IN MEMORY

In loving remembrance of James T. Hardwick, who was born January 16, 1845, and died December 29, 1921.

Oh, how we miss you dear father,
Our home is without light
All is sad and lonely and
And everything is dull and gloomy,
A smiling face from us is gone.
A voice we hear no more,
A place in left vacant in our home
That will remain forevermore.
The grave has closed about thee
And enmeshed you from our sight,
But we know you reign with Jesus
Forever in the light.
Some day we hope to meet you
Where parting is no more;
How happy will be the greeting
As soft it had been before.
Weep no more for he is resting
Where pain and strife are known no more.

Safe in the arms of Jesus
He will await forevermore
Each day we are nearer our home,
near father.
Nearer than we have been before,
And some day we will fall asleep
And meet you on the heavenly shore
Wife and Children

THOSE WRIGLTING TURTLES

"Walter," said the customer, after waiting fifteen minutes for his order, "have you ever been to the Zoo?"

"No, sir."

"Well, you ought to go, you'd enjoy watching the turtles with jack."

THE REPAIR MAN, SPEAKING

"What's wrong with the old bus?" "Everything" said the auto repair man.

"Is that so? I suppose you can even find something wrong with the horse hay?"

"Sure. It needs tightening a little."
