WHY GIVE CHILDREN ORANGE JUICE?

Child Health Talks by Dr. Jeanita McF. Jennings, Assistant Director Bureau of Child Health, State Board of Health, Louisville, Ky.

Orange juice is the first food given the nursing baby. After the third month orange juice diluted with equal parts of boiled water is given in the mid morning between feeding. During the war when oranges were scarce it was found that tomato juice had the same properties as orange juice, and the results obtained both in this country and in Europe were good. In giving either orange juice or juice from canned tomatoes, after a small amount at first and dilute it with boiled water. Mothers say that their children cannot take orange juice, if they cannot it is because they are given the juice of half of an orange undiluted to begin with. Start with a teaspoonful of orange juice increase the amount to one tablespoonful by the end of the 6th month.

Most mothers know that orange juice should be given but they do not know why it is of value. Oranges contain Nature's most beneficial principal acid, which, strangely enough, is also an alkali when taken into the digestive system, but is alike in its effect in the body. Orange juice is slightly laxative, has some slight food value and contains the valuable vitamin which prevents the development of rickets and scurvy. Children given orange juice regularly for the first month are not so apt to develop rickets.

KENTUCKY FAVORED IN LAMB PRODUCTION

Kentucky occupies an advantageous position in the production of spring lambs, and, by maintaining and improving the quality of their lambs, shoppers in this state have before them an almost unlimited field, according to sentiment voiced by growers, butchers, packers and breeders at the recent annual spring lamb conference at the Experiment Station in Lexington.

Favored with mild winters and an abundance of blue grass and other feed, and relatively close to market, Kentucky sells a superior product of spring lambs at a time when there is a keen demand and little competition. Practically the sole problem is to produce a high quality of lamb, buyers and breeders are told growers.

The demand for prime spring lambs exceeds the supply in eastern cities, according to H. K. Nickell of New York, and will continue to increase, provided a high quality product can be secured. His comments, based on observations of Kentucky lambs, and considers them among the finest. Kentucky lambs, he says, butchers, packers and buyers are interested in the production of more and better lambs in this state. Blue Kentucky is favored in lamb production, the chief advantage of which is the pasture provided by blue grass, he said.

It was brought out at the conference that sheep and lambs have been selling this year at 1 per cent above their average price for 1931 while cattle have averaged only 57 per cent above the 1931 price, the bringing about their present status.

CHRISTMAS TREE FOR COMMUNITY

All Children in County Under 12 Year's Old Requested To Register At Once

MANY HAVE DONATED

The committee appointed by the Chamber of Commerce for the Community Christmas Tree to be held in the court house yard on Christmas eve, reports splendid progress in the raising of funds for the project during the past week, and there is little doubt but that the tree, the first to be held here, will be a success.

The tree will be put up in the court house yard and lighted up at five o'clock on Christmas eve. Every child who wants to receive gifts from the tree must register at the Ladies' rest room in the basement of the court house not later than Saturday night, December 20, in order that the committee will know how many packages to wrap up.

The Kentucky Utilities Co. has agreed to light the tree and furnish the electricity free of charge.

Not only are Carlisle people taking an interest in the tree, but farmer citizens have written about the matter. Dr. George C. King, formerly of Carlisle, writes from Manchester: "Christmas tree idea is the proper way to make a lot of the children happy and if permissible I would be delighted to donate some box of oranges. Yours for the old home town."

Contributions of money, candy, fruits or nuts may be sent to Judge A. B. Tilton, Mayor Paul D. Dunn, all or Grimes Caywood, the committee in charge of arrangements.

MERCURY ONE DAY EARLIER NEXT WEEK

On account of the fact that next Thursday, December 25, is a holiday and there will be no R. F. D. and in order to give The Mercury force a short Christmas holiday, next week's issue of The Mercury will go to press on Tuesday afternoon instead of Wednesday, and will reach our readers on Wednesday morning.

Merchants are requested to bring changes for their advertisements in by this date and not later than Saturday afternoon. All local items from correspondents and other communications must reach this office Saturday morning to insure publication.

Mail letters to Santa Claus to reach us by Saturday.

Local Receiving Plants Opened

Christie War houses Begin Receiving 1924 Crop For Pool

Receiving plants of the Burley Tobacco Growers Cooperative Marketing Association opened in Carlisle, Millersburg and Paris, Ky., yesterday to receive the 1924 crop. While only two warehouses, Burley Growers and Farmers No. 2, will open to receive leaf this year, it is believed that the association can be handled as heretofore in the two warehouses. As soon as the tobacco is graded it will be taken from the floors and hauled to the redrier.

The Growers, the first house opened, was almost filled with the first day's receipts. Ideal weather for stripping during the past several days has enabled farmers to prepare considerable part of their crop for market, and it is believed the houses will be kept filled throughout the receiving season.

BROKEN NECKS CAUSE DEATHS OF TWO MEN

Two Central Kentucky men came to their deaths in accidents and residents early Sunday morning. Both had broken necks.

Sam Shain, farmer living near Jackson, Breathitt county, died of a broken neck when he overturned a machine he was driving down off the road and into a ditch.

On the Jackson highway, near the Breathitt county line, Fred Hamilton, Spencer county farmer, tripped from the machine he was driving, overturned, stumbled and fell, sustaining a broken neck, causing almost instant death.

COLLEGE TO OFFER TWO SHORT COURSES

Short courses dealing with subjects of special interest to Kentucky farmers and others of this section will be offered by the College of Agriculture in January.

On account of greatly increased interest in dairying, a course in dairying will be offered the week of Jan. 12-17. It will present practical and usable information in the form of lectures, demonstrations, and discussions, designed to be helpful to dairymen, creamerymen and others interested in the production of milk, cream and butter.

Lectures and demonstrations will deal with judging dairy animals, feeding and cleaning, growing forage crops, the Babcock test, scoring dairy products, the operation of cream separators and other machinery, and other phases of the dairy business.

The following week Jan. 19-24 a course will be offered in marketing and cooperation. Marketing, cooperative organization and related subjects will be discussed, including the functions performed in getting the marketing processes, the classes of middlemen, methods of marketing and their functions, and methods of marketing specific farm products, such as live stock, wool, tobacco, dairy and poultry products.

In addition, the importance of grading, problems of supply, transportation questions, agricultural financing methods, and other factors influencing them, the sources and use of crop and market information, the agricultural situation and the outlook for the future will be discussed.

Any 16 years of age or over may attend the short courses. There will be no tuition, and textbooks will be furnished. Persons desiring further information should write to Thomas P. Cooper, College of Agriculture, Lexington, Ky.

OIL TAX BIG

The one cent production tax on crude oil will not the state affected, mately $125,000 during the present calendar year, as the tax has averaged about $10,000 a month during the first ten months of the year, according to reports on file with the state tax commission. The tax for November amounted to $10,243 the value of the production of 426,345 barrels being $1. 4,000.

JAMES JUDGE WINS $106 IN PREMIUMS

Moorefield Boy Takes Prizes On Cattle at Fat Stock Show in Louisville

MADE PROFIT ON CALF

Veteran cattle feeders of Kentucky and Tennessee went down to defeat before members of the boys' and girls' baby beef club at the annual Fat Stock show at the Bourbon Stock Yards in Louisville last week. James Robinson, 16 year old Boyle county youth, was the grand championship on individual steers with the Garrard county club won the carload championship.

James Judge, of Moorefield, was awarded a silver medal offered by the Institute of American Meat Packers for the best Hereford calf exhibited by club members. In 5 years of competition in this section by county calf clubs, Judge won first prize, Oldham county second prize and Garrard county third prize.

The prize for the steers was $125, and also won $50 in his group of counties. He won a fifty dollar gift in the "economy ring," this going for economical care of the animal. His ring was 25.25, which was $6.75 less than the next nearest competitor. He also won $10 in addition to the silver medal.

The Lexington boy in his edition of Monday, says of young Judge: "One of the most deserving boys in the club is James Judge, of Nicholas county. His county agent contends to get enough members to feed a carload so young Judge decided he would bring the feed with which to make him eligible for a number of the classes.

Tips from Hereford steers from his father's herd and fitted them. He won first under calf class, first for two feet bred in his group and if his best steer had been eligible for the individual steer ring he would have been a strong contender for two in that class. His five head sold for an average of $13.75 per hundred, higher than any other county exhibit. Judge also won third prize for economical cost of production. He went home very enthusiastic about the baby beef club and hopes that next year he will have a calf good enough to win a place in the ring."

The beef calf in the group of five fed by Judge weighed 545 pounds on Nov. 1 and 1,200 pounds the first of December, averaging a gain of 2 pounds per day. The cost him 9 cents per pound to feed, or $108 for the calf. He sold for $13.75 per hundred.
