SAYS FARMERS SHOULD CUT PRODUCTION COST

Prof. W. D. Nicholls of the department of farm economics of the Kentucky Experiment Station, who has been studying methods practiced by successful farmers, believes that more attention should be given to producing at a lower cost. The price tendency for the next few years probably will be downward, he says, which means that emphasis must be placed on economy and control of expenses. Here are some of his suggestions:

"Give greater attention to conserving the soil; it costs nearly as much to cultivate a thin acre as a fertile acre, while the fertile acre produces at half the cost per bushel.

"Get the most out of farm-grown fertilizers by doctoring the thin places in the fields with manure, cornstalks, rotted straw and other litter. Make greater use of legumes like red clover, cowpeas and soy beans.

"Reduce the cultivated acreage. Stop cultivating the thinner land and allow that to rest in grass and clover until prices improve.

"Save money by growing more garden produce for the home use and more home-grown feeds for the livestock.

"Save expenses by doing your own repairing; make your own fences, gates and other equipment. Give more attention to the saving of labor. Put tools and equipment in repair several weeks before they are to be used. Order repairs and farm supplies early and avoid loss of time in the rush season.

"Plan ahead for each particular job. If planting corn is the job, see that the planter is in working order, and that the seed is ready.

"When going to the field to plow, take an extra point and a wrench to put it on with. This may save a trip to the house or to town, to get a new point.

"Carry a pocket memorandum book, in which to set down the jobs to be done on a rainy day. Remember that the surest way to reduce the cost of labor is to keep with the hired man and direct him while you work. Benjamin Franklin said, 'He who would by the plow thrive, himself must either hold or drive.'

"Consider the saving of labor by having one man drive more horses. Consider the use of the three-horse breaking plow. Replace the one-horse cultivator with the two-horse cultivator wherever practicable.

"Do the work at the proper time. A half day's work with the weeder or harrow when the weeds are just starting will do more good than two days' work later when the weeds are well started.

"Study carefully how to reduce the cost of horse work. Many Kentucky farmers get less than 75 days' work per horse in a year, and sometimes less than 50 days. Good farmers often get more than twice as many days' work as the average of their neighbors, thereby cutting the cost of their team labor in half.

"Reduce the expenses of keeping work stock by turning them out on pasture and feeding lightly when not at hard work. Carry the work stock through the late fall and winter on cheap roughage, and save the good hay for the time when the teams are working hard.

"Increase the farm income by improving the farm layout. Put the scattering farmer removed a tumbledown shack from between two good-sized fields, ground the lumber and applied it to the land, saved fence and clover and doubled the yield. Another farmer edged a ticket out of the middle of a field, thereby doing away with short rows and corners. This work was done at odd times and with regular farm labor at practically no cash outlay."

COWS SUFFER IN SUMMER DROUTH

Milk cows in many parts of Kentucky have been suffering from the usual summer drouth. Some farmers decided last spring to plant again with grass alone for another summer says Prof. J. J. Hooker, head of the dairy department at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station, and their cows now are hungry as they search over the parched pastures for a mouthful of food.

"Such cows show the first stages of starvation, for they are thin and poor. In a few weeks they will show the second stages of starvation, with their harsh coats of once burred hair and staring eyes. Such fed grass alone will be almost dry before the fall rains come.

Other farmers decided this year to plant a patch of sweet clover or cowpeas, and their cows now are wading in green pastures. Experiments at the Kentucky Experiment Station have been pastoring on forty acres of sweet clover since July 1, and they are still knee deep in clover. These cows are holding up good in their milk flow, despite the hot weather and flies.

CENTER COLLEGE WILL HAVE FAST ELEVEN

Danville, Ky., Aug. 11—Centre College's fast ball machine this fall will not be as experienced as last year but is likely to be faster and more of a scoring machine, J. B. Biles, faculty chairman, said today. Athletic officials at Centre, while optimistic over the season's prospects do not believe this year's team will be as strong as that which took the field last fall.

The varsity squad was heavily hit this season by graduation and it will be necessary for the coaches to develop new men, usually a bad thing that does not tell—for an immediate winning combination. Mr. Biles said, however, the entire freshman squad looks like varsity material.

Recently a realignment of athletic coaches was made here. E. L. Myers head motor last year, will be chief strategist this season. He will be assisted by W. P. Shadoan. Both are graduates of Centre.

The praying Colonels have only nine letter men returning to the eleven this fall. They include W. D. Skidmore, captain-elect for 1926. He is 21 years old and has played tackle two years. He is a student in the College of Liberal Arts.

Other letter men are McClure, end; Darcille; Wilson, halfback; Marion; Faust, fullback; Shepherd, guard, Louisville; Kaplin, tackle; Frankfort; Riker, tackle, Mt. Thomas; Robertson, halfback, Cincinnati; and Hamilton, guard, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Mr. Biles said the varsity squad probably would average 170 pounds.

Pictures of ballots fired from a revolver now are being taken by a special speed camera.

NOTICE OF ELECTION TO MEMBERS OF THE BURLEY TOBACCO GROWERS' CO-OPERATIVE ASSOCIATION.

To Our Members—

Pursuant to the rules of the Board of Directors, you are hereby notified to assemble in mass meetings at the Court House in the county in which you reside, Saturday, August 22nd, 1925, at 2 o'clock P. M. for the purpose of nominating candidates to be voted for as delegates to the primary election. You are also to vote for as delegates to the primary election. You are also to vote for a director in your district. The meeting will be held in the County Court room of the Court House and will be presided over by the County Judge. The delegates elected at said meeting are to meet at the Court House in the County Seat in the county casting the largest number of votes in such district, at 2 o'clock P. M. Monday, September 21st, 1925, at which time and delegates will select a Director for your district.

The basis of representation in the election of Directors shall be as follows: Each county shall be one full vote for each one million pounds of tobacco delivered out of the 1924 crop of tobacco to the Association by such county. When the quantity of tobacco so delivered runs into fractional parts of one million pounds, then the representatives of such county shall be in exact proportion to such fractional part of one million pounds.

The number of candidates to be voted for as delegates to be selected in the primary election of September 19th, 1925, should be as follows: Each county shall be entitled to vote for as many candidates as there are delegates to be selected in the primary election of September 19th, 1925, should be carried at the mass conventions of August 22nd, 1925, and the names so selected in such county will be printed upon the ballot for that county, and a ballot number given to each.

Each member is entitled to one vote for each share of stock held by him or her; and the ballot voted by him or her must be signed and witnessed by the members of the election, or mailed to said officers before the hour of 2 o'clock P. M. Monday, September 19th, 1925.

Mass meetings of August 22nd, 1925, will be called to order by a member of the County Committee of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association, and will elect their own officers, including three committeemen members to act with the committee of September 19th, 1925.

Directions as to the chairmen and secretaries, and the names of all the candidates selected to be voted for in the primary election of September 19th, 1925, and the names of the officers selected to preside over the mass meetings of August 22nd, 1925, and the duties of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association, and the duties of the officers selected to preside over the primary election of September 21st, will be certified to the President of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association, and the chairman of said convention immediately after the meeting of September 21st, and will be published in the official organ of the Association, and a copy thereof will be mailed to each member. It is our desire to have at least 10 per cent of the membership of each county present at the mass meetings of August 22nd, 1925, and the officers will deliver to him or her one ballot for each share of stock held by him or her, and the member will be required to vote such ballot either in person or mail it to the officers before the hour of 2 o'clock P. M. Monday, September 19th, 1925.

By order of the Board of Directors of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association.

ATTEST: C. A. STONE, President and Gen. Mgr.
H. LEE HARLEY, Secretary and Treasurer.

THE old spirit lives. In a household where there are two fine little children, the spirit is not suddenly ill. A good neighbor took the little ones for the time being. Her quarters were not large, but had no spare bedroom. But she did have a Davenport Bed in the living room, and those two little folks lacked nothing in comfort.

What a boon a good piece of furniture like that is, on occasions that call for quick thinking and quick planning.

MELON FEASTING PROVES ENJOYABLE

Weather Cute Down Crowd But Those Who Came Felt Well Repaid

NOTCH, HUTSELL TALK

Despite threatening skies and the shower which for a time threatened to disrupt the gathering, the Watermelon Feast, given by the Chamber of Commerce at the water-works reservoir last Thursday evening proved enjoyable to some thirty-five or forty members who attended.

Electric lights were strung over two long tables, which were placed in the trough of the spillway. The fruit was eaten in long stages and all "fed to" in primitive darky fashion, on a knife and fingers in lieu of forks. The melons had been picked by an expert and were delicious.

Following the fruity feast, the meeting was called to order by U. M. Swinford, vice president of the organization, who presided in the absence of President Ben Hutsell, who was detained by business.

Mr. Swinford introduced Mr. W. J. Vaughn, a sunday school worker, of Louisville, who talked on the occasion that just such a body of men, as those present, could "get anything they wanted" for their town, if they were strong enough and worked together. Mr. Vaughn declared that he could not make a speech without constantly touching upon sunday school work, which was very near to his heart. He told an amusing story of a wager made once in Kentucky that a certain old Baptist minister could not be given a text from the Bible upon which he could not preach and he would ultimately make the text bear upon the subject of business. The old fellow was given a text from the first chapter of Genesis, the first word, relative to the creation of the earth and the first half of the word "wheres." God created the earth one-fourth land and three-fourths water, it will be seen, and made abundant provision for happiness."

George Motch, a former Carlisle boy, now residing from Versailles was next introduced as the "daddy of the Carlisle Chamber of Commerce." Mr. Motch having been a faithful worker in the organization of the local club. After expressing his devotion to his home town, Mr. Motch stressed the value of co-operation in community work and heartily endorsed the statement of Mr. Vaughn that a body of men such as this could get anything they wanted for their town, if they only united strong enough and resorted to team work. He concluded his remarks with the "hobby," the placing of the town of Carlisle on a main highway from Lexington to Carlisle, to Flemingsburg, Maysville, Ashland and Huntington, W. Va. Ford Announces Improved Bodies

Changes Are Most Pronounced Since Manufacture Started. Closed Bodies In Colors

Body changes and chassis refinements more pronounced than in models effective at inception of the Model T chassis were announced by the Ford Motor Company Monday. There will be no advance in price, it was announced, although the cost of the improvements in both open and closed models are high. Closed steel bodies on a lowered chassis, completely equipped with safety glass types, a change from black in color and closed bodies will be offered in newly designed seats and larger, more powerful motor.

Longer lines, effected through higher radiator and windshield and cowl and bodies are apparent in all the improved models, the changes being pronounced in the open types.

While closed bodies will be finished in harmonious colors, the open models will retain radiators. The coupe and tudor bodies are finished in Ford green, while the fordor is rich Windsor maroon.

Greater comfort is provided in all types by larger compartments, more amply cushioned seats and more leg room. Brake and clutch pedals are wider and more generously spaced.

Touring and runabouts have two doors. Curtains, held secure by snap fasteners, are provided. Balloon tires are now standard equipment.

"GASSING" BANK BANDITS

Writing the Owingsville News-Outlook relative to an article which had appeared in that paper concerning the production of hock vessels from rubbers by the installation of automatic poisoning devices on the bank at Salt Lick, Ky., writes the paper:

"We notice in the News-Outlook's issue of the Outlook the article "Now Turn to Yeggs" having been brought about by gas or chemical resistances being installed in Bank vaults.

"Wish to say that the Salt Lick Deposit bank has had this gas system installed in their vault, now for almost a year. The vault door is wired (four inches from inside door) with airtight wire, this wire is a pressure of 70 lbs., when the wire is broken or broken, which would have to be done before the vault door could be opened. This hits a trigger with the seventy pounds pressure and a plunger forces the bottles of gas, tear, smoke and a gas that will put a cow to sleep for days and these three gases when mixed form a foam that is so violent that it has to leave empty-handed, as perhaps in another minute the vault men he meets with this gas in existance which he can not combat.

Production Of Tobacco Reduced

Stands of Corn, Wheat, Rye And Barley Good In August 1 Estimate

Potato Yield Smaller

Increased estimates for Kentucky's corn, tobacco, hay and Irish potatoes, and a reduced production of tobacco as compared with 1924, feature the August 1 crop report of the Kentucky and United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics issued the report. The estimates were based on condition as of August 1. Production estimates were based on August 1 conditions.

Tobacco in Kentucky shows a decrease from 1924, chiefly because of decreased acreage this year. The probable production of all types in this state, it was estimated is 387,944,999 pounds, compared with 434,000,000 pounds in 1924, 400,000 pounds July 1; 419,583,000 pounds in 1923, and a five year average production, 1919-24 inclusive, 394,000,000 pounds. Total United States production last year, was 1,319,874,000 pounds, and annual production, 1919-24 inclusive.

Probable corn production in Kentucky was estimated at 59,241,000 bushels, based on conditions this month a 7,924,000 bushels compared with a crop last year of 51,317,000 bushels and a production last year in Kentucky of 4,346,000 bushels.

HUSBAND STABS NEGRESS TO DEATH AT WINCHESTER

Winchester, Aug. 11—Mrs. Ida Hedgepeth, negress, was stabbed to death last Saturday evening by her husband, Dewey Williams, cook for a railroad construction camp, while a negro crowd looked on at the union station in Winchester. The woman was preparing to leave her home because, according to the police, she had learned about some of her husband. Williams followed her to the depot and attacked her immediately, fatally wounding her before he could be stopped.

Lexington Buildings Suffer Heavy Damage From Fire On East Main Street Monday

Fire originating in a one-story frame shed in the rear of the Moise building on East Main street in Lexington, Monday, which flames quickly spread, damaged the building and contents to the extent of $75,000, before the fire was got under control. The flames licked into the shed where the top of the Kentucky theatre, next door, could be seen throughout the city. No damage was done to the theatre building.

Frank Barnes, railroad fireman, who lives at 1126 Main, said he saw a young man from the shed as the flames started leaping from the building hurst into flames.

B. F. Sheeley, assistant chief of the fire department, said the fire was from a ladder and sustained serious injuries.

Old School Books Not Exchangeable

Contract Agreement Expired July 15. Little Exchanging Was Ever Done Here

Mrs. Eda Taylor, county school superintendent, has issued a statement relative to the exchange of old text books, terms of contracts with schools, provisional teachers and several matters.

The circular states that the privilege of exchanging old books for new under the 1924 contract expired July 1. Superintendents and dealers can not look to publishers for reimbursement, if they have old books in exchange hereafter.

Emergency schools must continue for seven months, just as the regular schools, and provisional teachers, in two small districts, the County Board of Education may allow them to continue if there, giving each school three and one-half months of per cent.

The circular reminds superintendents that their biennial reports are due and it is necessary to have them by the department can publish as report by the Legislature.

Mrs. Taylor also reminds the superintendents which the Association which the Burley territory has been divided, and the growers will (Continued on last page)

Increase Is Seen In Wheat Acreage

4,094,000 Acres Increase In Winter Wheat Acreage Is Forecast

An intended increase of 4,094,000 or 9.7 per cent, in the acreage of winter wheat to be sown this fall compared with the acreage sown last fall, is indicated by reports received by the United States Department of Agriculture from 24,000 crop reporters were mailed August 1 and show the acreage which these farmers have sowed on their own farms last fall and the acreage which they intended to sow this fall.

If the acreage sown to winter wheat in the United States this fall is increased 9.7 per cent as compared with last year, the total sown acreage would be 46,411,000 acres, last fall 42,317,000 acres were sown to winter wheat and 32,813,000 acres were left for harvest, there having been an abandonment of 22.5 per cent.

The indicated intended sowing this fall is 2.2 per cent greater than the pre-war (1909-1913) average sowing, and 23,594,000 acres, or 8.1 per cent, more than the average harvested fall sowing of 42,- 970,000 acres for the years 1914-1923, and 2.5 per cent more than the average annual fall sowing of 44,854,000 acres for the years 1919-1923.

The average annual abandonment of winter wheat acreage for the past ten years has been 12.9 per cent, the reduction in acreage due to abandonment ranging from 1.1 to 28.2 per cent. If the average annual abandonment should occur this winter, it would leave from the intended sowings about 40,454,000 acres to be harvested next summer compared with 32,813,000 acres of winter wheat harvested this year, or 23.2 per cent more.

Reports have been reported by farmers on August 1 as then intended sowings of winter wheat are based in their plantings over the previous years. The 1924 crop of winter wheat actually sown in the United States, however, was the smallest since the year 1894, or 6.5 per cent, over the average sowings for the previous ten years, (August 1923) the reported intended sowings indicated a decrease of 13.5 per cent compared with the preceding year, but the intents of actual sowings represents an increase of 13.8 per cent.
