 pounds and that in addition to that, the dealers held about 75,000,000 pounds, making in all over 342,000,000. Mr. Cantrill's quoted statement and the statement of the Department of Commerce at Washington do not agree, but according to the last census report published by the Government on Oct. 30, 1920, "Leaf tobacco held by manufacturers and dealers, Oct. 1, 1920" was a total of 267,780,489. It is a matter of fact that the 1920 crop of Burley will be exceedingly light in weight, it does not appear that there is any excessive surplus supply of Burley tobacco.

It is the contention, however, that of the 267,780,489 pounds held Oct. 1st 67,000,000 pounds of the 1919 crop of Burley, leaving a balance remainder, and for convenience we will use round numbers, 200,000,000 was held by the manufacturers. According to past census reports Burley tobacco has been consumed during the period of the first nine months of 1921; this would leave the manufacturers stocks of Burley tobacco on Jan. 1, 1921, at approximately 100,000,000. Assuming that these latter estimates are approximately correct there is no surplus of Burley tobacco on hand.

The method is also quoted as having said that the 1920 crop of Burley would amount to 375,000,000 pounds according to the census taken by the Burley Tobacco Growers Association. This is far beyond the records kept by State and Federal statisticians, it was estimated by the latter that the crop would approximate 300,000,000 pounds, and the record fairly accurate, that the present crop would not be more than 250,000,000 pounds is borne out by growers who have weighed their tobacco from time to time and have found 250,000,000 to be about what it will fall short of. It is also true that the "Big Four" will require only 250,000,000 pounds of the 1921 crop, it would seem that this amount would be about in proper proportion to the 1920 crop for former years.

Taking all these things into consideration it seems that the large surplus of Burley tobacco that has been talked of has not materialized.

SEVERAL BURLEY MARKETS OPEN IN STATE REMAIN OPEN

While practically all of the loose leaf sales in Central Kentucky have been closed, sales are now being held in some of the outlying districts of the burley belt.

Below are reports from some of the markets where sales are being held:

Hopkinsville, Ky., Jan. 11—Considerable improvement was noted in the tone of the tobacco market when sales at the third sale at the Hodgenville warehouse. Receipts were heavy and the growers better than 20 cents, and a more optimistic feeling is noted. The sales will continue sales unless a serious drop in prices occurs.

Elizabethtown, Ky., Jan. 11—With tobacco markets practically at standstill, tobacco growers elsewhere in the burley section of Kentucky, tobacco took a jump on the markets here today, according to reports from the warehouses. Prices said to be a shade better than those paid last week on a number of crop. Several farmers who had been holding their tobacco considering condition that have taken the warehouses opened.

Danville, Ky., Jan 11—The tobacco market is very dull and the outlook is very encouraging for some financial relief. Only a few wagons from three cents to sixty-one cents per pound, but not a grade good enough to bring what was offered on the breaks. Probably as much as 300,000 pounds of the crop is still out.

Lancaster, Ky., Jan. 11—Tobacco growers from all sections of Garrard county filled the Court house square this morning and were voted unanimously for the two loose leaf houses at this place to resume business. Resolutions were made by Hon. Louis L. Walker, former Governor of Kentucky, and motion was made chairman; George B. Robinson, James I. Hamilton and others to make it known. The warehouses resumed sale this morning.

Thomas J. Sloane, 20 years old, a farmer of Fayette county, was instantly killed Tuesday afternoon when he was struck by a passing mail truck and the car suddenly started, knocking him over and crushing him.

Miss Pearl Hutchcraft Harbeson, Mr. Robert Harbeson will give a concert in M. C. Auditorium at Millersburg on Friday evening, January the 14th at 8 o'clock under the auspices of The Twentieth Century Club. The Harbeson's will give a fine program of popular music and a large audience is expected.

TAYLOR'S CREEK

As we only have four more weeks of school, we take this way of expressing our appreciation to our teachers, Miss Mabel McClanahan and Mrs. J. H. Stewart, for the patience and interest they have taken in us the past year, "for at times we know their patiences have been sorely tried." We think it would be a wise plan to have them with us again next year; we all love them very dearly.
