PHINEAS AND THE MOTOR CAR
In Which Gasoline Takes Over the Job as Furnishing
By ELEANOR PORTER
Author of "Lippinor," "Just David," Etc.

PHINEAS had been reading a book about automobiles for some time when he was told by his mother that she had bought a new car. He was very interested in the car and he had been thinking about it for some time. He had seen a number of cars in the streets and he had been wondering how they worked. He had been thinking about the things that he could do with a car. He had been thinking about the things that he could see with a car. He had been thinking about the things that he could do with a car.
