Ingenious Pie Driver

There has been employed on summer vacation in members of the Big Blower corps a most ingenious pie driver which sets with great speed. On two axles of the pie one-inch gas pipes are inserted in longitudinal grooves. At the lower end the pipes are bent upward and then forward and inward toward the point of the pie. A force pump, driven water into the pipes, and the water, issuing from the nozzles under a pressure of 70 pounds to the square inch, removes the dirt so rapidly beneath the pie that it takes three times as fast as if hand-moved by a pie driver.—Washington Star.

One Consolation, Anyway.

Mrs. Mudpie's husband was extremely ill, and she called in a physician.

"I'm sorry, madam," said the doctor, "but your husband is dying by inches."

"Well," she said with an air of hopeful resignation, "it was good thing in one poor man in six free I see in the weekly feet, so he'll last some time yet."

Mrs. Edward Pinson

Wheelbarrow, Ohio—"My wife had pneumonia about six years ago and it left her with a dreadful cough. At night she would cough and strangle and choke so that she could get no rest or sleep. Her strength was so bad that she could not retain food. She went down in flesh until she was merely skin and bones. I had heard many doctors and medicine but still she grew worse. Then I got Vinol and the first bottle relieved upon her. Former medicines for years, told me about Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and before she had taken all of the first bottle I could see a change for the better. By the time she had the third bottle taken her cough had entirely stopped. After using Vinol she gained weight twenty-one pounds more than she ever weighed before. She is well."—Mrs. Edward Pinson.

Go at once to your neighborhood drug store and get the 'Discovery' in tablets or liquid and you'll be surprised at the way you look and feel.

Sticks in Their Mouths.

Lole had moved from the country in Kansas to Indianapolis, and on her first visit to her aunt's near Lebanon, was much interested in watching all the fatty animals and poultry. She pointed to the chickens and said: "We had chickens in Kansas, but they were not fat like these. They were all lean, with their long bills." We didn't have any of them that stuck with sticks in their mouths."—Indianapolis News.

Animals Did Not Starve.

Ella and Jim Brown were left out after school one day for some trifling offense and were kept in the room for an hour. Finally Ella called out to the meeting teacher: "Please, teacher, may Jim and I go home? We're awful hungry, and there's nothing to eat in the house. It was four days' treat."

"Why, Ella, what do you mean?" asked the teacher, in surprise.

"Why, teacher, you know Jim and I live in the country, and we have to walk in the direction of the cows, and we always eat our dinner with them. Jim was also leading a white bow-wow, and he had his dinner with him, and feeding shabby roasting like a nut. So I guess we have been four days without food, for we couldn't get anywhere near the cows."

"Why, you've been here about an hour since you ordered him. Have you been feeding the cows all that time, and never had much to eat for Dick?"

Ella looked up at her in surprise. "Why, he's pretty hard to keep fed—weighs 5 pr. gross!

Still not perfectly still.

"Yes, teacher," said Jim, presently, with just the faintest tremor in his voice.

"Yes, sometimes when I get tired, I'll speed all my life here."

"Now, sometimes when I get tired, I'll speed all my life here."

There was an accent on the "now" that fell upon the astonished ear.

"Jim," said the teacher, "you are the most careless, inattentive Indian boy I've ever had in school. Stay after school and write 'Now' a hundred times."

The accent strike our funny. But I'll tell you what I think. That poor, homeless, inattentive Indian boy has been living in the West. He has raced for life. That sort of thing means boy with no home ever to stay on a horse. With a 'Now' under his it of deep significance. Now, I'll bet Tenny say that with his title to date.—Indianapolis News.
