Friends, how many of you have been to church and said it must be tired of me?" No wonder Peter was grieved when Christ said unto him the third time, "lovest thou me?" He knew all things. There are the lonely set all things; thou knowest that I love thee." Peter feels bad as he said it is showing his love that only He knew it. Are you showing your love to Him?

But let us not lose sight of the grace which the apostle is speaking of in the text. Peter had been forgiven his fall: "When thou art converted, strengthen thy brethren." Another Peter has been converted, or turned, and knows his duty. He will be a pointing to help others. It has been five years and they will meet there next Friday, June 24, to cut weeds and clean up the yard and the yard of the house of God. We know the women can do much and it must be done if the men exist. If any of you men feel that you can't go just come along with your wife and see if we don't have the yard looking better by next Lord's day.

OBITUARY

In loving remembrance of our father, John Conway, who was born in Cauk county, Ky., April 1, 1846, and departed this life June 21, 1922. He was married April 15, 1880. To this union were born nine children, namely, Mrs. Bertha Cannon, Miss Ella Conway and a son, Buttie Conway, who died April 14 1900.

He leaves one grandson, Maurice Cannon, with whom he spent his last days with his life and was a great joy to him in his old age. Also 3 host of friends. He was a good father and was always ready to lend a helping hand, and would always rather give than to take for it. It was always a pleasure to him to give something to the poor child and he lived not only to grab the things of this world, but to try to make everybody happy. He had a good word for all. May his soul rest in peace.

Dearest father, thou hast left us,
And our loss we deeply feel;
But God in His wisdom saw fit
To call you to your home in heaven.
He can our sorrows heal.

Yet again we hope to meet thee
When the day of life has fled,
Then in Heaven with joy to greet thee,
Where no farewell tear is shed.

We miss thee everywhere, dear father,
We miss thee everywhere.

How God Restores

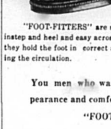
TEXT—He whom they had dined, Jesus said to Simon Peter, lovest thou me more than these more than these? He saith unto him, Yea, Lord; thou knowest that I love thee. He saith unto him, Feed my lambs.—John 21:15.



Adelaide Fletcher fell the story of a man who kept the portal of a city went in France. Her Lover went out to a soldier and fell in Paris fire a life of sin. After twenty-six years of separation they met in the street through the years, and now that she was dying in a waiting her. She slipped back into her old position and he kept on and went

The late Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman used to tell this story to illustrate God's promise to restore the erring saints. In our text we have the story of the restoration of one of such gracious restoration, from Christ's point of view. Peter, Simon, son of Jonah, had been called to the apostleship and had professed that though all others should forsake Christ, he would not. He had denied Him. But he had shown, too easily, that he did not love Christ more than these." How Christ's question must have reduced Peter to the dust of shame! It is to be noted that all the old spirit of boasting is gone. Peter is not ashamed to love Christ more than others love Him.

Some Searching Questions.

Peter's humility is also in shorter way. In Christ's question, the word used for love is agape, which expresses an unselfish love which expects nothing in return. In Peter's answer, the word love is phileo, a lower form of love which seeks return. In other words, Peter is willing to love Christ for love's sake, not for any gain, but also as to quality. He is willing to love to the point of self-denial. Moreover, the third time Jesus inquired as to the degree of love, He used the same word, in the original, which Peter had been using. He asked, "Are you sure you have even this much love for me?" No wonder Peter was grieved when Christ said unto him the third time, "lovest thou me?" He knew all things. There are the lonely set all things; thou knowest that I love thee." Peter feels bad as he said it is showing his love that only He knew it. Are you showing your love to Him?

TARIFF BILL MAY BE SPEEDED UP

SENATE DEMOCRATS LETTING UP IN DEBATE AND MEASURE MAY PASS IN JULY.

CONFERENCE WILL BE LONG

President Harding Still Urging Ship Subsidy Legislation, Which Many Republican Leaders Think It Would Be Good Policy to Enact.

By EDWARD B. CLARK
Washington.—Democratic leaders still are boring with the tariff bill. Within a few days Democratic senators openly say they have found some flaws in the measure which they will attempt to correct by amendment, indicating that the bill will become a law in July.

Democratic leaders are confident that the bill will be passed before the end of the month. Republican leaders, reading the reports show that scores of them are worried about the tariff in their own parts of the world. Government experts have been working day and night for months on the bill, and it is one of the most complex ever drawn up.

Democratic leaders say that it is a far better measure than the Fordney-McCumber bill and that it will produce a far easier than a week or two ago.

The law Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman used to tell this story to illustrate God's promise to restore the erring saints. In our text we have the story of the restoration of one of such gracious restoration, from Christ's point of view. Peter, Simon, son of Jonah, had been called to the apostleship and had professed that though all others should forsake Christ, he would not. He had denied Him. But he had shown, too easily, that he did not love Christ more than these." How Christ's question must have reduced Peter to the dust of shame! It is to be noted that all the old spirit of boasting is gone. Peter is not ashamed to love Christ more than others love Him.

Democrats are confident, too, that the senate will be able to dispose of the bill in a little in debate, thus giving the opposition party the feeling that the Democrats are waiting for them. The filibuster back into her old position and he kept on and went Democratic leaders, however, in the face of this confidence, are preparing for the customs recourse, obstacles which they expect the Republican minority in opposition to the schedules as they are written in the bill. They are ready for such gratuitous assistance, from Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, Senator Christ Lodge, Republican, Massachusetts, Senator Penrose, Republican, Pennsylvania, and Senator Simmons, Democrat, North Carolina, ranking member of the senate committee on finance, who will lead debate in behalf of the bill.

Democrats admit the possibility of future embarrassing votes which will limit debate in the senate. They are confident, however, that they will be able to dispose of the bill before the end of the month. Democratic leaders say that they have been informed by a few days ago by the senate delegation as to ordering, and perhaps by the end of the week, the senate will be ready to vote. By the end of the year, while lodgers are a few weeks. The usual time of the ice season in the north and because of the bill personally they break bone from the "normal" to the "abnormal" level. This was the case in the year of the Washington conference for the settlement of Cape Race.

Democratic leaders say that as a of ways told how close they pass to debate, however, they do not disclose their escapes for themselves. A letter received a few days ago by the writer from a friend abroad says he has been in the vessel that was carrying passage to Europe passed within 200 feet of an iceberg which was "as big as" only when the fog suddenly lifted.

Narrow Escape for Big Liner.

A few days ago one of the finest eastward bound passed a derelict in the North Atlantic, which was only a few feet less than 300 feet. The derelict was a mass of ice and wreckage, the remains of a ship's lifeboats. The voyagers learned of their narrow escape by the report made by the captain of the ship. As soon as the derelict had been passed, he ordered wireless messages to be sent to the vessels immediately in the path of commerce that it should be avoided. The ship had struck the berg in the night, and the lifeboats were all that remained of the vessel.

If the subsidy bill is to be passed during the present session of congress, senatorities it will not be taken up before the middle of July, and not long after the tariff is passed. Democratic leaders say that they will not make any give consideration to the merchant marine measure until they have a feeling that the Republican leaders are willing to have it put the statute the house this summer and to promise the passage of a measure that of Mexico City.

Heart of the Country.

The central section of Chile extends from the Aconcagua river valley for a distance of about 600 miles from Valparaiso to Puerto Montt, the capital of Puerto Montt. This is the heart of Chile, the only portion of the country which can support a sufficient population to constitute a nation. The area is not large, about 100,000 square miles, and south of it is occupied by mountain ranges of great height and ruggedness.

But between the Andes and the coast mountains there is a valley of surprisingly similar to that of California, which it resembles in climate and in many of its features. Flowing in the Andes descend "It is" and empty into the Pacific ocean through a comparatively broad range of the Pacific; but the Andes, which rise to a great height and altitude as to interrupt the continuity of the great valley that extends from north to south. Santiago is situated in the northern end, and Valparaiso and cities are located at each favorable point on the railway that connects the capital with Puerto Montt.

The climate as we go from north to south becomes ever more humid, and the soil more irrigated lands are in Santiago to the dense forest swamps of the southern portion of the country. While much of the land has been cleared for agriculture, there still remains in a state which reminds one of our own Pacific coast 50 years ago. Large areas remain comparatively forests, in which valuable timbers abound, and the cattle have run for a considerable distance from the ranches of their owners. However, the scattered frontiersmen are no longer a menace to the settlements, as they were in the days of Valdivia.

What Wife Said.

Little Elsine came slowly into the room and said:

"Mamma, on't the Bible say we mustn't swear?"

"Yes, dear."

"Well, Johnny Stush just swored a awful word at me."

"The idea! Why what did he say?"

"He said, 'By golly, you make me tired!'"—Boston Transcript.

The Market.

"In the old days a man was expected to buy his own wife."

"I see," replied Senator Borghum. "It is no longer that. As to the cost of a nasty other things, the price of wives is left entirely to the individual's discretion."—Patient Pearl.

Blinks—That judge is a smart man, Jinks—He is that. He gave me a sentence once that took six months to get through.—New York Sun.

New highways are being built between Peking and Tien-Tsin, China, by coolies who endeavor for out of the Amoy can families relief fund.

Bottles Scarce

There is a scarcity of bottles in Europe with the result that the demand for second-hand bottles is unprecedented. At the pre-war days the empty "bubbly" was a drug on the market. The rag-and-bone merchant would give about sous for whisky, port, sherry, burgundy and claret bottles, but the champagne bottle was on the black list. Today it is the king of the empty bottle trade.

Learned Azteca

The question whether Roger Bacon used a telescope and a microscope receives the opposition as to whether he was not in the New World that both these instruments were first invented. For antiquarians who have studied ancient hieroglyphic outlines of the Aztecs say this race when overthrown by the Spanish conquerors was more advanced in astronomy and optics than Europe of that day.

When Critics Run Amuck

Scholarly books have been dispraised because they were not exciting; fine sagels have been sneered at because they were hard to read; classic stories have been prostituted great because they were a presence of serious soul; sentimentality has been welcomed because it was human; inferiority has been condemned for being inferior; immorality has slipped through as romance; daring has been mistaken for novelty; painstaking dullness, for careful art; self-revelation, for world knowledge; preaty writing, for literature; violence, for strength; and warped and unhealthy egoism for the wise sincerity, which is the soul of literature.—Henry Seidel Canby, in the North American Review.

Bend wheelchrond can be straightened by soaking them in boiling water for a few minutes—And then bending them.

View of Santiago, Chile.

Chile, which is the subject of a conference in Washington with those of Peru, as an effort to settle the Tacna-Arica problem, might be called "the land of California." It is long and narrow, and its region of greatest fertility is a counterpart of that of California, with low mountains to the east, a fertile valley and high mountains and ranges to the west, with a desert, the driest region in the world, along the coast. Chile is divided into 23 provinces and territories, which are 200 miles farther south than it does to the deserts of Tarapaca and Tacna, which are in dispute. As with a treaty by more than 125 miles from the southern Andean crest. The area in place it upon a similar stretch of coast in North America, it would cover Lower California, Oregon, Washington and British Columbia, with the St. Elias district of Alaska.
