COUNTY WILL LOSE $225 IN REGISTRATION FLUKE

County Clerk John Westfall stated as a representative of The Mercury that the county will be required to pay the cost of the publication and binding of the registration books prepared for use in the general registration of voters that was to have been held July 10 and 11.

The decision of the court of appeals that the registration law was unconstitutional rendered registration books useless, . . . they were prepared especially for the new registration. All of the books had been received here and will cost the county about $225.

The books were ordered from the Standard Printing Company, Louisville, on a printed form, which required only the filling in of the number of books of each kind desired, the date and the signature of the county judges and the county clerk. Just above the space for the signature of the two county officials appears the sentence: "The above blanks will be paid for out of the county treasury as required by law."

CASE DECIDED

In the case of Redmon vs. Barton, the jury decided in favor of the latter. The case grew out of an accident upon the crop of tobacco grown in Nicholas county by a man named Kastch. The tobacco had been sold by Mrs. Kastch to a neighbor while her husband had been seriously injured and brought to the Massie Memorial Hospital. In this case the plaintiff brought suit for the purpose of finding out if there was a bona fide one, or one for the purpose of avoiding the administrator. The jury decided the sale a bona fide one, made previous to serving the attachment—Bourbon News.

Cal. L. D. Young, of Bourbon county, who attended the Confederate reunion at Richmond, Va., last week had a very interesting letter in the Lexington Herald-Leader of Wednesday recording his war-time experiences in and around Richmond during the mighty conflict. In his article Mr. Young stated that he had the pleasure of meeting and shaking hands with Mrs. J. W. Carson, Mrs. Sue Templeman, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Collopie and Mr. and Mrs. Claude Campbell, all of whom are natives of this county.

INDEFENSIBLE CRUELTY

(Elizabethtown News)

It is absolutely an indefensible cruelty to children to open the country schools in July. To require the little folks to sit in small, crafty and burning hot one story frame buildings during the months of July and August is inhuman treatment. It is an injustice to children to suit the convenience or whims of grown people. They eat not study in these little hot boxes during the dog days of summer, and when they get home at night it is too hot even then for them to study beside a lamp, which adds to the chemics of the atmosphere.

All the city schools, colleges and universities have vacation periods to extend throughout the hot months because these are not the months to study under the most favorable housing conditions, even with electric fans. It is common sense to have the school vacation and not the school during the reason of the year when the country lovers spend holidays.

The country schools should be opened in September like the rest of the schools. The nights are beginning to get long and the days shorter in a short time these is frost in the air. The children are in the best physical condition. Their school houses are comfortable and their homes are comfortable where they gather around the lamp and spend the evenings in study and comfort.

With the seven months term now provided for the county schools every beginning in July are carried up to the middle of February through the worst of the winter and therefore, the argument that the time they spend in school escaping the bad weather and bad roads cannot any longer be used. The country schools should be opened September and continued until April. These are the very best months for the children to be in the school house and for progress in their studies. They then get out of school at the very time they can play out of doors and do what little work which may be required of them about the home and the farm.

The State Board of Health has frequently complained about the shameful conditions of the country school houses but nothing could be done on account of the winter and therefore, the argument that has been used to shield those escaping the bad weather and bad roads cannot any longer be used. The country schools should be opened September and continued until April. These are the very best months for the children to be in the school house and for progress in their studies. They then get out of school at the very time they can play out of doors and do what little work which may be required of them about the home and the farm.

The State Board of Health has frequently complained about the shameful conditions of the country school houses but nothing could be done on account of the winter and therefore, the inhuman practice of having the children go to school in July and August. It is the time that the city schools have a short vacation and it is the time that the country children most need a vacation.

The health of the children should be considered above the convenience or notions of their parents. They are entitled to school privileges what they can take the best advantage of them and make the most progress in their studies. And parents should tell everyone that this time should not include the dog days of summer.

It makes our temperature rise higher than blood heat when we look into a country school house and see children sweltering with the mercury at around 100.

It should be stopped.

Tanlac is unquestionably the most widely talked of medicine in the world today and those who once use it invariably buy it over and over again and tell their friends of the splendid results they have derived from its use. Hopkins' Drug Co.

75 STRIKE BREAKERS ARE MASSACRED BY MINERS

At Herrin, Ill., last Wednesday 5,000 armed coal miners attacked the Lester strip mine and killed and wounded 40 to 75 non-union workers.

From reports of the wholesale slaughter sent out by the Associated Press, the slain men were shot down in cold blood, after they had surrendered their arms.

The massacre was probably the most brutal affair of the kind that ever occurred in the United States and rivals the atrocities credited to the Huns on their march through Belgium.

ESCAPES DROWNING

(Mt. Olivet Tribune-Democrat)

Returning the Sunday School of the Walnut Street Methodist church of this city, after a day's outing and automobiles and one truck loaded with people, the latter being forced to Main Licking at the old Day & Welly Ferry.

Here the day's exercises were being highly enjoyed until there came near being a fatality, one of the Byers Lincoln, the 5-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Linville, of near town, making a narrow escape from drowning. A lot of boys were in the river bathing, Herman among the number, when he got into deep water. Coming to the surface he called to Julie and Raphael for help. Logan Lanham and J. W. Neal immediately went to his relief and brought him ashore, and but for their prompt action young Lincoln would have gone to a watery grave. The river at this point is deceptive. The water is clear, the bottom sandy and very deep nearby. In years past drownings have occurred in that vicinity, we are informed.

VOL. LV. CARLISLE, NICHOLAS COUNTY, KENTUCKY, THURSDAY, JULY 13, 1922 NUMBER 28

COMMENT

Carlisle would miss the Chautauqua more than any other. Aside from its reappearance here next summer by signing the guarantee.

"Language was given to man for the purpose of concealing thought." How known some married men that used it for the purpose of concealment, but not of thought.

Newspapers make mistakes often and are usually willing to correct them, but apparently the hot weather must have proved the poor brother, who is quoted by the Courier-Journal as making the following: "Preacher."

"There is no truth in the report that I was drunk Monday. It was Monday."

Shall the bird-grown wear a wedding ring? Is a question Dr. Brady will be answer, world like: I know where he is to work at it; but when he is to, or more apt-ically, is his nose?

Poor Paul Foster, the French bee-dee-maker, while demonstrating the fact that the French are not to be helps the bust the little remembered, in Paris, the late Marshal Foch, that he doesn't understand American politics, but he has a pretty strong one self-determination about his feelings won't be hurt if americans disagree who copy its creations, pay him three cents apiece for the names, knowing that other women know about Paris and its fashion suppliers, would have the nerve to wear anything with F. Foch written on it. Poor Paul, you are de trop, here or re-mial, horse d'oeuvre, or other dish.

1922 CHAUTAUQUA SEASON OPENED MONDAY AFTERNOON

ALL NUMBERS RENDERED ARE WELL RECEIVED BY LARGE CROWDS

"TURN TO THE RIGHT TONIGHT"

The Collegian Male Quartet, composed of Messrs. Lester Spring, Clarence Risner, Albert Strasbin and John Wesley Ivan formally opened the 1922 season of the Redpath Service on Chautauqua here Monday afternoon before a large audience. The first number of the quartet was thoroughly appreciated and was liberally applauded.

Monday evening the Collegian Male Quintet furnished the prelude to the address of Dr. Charles F. Brough, former Governor of Arkansas, who spoke on the subject "America's Leadership in the World. In addition to serving as Governor of Arkansas from 1917 to 1921, Governor Brough has the distinction of having been called for a third term as President of the United States Good Roads Association, and has been interested in the road situation in Kentucky for several years. It is to be hoped that the next general assembly of Kentucky would authorize a bond issue for good roads, as the prosperity and maintenance of permanent highways depends largely on it. Also the most active boosters for good roads in the state, and the handling of a steep . . . have power for the Kentucky Utilities system was the most far-reaching one mentioned. Other subjects were also mentioned particularly the provision for the education of returned soldiers and the young womanhood as being distinctive.

We run the gamut of American writers and literature to prove that our Democracy enjoys the distinction of being the best seller and most widely read literature of the world and that our press was the most fearless and independent among nations, having decidedly the widest circulation.

It is not exceeding that Europe surpassed us as yet in the fine arts, the Drama, Literature and Science as well as Statesmanship, but we are not to be outdone in the line of . . . and we are progressing a generous appreciation of the fine arts in this country. The cried Mark Twain, Bill Nye, George Ade, and other American humorists are leading the world in wit and humor, and said thing the ability to lift anecdotes well and combine wit with wisdom and fun with profound political philosophy. The new automatic piano in Paris became interested in Mr. Harry's . . . and when he lived in that place, but the failure to secure a piano has prevented the production of a marketable machine.

The model now in Carlisle is in a new case and is finished in mahogany where Mr. Ritter will gladly demonstrate it upon request. The mechanic might be able to find much to . . . in this rather wonderful piece of mechanism, but, as has been observed, it appears most feasible to the . . . layman.

WATER POWER MACHINE OF LOCAL MAN LOOK A WINNER

M. A. RITTER HAS UNIQUE INVENTION ON DISPLAY AT CONLEY HOTEL

ALMOST "PERPETUAL MOTION"

Tuesday morning a representative of The Mercury viewed a demonstration of the working model of a water power machine, invented by Mr. M. A. Ritter, who is at present employed at the Neal Bakery in Carlisle.

Mr. Ritter, who was born in Germany, came to this country, in 1870, at the age of ten years, has been working on the machine for a twenty-two years. He is still enthusiastic over the possibilities of the machine, and to a layman, at least, his invention seems to have great possibilities.

The power is furnished by a five horse power electric, of the type used in old water mills in past days. A small 3/4 horse power motor is used to start the two 3-inch cylinder pumps, which work alternately. The water is then forced into the storage tank, which, when . . . is about 20 feet overshot wheel is intended to furnish the power to operate the machine. The dynamo will furnish lights and at the same time charge a storage battery, which will furnish lights when the machine is not in use. The . . . is home . . . and will be used in connection with the machine.

On Tuesday afternoon the Manufacturing Light Opera Company delighted the audience with a grand concert in the Conley hotel parlors, as a prelude for the address of Dr. Huber W. Hart, "The New Americanism" Day."

This was also a very interesting and timely lecture and was the . . . ly enjoyed.

On Wednesday afternoon Irene Castle Pell will be given the . . . as a recital and furnishing the prelude for Sidney Lanson, who gave impressions of great literary men. Mr. Lanson is one of the leaders of this line of work.

Perhaps the most enjoyable program of the week will be given this evening. This afternoon the Cramer-Krax Trio will furnish the prelude for the lecture of Evelyn Hutson, "Well Dressed on a Moderate Income." This lecture should be especially attractive to women. "In the evening a New York star will appear in the grand . . . and comedy-drama, "Turn to the Right." Many new and startling effects are carried.

On Friday afternoon a treat is in store for lovers of the better class of music, when Louisville's Lyric Symphony Orchestra will give a concert. This organization will furnish the prelude for the address of Judge Marcus A. Kavanaugh, "Traitors to Peace."

On Saturday afternoon Chester Hilton Sanford will deliver the closing lecture, "Failures of the Misfits." In the evening the modern comedy drama, "Friendly Enemies," from New York cast, will be presented. "Friendly Enemies" in his tribute to "Friendly Enemies" had a long run on the New York stage, and the play is conceded to has lost any of its charm through being put on the road.

Mr. Hilton Sanford, the closing day, Verna's Hawaiians will furnish the prelude for the afternoon and evening concert, and will furnish the prelude for Miss Pugh. Dance for the ladies who will close the program in the evening.

Taken all around, the program this year is one of the best balanced and most entertaining we have ever had and should be more liberally patronized than it has been during the first few days.

It is more than likely that the Redpath Chautauqua will be brought to Carlisle again next year and it is the duty of every public spirited citizen to sign the guarantee when it is presented. Be a booster for Carlisle and a booster the chautauqua and stand shoulder to shoulder with your neighbors and friends in assuring us a return visit of this pleasant feature next year.

Mr. "Bill" Wright, platform manager here this year, has made many friends during his short stay in Carlisle and it is hoped the Redpath Bureau will send him here next year.

LOCAL WOMAN IS HONORED AT HARDWARE CONVENTION

MRS. JNO. W. TILTON RETIRES AS FIRST PRESIDENT OF WOMAN'S AUXILIARY

MEETING HELD AT NEW HAVEN

At the national convention of dealers of Winchester Repeating Arms, held at St. James Club in New Haven, Conn., last week, Mrs. Jno. W. Tilton, of this city, who, with her husband, attended the meeting, retired as the first president of the National Winchester Hardware Dealers' Auxiliary. Mrs. Tilton was named as a member of the board of governors from Kentucky.

The Winchester Repeater, issued daily during the convention, gives the speech delivered by Mrs. Tilton on her retirement as follows:

"It is a great pleasure to be with you all on this grand occasion; to see so many faces and to renew acquaintance with so many old friends.

"I take great pride and inspiration in being the first president of the National Winchester Auxiliary, primarily as we are pioneers in this movement which, when fully developed in education; and I will always consider it a privilege to have had a part in it. I make it the great success I know it will be.

"The wonderful Winchester Convention itself is an education in the line of hardware. It is a revelation. It has a broadening influence on all of us. We go away from our home with new regular routine of living and working, and we meet people from every State in the Union.

"If on our way, we cross the Rockies, the plains, the Grand Canyon, the Mississippi, the Hudson River—we are blind if we do not get something out of it.

"We see America and know what a wonderful country we live in.

"In the entertainment provided for us by the factory, we get a touch of things that are national in their scope. The United States Navy through its fleet gives us a touch of the sea, and its strength and its sailors; the Boy Scouts, pets us in touch with the national defense; in the hydroplane Lowering we see an airplane that has broken the world's record and in fact most of the other events we marvel at something we might never have seen if we had not come to the Winchester convention.

"We inspect a wonderful factory through its various parts and in this history in the making; a company that in itself is a paradox; one that has helped in the world's progress by manufacturing arms and ammunition for our government, and now further advancing the cause of civilization by manufacturing articles used in peaceful pursuits.

"We participate in a program of business that our husbands, brothers or families are vitally interested in and incidentally enjoy a program of an important part of a big national business movement.

"This country is typically American. Our churches, our schools and our colleges, the railroads that whirl us across the Continent in less than four days, the telephone, the movies, the radio and the phonograph are social and educational factors that make us a race of educated people.

"Auxiliary has the same principles of knowledge that our men have.

"Hardware men and their families are representative, substantial people. We are taking our place as the bone and sinew of the social fabric of this country.

"We women have passed the stage of prejudice when we are accustomed to meet and discuss the business affairs of our husbands, our brothers or fathers. We are taking our places in sports, the sciences, the arts, the professions, in the social and political fairs and are something more than ornamental clothes-wearers to satisfy vanity, vanity—and we can still enjoy happy homes.

"Let us all, therefore, enter into the spirit of the Women's Auxiliary and do our part in making it the biggest, freshest and enthusiasm of Winchester, ourselves and our family's business. The Winchester plan is a common sense one and should be universally successful.

"Now, I am going to do something else. They have their own officers and by-laws and have carried out a well rounded program at the same time taking part in the regular meetings of their state clubs.

Mrs. Tilton urged cooperation as

BROTHER OF LOCAL MAN IS KILLED BY TENANT

W. L. AUXIER DIES FROM GUN WOUNDS INFLICTED BY TENANT ON FARM

VICTIM RESIDENT OF OHIO

Last Wednesday's Cincinnati Enquirer gave the following account of the fatal shooting of William L. Auxier, brother of Fred Auxier, of Jacksontown, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Auxier were at the bedside of the victim when the end came:

Dispute over a patch of cowberries is said to have been the cause of a shooting affray, which resulted in the death at St. Mary's Hospital of William L. Auxier, 61 years old, farmer, who lived on the Cincinnati, Georgetown and Portsmouth road between Amelia and Bethel, O'Nic.

Auxier, father of six children ranging from four to seventeen years old, was shot by Bertram Sparkle, 31 years old who leased a farm adjoining the one on which Auxier lived. Sparkle is in the county jail.

Auxier was born in Carlisle, Ky., in 1830 with his brick jail, clerk's office and the old log court house, the . . . bagging factory, three story . . . two butter shops, three cabinet shops, three saw mills, two flour mills, two carding factories, three . . . tobacco factories, two tanneries, . . . shoe shops and twelve or fifteen blacksmith shops, showing the wealth and industrious population of over 4000. Our "city fathers" had—as many of our citizens now do—settled down to the present day—many a . . . Auxier, among whose early . . . age to that standard of high moral principles, good taste and refinement which was the sole aim and study of those early good people. Jacob Lee and Peter Schwartzwelter.

We have now to record the advent of another noble, gifted citizen, who, in point of fact, has been entitled to that distinction for many years. Colonel William Henry Russell. It is not known exactly when 'your' became to Carlisle, but it was probably as early as 1826. He bought a farm either from Colonel Metcalfe or Mrs. Ogden, in the "northwest quarter of Carlisle."

Colonel Russell was a lawyer by profession, a politician by blood, and tastes and habits. Beside the profession of the law, the Colonel was sort of an amateur farmer, and carried on his farming in quite a handsome style. Like those Georges, he was a very advanced . . . of agriculture, and was the first to introduce . . . with the following . . . show.

During one of the years he lived on the farm, he raised a fine crop of wheat and other small grains. Having no barns, he . . . everybody had a number of sheds employed, so, had he not been cute and safely stacked—seeing that his servants would be likely to have a good leisure time—he called them together and told them that he would now be a good time for them to "tag their trees and go to making rails."

In 1830 he was elected to the Kentucky legislature, and while there he was at that session that a United States post route was established. It was who then got appointed the Colonel that he should be postmaster, although in politics a Whig. He this as it may, he was elected, and the result was that he got the office.

In 1832 or thereabouts Colonel Russell moved to Missouri, where he . . . in business and politics and operations for many years. Soon after his removal to Missouri, one of his friends had, he was riding . . . and was thrown from his horse and . . . on an unbroken-road road. Upon this occasion the Colonel was . . . and at the end night, air suggested the propriety of fortifying the system . . . by the application of a strong . . . failing on died to the inner man. Accordingly, he called for a drink, and of the good old days when he lived in Carlisle, he would have called for "Democrats of Nicholas out of their . . . At this sudden and peremptory challenge, the Colonel pulled up his horse . . . and said, "Whoo-hoo, whoo-hoo," again came from the mysterious voice in the upper air. "Colonel William Henry Russell, I command you . . . Nicholas county, Kentucky, be good . . . oh, why the devil are you?"

FIRST SUNDAY SCHOOL IN CARLISLE ORGANIZED 1828

SAMUEL S. SMITH ORGANIZED UNION SUNDAY SCHOOL IN COURT HOUSE

UNION MEET HELD 59 YEARS

In the year 1828 Samuel S. Smith started the first Sunday School in Carlisle. Though organized as a Presbyterian school, it was, in fact, a union school, as—far . . . time at least—all denominations attended it. Mr. Smith was superintendent and also teacher also. His mother-in-law, Mrs. Buckalew, and Mrs. Mary Ann Steven Smith, were also teachers. The school was held in the old court house, at up to that time there was not a church building of any kind in town. This school was continued in through the succeeding years as a union affair, by the Baptists and Presbyterian churches until 1878, a period of half a century.

We now advance to our fourth period, that is the history of the Carlisle, from 1830 to 1835. We have seen the steadily growth of our village from the log cabin period to the time when the old log jail and court house, its . . . bagging factory, three rope walks, two butter shops, three cabinet shops, three saw mills, two flour mills, two carding factories, three . . . tobacco factories, two tanneries, . . . shoe shops and twelve or fifteen blacksmith shops, showing the wealth and industrious population of over 4000.
