O little town of Bethlehem,
How still we see thee lie!
Above thy deep and dreamless sleep
The silent stars go by;
Yet in thy dark streets shineth
The everlasting Light;
The hopes and fears of all the years
Are met in thee tonight.
—Phillip Brooks.

The Mercury is asked to make another appeal to the people of Nicholas for clothing for the needy children of this county. Mrs. Taylor, the county school superintendent informs us that but one package of clothing has been left at the office in response to the appeals made recently. Many children are so meanly clad that they are unable to attend school.

Surely the good people of this community will not let this appeal go unanswered at Christmas time. We suggest that you call Mrs. Taylor, learn the names of those children who need clothing and have your gift to one or more of them placed on the Community Tree this afternoon.

Whether you make your contribution in this manner or not, remember that children in your own county are suffering this bitter weather because of insufficient clothing, and act quickly.

"God Bless Us All."

"God bless us all!" said Tiny Tim, and so may we as we send you the first issue of The Mercury for the year 1925. It has been a busy year with us as with you, no doubt, and all of us well good. Divine Blessing if we have the problems of the New Year.

Those who should know predict a tremendous revival of business in 1925. It is to be a wonderfully fine year, they say—financial wonderful. And yet, while this may seem a most optimistic and rather the old year to look shabbier than ever before and start you all building new home everything. We know of no experience that even of an unusually prosperous year—in fact they must be considerably—before the average man feels inflation during a period of inflation."

The fact that piloting a country successfully through the vicissitudes of mid-summer, to a profound satisfaction and calls for profound satisfaction and admiration fruitful to bankers and editors who know all about money, with the people of ought to be good time on the one side and the Christmas of most hopeful kills on the other, to steer through the troublous waters of last fall, not either for our busy farmer friends or those who had kept tender into the toil on unbending ears and hang we turn around on Street—and, by far, we have been so regaling distance of shipping, check writers, and in this ease we are more effectuous than a mule in getting us afloat. Four cheers we may run aground, of "whack" for our friends—and them!

Oh, we always have got her own, and always will, and confident and wisest enjoying and every, when the old prove from the and the equally ancient gentleman eagler got its back up and will feed on us along about two hours after midnight.

Seriously we philosophic still, fully, we may say, with a reasonable degree of assurance, that The Mercury will visit you this time next year, provided you offer us sufficiently financially speaking, to accept of your hospitality. We hope so, for this piloting of a country newspaper is a pleasant, a precarious game, and has its compensations—at least of which is your approval of our efforts.

During the year now closing we can say that we have done our best to give you a creditable county paper. We have striven to be fair and temperate always in our expression of editorial opinion and to bring to you all the news that it fit to print. We trust that we have held the friendship and regard of all of our old friends, we hope we have made many new ones. However that may be, we say, with Tiny Tim, "God bless us all!" Our friendships are our greatest assets and in the spirit of the season The Mercury wishes you, one and all, a jolly, old fashioned, soul satisfying Christmas and a New Year bringing you health, plenty and contentment.

The Spirit Of Christmas.

"And there were in the same country, shepherds, abiding in the fields keeping watch over their flock by night.

And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them, and they were sore afraid.

And the angel said unto them, Fear not, for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy which shall be to all people.

For unto you is born this day in the city of David, a Saviour, which is Christ, the Lord.

And this shall be a sign unto you, Ye shall find the babe, wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger.

And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of heavenly host praising God and saying,

Glory to God in the highest and on earth peace, good will toward men."—Luke 2:1-14.

It is not natural that the Anglo-Saxon race of feasting and conviviality, which marked the celebration of the Yule, should enter our observance of Christmas. If riotous merry-making, too often boisterous in character, in commemoration of the birth of Christ seems incongruous, we must remember that custom is strong. Yet it seems to us that this day of all the days of the year, should be marked by joy and laughter and good will toward our fellow men. Somberness, a mien of melancholy piety is not to be found in the life or teachings of Jesus of Nazareth. His spirit pathies were with the poor, the afflicted, the oppressed. He lived the life of His people; joyed in their joys and wept with them in their afflictions. Publicans and sinners were human beings to Him—and he loved little children.

And today, as we celebrate the humble birth of the Carpenter's Son, the influence of this exceedingly human Divine Man comes to us under the guise of the tender myth of Santa Claus, in the feeling that causes us to pause for a moment in busy lives and think of others; in the peace that was proclaimed, when the angels sang to the wondering Judean shepherds.

Celebrate the day as you will. His is the spirit of Christmas

Washington Duke, father of the so-called "Duke of Durham, North Carolina," who recently promulgated the cause of education in his State some forty millions, came back from the Confederate army, penniless, except for fifty cents in Yankee silver and two blind mules. Yet with these assets he laid the foundation of the Duke fortune. "White mule" and "blind tigers" are terms he never heard about it. Or if they do, they will take metaphoric license with the parental calling like the daughter of a southern undertaker, who told her Eastern school friends that her father was a "Southern plaintiff" and when that "pa was a mule trader."

Apropos of synthetic Christmas "cheer," of the kind that rhymes so frequently and fatally with bier, and crowned "touch," guaranteed to put an asphalt coating on its victims "innards," not to speak of getting him on the asphalt for the count, Will Ardery, writing in the Paris Democrat, says:

Colonel Smithers was always in the habit of taking a chaser after his liquor. Recently, following a spree, the Colonel mixed something in a glass and drank it.

"Is that a chaser, Colonel," asked a friend.

"No, that is an antidote," said the Colonel sadly.

"Merry Christmas" is a pleasant and correct greeting, but the old familiar Christmas Gif " of the darkins has a ring about it that makes one remember the days when Christmas was Christmas. You rarely hear it, now, except from those of the "old school," who always managed to "fetch you" on Christmas morning. Their faith that if they "knocked you," the gif' would be forthcoming was usually justified.

Original broadcasting was from station E-V-E—Glasgow Times.

And although the original inner-is was not bothered by Adam but of interference in his reception, the old boy never learned the trick of "tunin' her out." If he did, he failed to pass the information on to his male descendants.

We wish you a Merry Christmas —if you care for such things—says the Cynthiana Democrat. And a Happy New Year—if you think it is worth while to continue the struggle.

Courage, brother. Think of the two-cents bathing suits at Atlantic City next summer, and carry on.

We refuse to make the obvious comment on the well-filled Christmas stocking, because several of our exchanges have already used the best ones and we abominate the dingy, mookie-dun colors in hosiery that Dame Fashion discovers for the fair sex these days, anyhow.

Last minute shoppers may solve their dilemma by sending the "all-the-year-round" present. The Mercury for fifty-two weeks. Write or telephone us and we will see that the subscription is entered in time to receive the first issue of the new year.

A GOOD YEAR COMING

Mr. John H. Perry, a gentleman whose judgment upon business goes is always valuable, looks to a year 1925 as a banner business year, and sounds his hymn of confidence as follows:

With America a vital possession of more than one-half of the entire world's gold supply, with the World War problems substantially all , readjusted, with Labor all employed at profitable wages, with the products of the farm at least commanding reasonably good prices, with interest on our foreign debts at least being partially paid, with our taxes diminishing; with the cost of government gradually decreasing from the World War period, with enormous orders heretofore held in abeyance and distributors, manufacturers and jobbers generally, with optimism alive and vibrant, 1925 is going to be the greatest year for business in the history of America.

Subject to the chance of time and tide to which we all are subject, the businessmen and farmers of America may with confidence look forward to the new year. At any rate, confidence is in the air. We are pleased that it is so.—Louisville Herald.

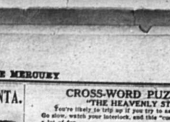
LETTERS TO SANTA.



Bethel, Ky., Dec. 18, 1924.
Dear Santa Claus:
I am a little boy seven years old I go to school at Bethel Fisi school My teacher's name is Miss Mary Cupps. I want you to bring me a pistol and some caps and don't forget my little brothers, and my aunt Gladys. I want a writer watch that will run Don't forget papa and mama. Bring them some thing also. Bring me some candy, nuts and all kinds of fruit. Your little boy, William Shields.

Dec. 1924.

Dear Santa:
As we are going to have a Christmas tree at our school house and one at the Baptist church if you have anything for me please put it on one of them so we did not have any Christmas last year. Just anything you give us this Christmas will please me. Please remember ever child Santa. J. C. Flowers.

Carlisle, Ky., Dec. 16, 1924.
Dear Santa,
I am a little four year old and would like very much for you to call around and see me. I have been real good this time with the expectation of you bringing me a little auto with a scratch and go racer. Also I want a drum so I can play with mother and daddy and Santa whatever you do don't forget my little cousin Maxine, she lives at Beren. But I know you can find the place alright. Bring her some catchy, orange apples and nuts as well as myself. I will say Santa Claus. Don't forget. Your little boy, Harold B. Rogers.

Dec. 1924.

Dear Santa Claus:
As last Christmas was a sad one for me, I am hoping that we had no Xmas. Will you please bring me some bright for me. I go to school every day I will be glad to supply the needs of the Editor's offspring. The money, I suppose, will be used for the high-ways and byways and it putteth me in a bad light with his creditors.

Cannot then resist the plea that the wife and the children make on us. Yield not to the temptation to put off paying the subscription one month. Be prompt to meet your obligations lest the Editor's children be forced to forego pleasures that you can afford them by your carelessness in this trivial matter. Never the Editor from the evil that besetteth him because of his ardiness, else he may be prompted to saying all manner of evil things about thee. Let not thy angry passing rise at this gentle reminder, at then cover for the paper thy sins and thee back beyond those sixty months past, since memory succeeds it and it is no fault of he editor. Come forth and pay which thou owest and receive he blessings assured thee—De[illegible].

BIRD IN HAND WORTH TWO IN THE BUSH

(Flemingsburg Gazette)

Ever since we were a small boy we have been reading of the promises that certain so-called heirs have of getting a fortune in the heart of New York worth anywhere from fifty billion in a couple or so of billion dollars. Once in a while the prospectors have a meeting to discuss the matter, always ending in a call for more expenses, and so the matter goes on from generation to generation with some one absorbing the expense money and the squatters in the land getting the fortune. Just now a meeting of the heirs is being held in Washington, the hat and are receiving flattering reports from the promoters.

HOW TO SOLVE A CROSS-WORD PUZZLE

When the correct letters are placed in the squares of this puzzle with spell words both vertically and horizontally. The first letter in each word is indicated by a number, which refers to the definition of the word to be found. Thus, under the heading "Horizontal" Across a word, column 10, the white square up to the first black squares to the right, and 1 under "Vertical" Down a word, word within, all the letters in the next block are letters. No letters go to the black squares. All words used are dictionary words. Proper names, abbreviations, foreign words, obsolete words, terms and obsolete forms are indicated in the definitions.

DID YOU SOLVE NUMBER 11 THEN TRY NUMBER 2

Have you gotten into the "puzzle-zel" class? Get a good, sharp pencil and try your hand at this fascinating game. Last week some of our readers had trouble with No. 1, under Horizontal words. If you will consult Webster, however, you will find that one meaning of the word, "lard," is "to fatten."

As a cue for beginners this week, Number 1, Vertical is CABALA.

We wish to convey to you all that Accumulation of Good Wishes which have gone unexpressed throughout the year.

That you may have a Merry Christmas and Abundant Prosperity During the New Year is the wish of

A novel plan is being tried out in the rural schools of Bourbon county this year. The schools close on December 18 and will reopen until March 19, in order that the children will not be required to attend school during the winter months.

Inasmuch as "a green Christmas makes a fat graveyard," according to the old saying, principals of a number of the county schools have decided to observe the "Uncle" Marion Holt, Howard Veach, "Bonnie" Allen, the editor of The Mercury and other of our elder citizens.

The postoffice department Monday issued a ruling that the offering of prizes by newspapers and other publications for solution of cross word puzzles is the order such solutions are received violation of the postal laws and prohibits such publications from being circulated in the mails.

Only five days remain in which to pay state and county taxes and Sheriff Gansse has announced that the penalty will be added on January 1. A large amount of taxes remain to be paid, and unless taxpayers are more prompt than they have been during the past few weeks there will be many delinquents.

Belated Christmas shoppers can find no more acceptable gift to send to a friend than The Mercury for a year. This is one gift that will be appreciated if a week or two late and it will be mailed to each person to whom the paper is sent, informing them of the source of the gift. A subscription received any time this week will be in time for next week's issue.

Circuit Clerk L. E. Hughes Saturday night issued a temporary restraining order against Sheriff Ingold to prevent him from selling his tobacco other than to the Burley Tobacco Growers Cooperative Marketing Association. Russell is a tenant on the farm of Mrs. Daisy Huddleson on the Upper Jacksitown road. He is not a member of the pool, but the contract of Mrs. Huddleson, who is a member of the association, guarantees all tobacco raised on her land to be sold through the association. The suit was brought jointly by the association and Mrs. Huddleson.

MARRIAGES

CRAWFORD-CRAWFORD.—Mr. Clyde Crawford and Mr. Bessie Mason Crawford, both of Bourbon and Valley vicinity, were married at Maysville on December 17 by Magistrate Fred W. Bauer.

PATTON-DAY.—Miss Anna B. Patton and Mr. Thomas Day, both of Bourbon county, were united in marriage at the home of the officiating minister, Rev. J. L. Crystal, in this city, December 17. Following the ceremony they left for New Orleans for several weeks' honeymoon trip.

HICKS-RACE.—A wedding which was a pleasant surprise to many friends of the groom here was solemnized Saturday, December 13, when Miss Lucille Hicks became the bride of Dr. William Harding Race, local dentist. The ceremony was a very quiet affair, only members of the immediate family being present. The bride, who was a former student of Transylvania College, is a well known here where she frequently visited friends while attending the Lexington school. She is an attractive and accomplished young woman. Dr. Race is a native of this county and has been located in Carlisle for the past year, having moved to Carlisle from Paris. Dr. and Mrs. Race returned home on Monday and have leased the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Myers Fuller on North street for the winter. Dr. Race has many friends during his stay in Carlisle, who extend congratulations.

St. JOHN'S RECTORY

Christmas (from the words Christ and mass) will be solemnly celebrated by the Catholics of Nicholas County by a Mass at midnight Dec. 24th, which will start at 12 P. M., and during the same Christmas hymns will be rendered by the choir. A sermon will be preached by Father Bauer, Pastor.

This is the first time in the history of the congregation that Midnight Mass has taken place. All are invited to join us in the worship of the New Born King, Christ our Saviour.

Rev. Fred E. Bauer, Pastor.

Pollie Baker, 26, school teacher in Pittsburgh county, was arrested last week on a warrant charging him with a statutory offense against a thirteen year old girl who attended his school.

The Woolworth building, the tip of which is 784 feet above the street, is to be tested to settle rumors that its lower stays in a hard wind.
