READ YOUR HOME PAPER

The Burley Tobacco Growers' News of advising its readers to subscribe for their home county paper. Every family in every county in the Burley district ought to have the home county paper, whether any other paper comes or takes or not. It should come first. It does it now. No other paper pays to give a good daily should be in every home. It will not long pay for itself over and over again before the year is out. But the home paper is an absolute necessity in every home. The editor is your friend, for your interests are his interests. He will come nearer to giving you unselfish, honest advice than any other person, once perhaps your family doctor, your lawyer and your preacher, and his advice will be as honest and unselfish as they give you.

One of the troubles with some parts of the Burley district today is the absence of newspapers from the homes. We are trying to end the condition that has caused such a situation as that, for in most cases it was caused by the closed poverty, poverty of which most of our readers have only a faint idea.

It is our hope that every reader of The Burley Tobacco Grower also will be a reader of his county paper, for then he will find his very best friend and counselor and guide. What helps the rural community helps the rural newspaper. That is one reason why almost every newspaper in the Burley district was so strong for our association and gave so much space to news of its organization. But they looked also to the larger good, to the better homes and schools and roads and churches, to the happier and more contented people they knew would be a result of co-operative marketing.

When the full story of the Burley Association is written, as it will be some day, a full share of credit for the organization will be given to those newspapers which made its success possible and its failure impossible. When you think over the change in conditions since 1920 do not forget your local editor, for he had a very important part in bringing it about.

Subscribe for your home paper and do it now.--Burley Tobacco Growers.

CUNT BLUFF THE PROFESSOR

(Vanceburg Sun)

Some person has dropped a note below one of my gate stating that I must leave Garrison becourt jets are I will see some of my friends will kill you whoever I believe that it must be some one who is connected with moonshiners as several threats has been made against me in the past year this matter will be taken up with the Federal officers. I believe that a person in Vanceburg who has been getting title from liquor dealers is an especial table party whom is threating me. All the secret service for eavesdigation. You may kill me but you have a lot job to eat me. - I be here when ever will.

PROF. C. T. REILLY

SNIPE EXTINCT ANIMAL

What was once a popular diversion in the rural districts has almost become obsolete. This was the "snipe hunt" arranged for the unsophisticated visitor from the city who nearly always fell for the joke put up by his country cousin.

These "snipe hunts" always were arranged with great detail and the victim from the city stationed at some lonely spot to hold the bag for the collection of the snipe after the drive. After holding out for several hours and hearing all sorts of noises the terrorized bag holder ordinarily would consider to his quarters to unravel the jokes and taunts of the perpetrators of the trick. The expression, "holding the bag," owes its origin to the old-fashioned "snipe hunt," with which the country folks turned the tables on smart city chaps.

UNDER HARDING

According to the Hopkinsville New era, Congressman B. Y. Thomas, of Kentucky, contributed the following to the House at its closing session last week:

There is nothing in tobacco,
Nothing in your shock;
Nothing in your harvest,
Nothing in your flock.
Hogs have gone to nothing,
And corn ain't worth a darn;
Trusts have got the nation,
And the debts have got the farm.
Harding tells us nothing,
Wall street runs the king.
Money magnates, whistle
And Swift and Armour sing.
There's plenty in this story,
Thursday, June 7, 1750, the Register
Of Kentucky State Historical Society reports.

FACTS ABOUT KENTUCKY

The Kentucky conference of Methodist Church is divided into the Ashland, Covington, Lexington, Louisville and Southeastern districts.

Total cost of running the feeble Minded Institute at Frankfort during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1922, was $160,664.44.

Adair county "paid in" $1,117.26, as revenue from the 1 cent tax on gasoline in 1921.

Muhlenberg county listed 712 automobiles for taxation in 1921 at a value of $124,125, the tax commission report points out.

Dr. Thomas Walker was the man who named the west fork of the Big Sandy the Louisa river, this according to his journal, on Thursday, June 7, 1750, the Register of Kentucky State Historical Society reports.

MONEY NEEDED AT ONCE FOR KY. CHILDREN'S HOME

So great is the problem of the homeless child in Kentucky, so interwined with church, school and society that the only institution in the State--the Kentucky Children's Home Society--is not to capacity and must construct another building if hundreds of lives are to be given shelter and a home.

More than $100,000 is needed and to raise this sum the Society will shortly immediately a campaign throughout the various counties and in the schools that the donations by the children may build the last unit of the cottage village at Lyndon, as a memorial dedicated to the homeless little ones.

For a quarter of a century the Society was housed in Louisville in a tall row of residences. George I. Bolen, Superintendent, struggled for years to raise money to buy the 62 acre tract at Lyndon and last spring his dreams were realized when the first two units of the village were completed and ready for occupancy. In the fall they moved the 160 little children. Despite the interest of the year, each boy began planting a garden with the result that enough food was raised to supply the table and to can and preserve more than 1000 gallons of food for winter use.

At this time, to withold help from the Kentucky Children's Home Society means the enemies must take up the work of caring for the homeless homeless in the state, with the attendant increase in county taxes and the increase is delinquency through the evil surroundings of the poorhouses in which they must find shelter.

For this humanitarian cause, the people of the State are asked for the $100,000 by Christmas in order that work may be started by early spring.

GOOD LETTER GONE WRONG

A traveler on a steamship had written a letter to his wife concerning about the presence of vermin in his berth. He penned a letter to the administrative head, a letter of insistence of cleanliness.

Never before had such a complaint been lodged against this unsophisticated, careful line, and the management would have suffered any loss rather than cause annoyance to so distinguished a citizen, etc., etc.

He was very delighted with the abject apology. But as he was throwing away the envelope there fell out a slip of paper which had apparently been enclosed by mistake. On it was a memorandum: "Send this guy the bed-bug letter."

IN WHAT CLASS ARE YOU?

Generally speaking, there are four classes of individuals:

1. The one who must be told what to do, how to do it, and be checked up on to see that he does it.
2. The one who must be told what to do, but who is thoroughly enough to need to be told how to do it, but who is to be checked up on to see that he does it.
3. The one who must be told what to do, how to do it, but who in the doing of it is resourceful enough not to need to be told how to do it, but who is so thorough as not to need to be checked up in the doing of it.
4. That one to whom a good employer must be giving, and who is never satisfied though he need to be told what to do or how to do it, or to be checked in the doing of it.--Author Unknown.

The origin of the fire is unknown. The barn, when constructed, cost $3,500. The entire tobacco crop, hay, farm machinery and implements were destroyed with the barn.

The Nicholas focal court is planning to continue the building of the Carlisle and Sharpsburg pike to the Bath county line during 1923 and Judge A. B. Tilton received a letter from the State Highway Commission Wednesday stating that an estimate of the cost of reconstructing the road will be made at once. The State road department will bear half of the cost.

THE EYES AND THE MOVIES

Do the movies hurt the eyes?

If they do it is usually due to the fact that the eyes themselves are defective.

Years ago, in the days of the nickelodeon, most moving pictures were mechanically imperfect, many of the films giving a sort of a rain-storm effect. The machines were not finely adjusted and there was much vibration. Such pictures could easily cause serious eye strain.

The modern moving picture cannot be considered a cause of eye strain. Of course, it should be viewed under favorable conditions. One should not sit on a level lower than the picture, nor too close to the screen, nor outside of an angle of thirty degrees to the plane of the screen. If one sits well back in the house on a level or above the screen and directly in front of the picture, there can be no eye strain if one's eyes are free from defect.

It is safe to say, if your eyes are not comfortable at the movies, your eyes are at fault and not the picture.

The morning picture is a sort of an eye testing device. If one's eyes are defective, the moving picture discloses that fact.

When we consider that seven people out of every ten have defective eyes we realize the importance of most widely known optometric work in the conservation of vision.

"Better Vision Week" is to be observed throughout Kentucky, November 6th to 11th. Addresses will be made in the principal cities by leading optometrists.

Dr. R. C. Augustine, past President Kentucky Optometric Association, will deliver a series of addresses in a number of cities during the week. Dr. Augustine is the leading Ascarid exponent of a square deal for the school child and has spoken in more than one hundred and fifty Canadian and American cities.

The Kentucky Optometric Association is sponsoring this great campaign which has for its object the education of our people to the value of vision and the importance of proper eye care.
