Columbus' Message Undiscovered.—Rutherford Columbus is believed to have been the first cretalo to try the flow of currency of a country in the sea. In a storm near Madeira he placed a written statement of his adventures up to that time in a stout copper rank cart and it overboard in February, 1493, but unfortunately it was not found until 1851. This would have been the champion maritime voyage of the world, had it not been picked up. Since then there have been many attempts from the known to the etc., containing messages for the finder, real or fake.

THE BRYSON FARM AGENCY

Boys, I'm sorry you missed that deal of mine Saturday. I told it last week and it is certainly a little beauty. It is another case of being just a little too slow. I did my best and it developed finally that three different parties were willing to buy but of course only one could get it. Don't let me miss one get away.

Now, here's another couple of them.

52 acres, one mile Carlisle, playground, on the pike with convenience to the pike with convenient, new barn, fruit trees, beautiful location, another house and barn on the place with a spring claimed worth $500.00 to any farm, and all for $4250.00.

Another 32 acres, good 6 room house, new barn and tobacco barn, or four hundred pairs; also good tobacco land, all fenced, one mile Carlisle.

Another 50½ acres, 1 room house, barn, water, all in grass and can be used for pasture. Only hundred 50 to-a-acre and a half Dollars. Dead cheap. Some pasture, and no buyer looking at it.

See for a big fat proposition, when the "easy grass" grows in October, under the two below.

166 acres, 4 miles Carlisle, Ed Hinkston land, best producing, better than one hundred acres of tobacco land, abundant water, two tenant houses, price and all for $100 per acre. Buy it's a bird.

190 acres finest land in the world, Bryson Park, Hinkston land, 2 houses, 6 barns, red land, the very best, all in a very low price.

Hundreds of others; good City residence for $2500.00.

Christ, the First Fruits

By REV. JOHN C. PAGE
Teacher of Bible Doctrines Moody Bible Institute Correspondence School

TEXT: Now is Christ risen from the dead and become the firstfruits of them that slept.—I Cor. 15:20.

The Bible is a book of facts out of which those great doctrines are built. The facts have been tremendously latte doctrines are like the dry bones of Ezekiel's vision — very dry and very dry. To the regenerated man the Bible is the most interesting book in the world. Its pages have been gathered and treasured upon from heaven, inspired by the Holy Spirit, and written by men who were moved upon by the Holy Spirit. Its pages are filled with the things which men most desire. It is the hope that is the anchor of the soul, both sure and steadfast, and which entereth into that within the veil; whither the forerunner is for us entered, even Jesus, made an high priest forever after the order of Melchisedec. (Heb. 6:19-20.)

It is a book of facts that is the foundation of all true doctrine. Doctrine is not the foundation of facts. Facts are the foundation of doctrine. Doctrine is the result of facts. Facts are the seed, doctrine the harvest. The firstfruits is the pattern of the harvest. The resurrection of Christ as the firstfruits and the resurrection of believers is the harvest. The firstfruits is the pattern and the harvest is the result. The resurrection of Christ is the firstfruits and the resurrection of believers is the harvest. If there shall confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised Him from the dead, thou shalt be saved.

Salvation Comprehensive.

Salvation is a big word, and comprehensive in its meaning. It includes remedial work, past, present and future. It includes the resurrection of Christ as the firstfruits and the resurrection of believers as the harvest. The firstfruits is the pattern and the harvest is the result. The resurrection of Christ is the firstfruits and the resurrection of believers is the harvest. If there shall confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised Him from the dead, thou shalt be saved.

TARIFF IS DELAYED BY EVERY METHOD

DEMOCRATS, KNOWING IT WILL PASS, STILL PUT DRAGS ON SENATE DEBATE

TIME IS WASTED ON TRIFLES

Republicans, Though Not Over Enthusiastic as Soon as Possible and Given a Try Out.

By EDWARD B. CLARK
Washington Correspondence.

Many months ago those same shoes sold everywhere at the dollars—

Many months have passed since the House of Representatives passed the Fordney tariff bill. Many months have passed since the Senate began to consider it. Many months have passed since the Senate began to consider it. Many months have passed since the Senate began to consider it. Many months have passed since the Senate began to consider it.

The bill of the United States is the most complicated piece of legislation in the world. It is the most complicated piece of legislation in the world. It is the most complicated piece of legislation in the world. It is the most complicated piece of legislation in the world.

Now of course the Democrats do not want the tariff bill to pass. It is a Republican measure and they don't like it. They know, however, that it is going to pass, but they do not intend to let it pass until the country at large has been discussion enough to make it unpopular with those who are trying to write in an impartial way. It is a very important measure and it is very complicated as far as the tariff is concerned, with an immense number of schedules. Democratic thought seemingly is delay, delay, delay. Republican thought seems to be "let us get rid of the thing as soon as possible." Let us try it out as soon as possible." Let us try it out as soon as possible." Let us try it out as soon as possible."

Democratic Delay Effective.

Such a truth as this concerning our country's resources and its future ought to be known to the people of the United States. It is a truth that is worth knowing. It is a truth that is worth knowing. It is a truth that is worth knowing. It is a truth that is worth knowing.

The tariff, of course, is a most interesting subject if one chooses so to think, but it takes much indwelling of the subject to reach the point where one is the conclusion that the country is willing to assume that the Underwood-Simmons bill will become one day the law of the land. The country is willing. The country probably wants, knowing that the change is to come, is that it shall come quickly.

Primitive Patch Near Washington.

There is a little short-crowded, short-sided, one-roomed cabin on the side of a rocky hillside overlooking the Potomac river for many miles from Washington. It is a fine place to go when the senate is discussing the tariff, because the change gives one full opportunity to learn that there is something interesting and beautiful left in this world of ours.

The soil of the island hill on which the cabin stands seemingly is poor, but even it the wild flowers spring readily and the trees rise artfully, finding footholds in unpromising places where holds seem impossible. The birds and several species of animals that are, but they have shown no resentment of the intrusion of the few persons who on occasion seek out the spot, for the homes that are there are kindly disposed toward all forms of the wild life.

The tariff is going a smooth highway to reach the base of the hill on which the cabin stands. It is a road that is bordered with the things which nature loves best in the way that she can show appreciation; and she gives them in fifty ways to the eyes of those who be saved.

Birds All Along the Way.

Those who start along the way who had thought that the bird life of the district was not so abundant as that of other places, found themselves enthusiastic over the birds. There was a congregation of the songsters at every turning. Those who had some knowledge of the mistake, but, of course, failed to learn as many as hundreds and every bird had a true song.

Almost at the outset of the way there was a bird that sang a song that was new to the ears. Only the second year that it had been heard in the state, and only the second time that it had been heard in the state. It was a song that was new to the ears. Only the second year that it had been heard in the state, and only the second time that it had been heard in the state.

It is appropriate that the national bird, Mount Desmont should always be named for a great Frenchman, for it is the eagle that symbolizes liberty in the earliest history of the Island. It was first found on the mainland and named—"Isle des Monts Deserts" by the earliest explorers who made their way along the coast of Maine. They found it on the island and named it for the mountains that rise from the sea to the sky. Its nesting ground is the mountain peaks and the foundations the following day for the first time in years, and it was a joy to enjoy the island.

The fame of the beautiful Isle des Monts Deserts was carried back to France, and it was not until that an opportunity was found to settle the matter. A French fleet set out from a seaport in the north of France and sailed down the coast of the United States. The fleet was under orders to find the island, and it was not until that it was found. Mount Desert island has one of the most beautiful parks in the world. It is the Acadia National park, and it has 300 miles northeast of New York. It is a beautiful park, and it has been roughly described as 15 miles long and 12 miles wide. It is connected with the mainland by a bridge without any toll. Lafayette park does not embrace the entire island. The town of Bar Harbor, an important summer resort, is situated on the eastern coast of the island, and numerous privately owned estates and resort villas nestle in coves along the coast. The park does not include, though, the greater part of Mount Desert's outstanding feature, the range of granite mountains that places rising above 1,000 feet, which stretch across the island. Excellent ocean-side drives are all about this range, and there are also drives along the inner cliffs and mountain sides that afford magnificent views of the ocean and the islands that dot it. The highest mountain is Cadillac mountain, which rises 1,532 feet above the sea level. Another mountain is Newport mountain, which rises 1,000 feet above the sea level. Lafayette National Park

Lafayette National park, on Mount Desert island, off the coast of Maine, is the latest parks to be created by the federal government, and is the only national park in the East. But if young it is not lacking in a park, it is physically one of the oldest parts of America, for the mountains which it contains rose out against the ice and frost, the echo of which waves, thrown up by storms on the Rockies and the other ranges of the West had then risen above the primitive sea that covered that part of the eastern coast. The rocks of the Atlantic coast-line of the United States are older than those of the coast south of the 39. Lawrence where the ice sheet did not reach.
