FARMERS SHOULD RAISE MORE GOOD UTILITY HORSES

Federal Authorities State That Horses Are More Economical on Farms Than Motorized Tractors or Trucks—An Infusion of Thoroughbred Blood Gives Spirit, Vigor And Endurance To All Breeds

There is now a recognized theme that good utility horses are more economical on farms than motorized tractors or trucks. Some are necessary in both city and country, but the horse is the best all around motor power and compares favorably with the best of them. Many farmers have discarded the horse because they were not profitable in the past. Many of these horses were of poor breeding, lacking in size, weight and quality. Others were not properly handled and developed. Many were overworked in their younger days and were unfitted for heavy work when they reached maturity. Many were sold to the tractor or truck companies. Many were sold to the tractor or truck companies. Many were sold to the tractor or truck companies
