THE MERCURY.
THURSDAY, MAY 11, 1922
Warren E. Fisher ..... Editor
Grover Caywood ..... News Editor
Entered at the Carlisle, Ky. post office as second class mail matter.
(In year (in advance) $2.00
(In months (in advance) 1.00
(Issue months (in advance) .50

ANNOUNCEMENT

We are authorized to announce W. J. FIELDS of Carlisle county, as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Representative in Congress, from the Ninth Kentucky District, subject to the action of the Democratic party at the primary to be held Saturday, August 5, 1922.

Look on Page 8 and you will see the story of the busy Ex.

Like Ulysses, to whom I have compared the great man whom we honor today, having no superior except "only Ulysses can wield the bow of Ulysses"—his spirit sought adventure in the very last and refused to drink bottle with his peers, until way with Homer's hero, old age hath yet his honor and his toil;

Death closes all; but something ere the end,
Some work of noble note, may yet be done,
Not unbecoming Men that strove with gods.

A rugged, and withal a most gifted and lovable personality, "Bob" Henry was one of the most remarkable and most widely known men of his generation. Born of his day in his chosen profession of the law, that profession, the world circles, has vaunted, by the will of God, the material body in which it resided, and which seems to indeed a spiritual body, eternal in the heavens, as those on earth, in which and through which he has lived and labored, will not long occupy day for ever noble ends." Such a man's work and influence are reflected through by subsidy which he has created, and which will not speak to certify and ensure the consummation of an immortal life, and the fruitage of which is his usefulness under brighter skies. Such a man's influence is not lost, but is wrought into and becomes a part of the very atmosphere in which he moves, and which he breathes in expansion and wielding the blameworthy influence of his personality.

Kentucky dedicated to the knowledge of God and the service of humanity, its citizens, are not an aristocracy of wealth, nor of learned culture and refinement, but of the whole of earth's multitudes, and the outstanding characteristic of the people is the ever basic and brain and genius of the people. Their every impulse here among us, which he left behind him, and which he left behind him, and which he left behind him, and