I was miserable with backache at times and I had dizzy spells and had to grasp something for fear of falling. My kidneys were weak and unnatural and I felt tired and nervous. Doan's Pills were recommended to me so I went to Thomas' Pharmacy and got three boxes. After using them my kidneys became healthy and regular in action, and the trouble with left entirely." HARPER'S GARAGE

HON. FRED M. VINSON
The Big Sandy News (Louisa, Ky.) says:
Without disparagement to other candidates we sincerely assert that the Democratic committee could not have made a better nomination for governor than that of Hon. Fred M. Vinson.
He has the mentality, character, education, judgment, temperament, energy and ambition necessary to the making of an ideal Democratic executive. Satisfactory service and traits come to constituents only through an official of this kind. He has early beyond these qualities been apparent in Fred Vinson. The editor of the News knows his history every step of the way and therefore can not make the eulogy need too strong. We know that he has made his own way and has won at every point. He denied him self the luxuries of life and worked his way through college.
In the common schools and high school he was at the head of his classes. In college he won all the honors and prizes available to him. At Centre College, Danville, he was the Oratorial Sparty Alumni prize for the highest general average of a senior. He took three prizes while in the law course.
Centre College turns from school 12 years ago he began the practice of law, and his home people gave a real practical demonstration of their confidence in his ability by electing him a remarkably liberal share of their legal business to him and he has never failed to justify their confidence. He now ranks as one of the best lawyers in Eastern Kentucky.
Two years ago he was elected Democratic floor leader of the house, a district normally Republican by 1,200 votes. Here, too, his executive position was demonstrated, among other things, in securing the vote. He can be depended upon to serve the people of the 30th district in the most satisfactory manner.
