SO MIGHT IT BE.

Since the recent seventy-five million dollar supplementation, the Government who raises the question of how long is a rural community would find the sport of flogging an enforced bull with a bit of red flannel equally as safe and sane as about as popular with his constituents. We aren't going to do that, suggest a bond issue, or fling a millionaire over for the love of it, but we do think that a little spring tonic in the offing, like fertilizer for soil and growing and cultivating April days of sunshine and rain, when the fish seem to rise like they only hear the bullet of the first spring song of the meadow lark, and kindling to the sun's warming with gleeful abandon, would be much preferred gift of excursion boats or chicken suppers.

But then it would seem a pity to spoil the graceful "breathing spell" we are enjoying between the "strenuous" period of last year and the certain bitterness of the campaign period to come. In the meantime we don't suppose we'll be disturbed much about the most vulnerable spot—the pocketbook, so we won't sing about it. Nor do we "demand, demand, demand" because we are enjoying the "normalcy" we demanded, and anything further we might demand would be such a "return to normalcy" as to be unrecognizable. Which reminds us of the fact that a lamb is the symbol of the Democratic party, which, if we remember correctly, is the party that "kept us out of war," and the lamb now is selling for $15 per cwt. Five boys attended Junior Week at Georgetown College from the county, and seven hundred pure-bred eggs were hatched in the poultry raising contest of the county. Seventy-two poultry flocks were culled. Five orchards were organized, bearing fruit crops, where neighboring orchards, unorganized, bore inferior and small fruit. Seventeen boys were organized in the Lunch Club, shipping 114 lambs to the Louisville show, where they sold for 14½ cents. The lambs netted
