Localized British Isle Has No Laws, No Crime

London—A minister has been found who is willing to serve on the island of Tristan da Cunha, according to the London Daily Mail. But, Henry Martyn Rogers, curate in charge at Alexton, Uppingham, Rutland, and his wife have volunteered to go to Britain's loneliest possession. Tristan da Cunha, a little island in the South Atlantic, is not an ideal parish for schoolmaster. There are 159 inhabitants of the island, which is 1,512 miles west of Cape Town and is visited only once a year by a British warship, and on remote occasions by passing vessels.

The islanders have no laws and know no crime. They do not barter, and during the whole of last year the only sum of money on the island was 5s. Tea, cocoa and flour are very delicious.

SEES "YELLOW PERIL" LOOM

French Writer Says White Race Must Produce Cheaply and Develop Commerce.

Paris.—Dr. A. F. Legendre, a French writer on Asiatic subjects, after 20 years of travel and observation in the Far East, warns the world in the latest work that "Asia is at the point of the bayonet." He declares that "the biggest cloud on the horizon of the future is the yellow peril."

The author says, Doctor Legendre calls "the fact," as the oriental puts it, when Japan defeated Russia. During the great war, he writes, Japan mobilized her resources and saved her strength, while Europe lost 20,000,000 men and today suffers depressing industrial, moral and economic debility.

Detailed studies of Asiatic economic resources are given by Doctor Legendre to support his assertion that the yellow race may become solvent by means of buyers unless the white race develops its economic energy, cheapens its products, and seeks to profit by wealth-getting Asiatics—especially by establishing factories in Asia and by increasing production in all of Europe's colonies.

SMOKES EVERY OTHER YEAR

Former Premier Nitti Alternates Weed Habit to Conserve His Health.

Rome.—Francesco Saverio Nitti, former premier, minister of thg interior, minister of agriculture and now a member of the chamber of deputies from Potenza, is a "periodical smoker." He smokes like a chimney for a year and then, upon a precise date, lungs aboard the anti-nicotine wagon, where, for a twelvemonth, he abstains.

Sig. Nitti recently returned himself to tobacco fumes on the eve of being "on the wagon" fast. According to his own statement, he ordinarily consumes cigars and many cigarettes each day. It is in recent years that he has adopted the plan of smoking for one year and abstaining the next, in order that his health may suffer as little as possible.

"I'LL SAY SHE DOES," A DRESS

Bizarre Names for Gowns Latest Trade Device of Gotham Modistes.

New York—Designating gowns with names as bizarre as those given pugilists is the latest trade device of fashionable New York dressmakers. This was revealed when a large frock brought suit for $13,396 against a wealthy man for refusal to pay until satisfied the wife but alleged to be still suspicious.

"Hot Cakes" "I'll Say She Does" and "Pot-luck" were the way those gowns were labeled, a society lady of them went down on the list as "Cleopatra's Delight" while two street suits were charged up as "Bobby" and "Bopeep."

By way of parallel, an average gown was christened "Morning Glory."

PIGEONS AID DRUG ADDICTS

Carry Narcotics to Inmates of Black-well's Island, New York, Says Detective.

New York.—Carrier pigeons are the latest aids procured by addicts to supply imprisoned victims, according to Detective Sergeant Quigley, who arrested Antonio Adamo, an alleged drug vendor and confiscated $4,000 worth of drugs and a pigeon, said there were at least two cases on record in which glasses had taken drugs to addicts held at Blackwell's Island. Adamo refused to admit that his pigeon was a drug carrier.

Still Live in War Dugouts.

Dvinsk, Latvia.—Hundreds of families in the war-devastated territory about Dvinsk are still living in dugouts used by German and Russian soldiers in the early days of the war.

Little or no provision is made in the areas of repatriated villages because of the poverty of the people who for a long time after the war between Russia and Germany ended were under Bolshevik rule.

Signal Fires.

In Terre del Fuego news is conveyed and conversation sustained between the different tribes inhabiting the islands by means of fires on the high peaks of the mountains. The natives are always on the lookout for these fires, and know just what they are intended to mean.—Boston Eagle.
