Orchard Spraying and Pruning Demonstration

On Saturday afternoon, January 31, beginning at about two o'clock, I will conduct a spraying and pruning demonstration in the orchard belonging to Judge Harry Kennedy near the city school building in Carlisle. Mr. W. W. Magill from the Ensings of Agriculture will be present to assist with this demonstration, to show the proper method of spraying and pruning, and will also explain in detail the spraying material and the kind of outfit required to do successful work. Anyone who owns an orchard and is interested in the production of fruit either for home use or market can certainly spend a profitable hour with us in this orchard on Saturday afternoon. This work will be done as announced unless it is raining or severely cold, so plan now to attend and come prepared to ask questions.

Alfalfa, in Nicholas County

In talking with Mr. Gilbert Bedford last week, I was much surprised to learn that he has been growing alfalfa in this county for about six-teen years. He began without experience by sowing his first patch in August after cultivating the ground during the summer. This sowing proved a failure so he decided to try spring sowing. Since that time he has been sowing fifteen pounds of alfalfa and one bushel of oats per acre, the seeding being done in the latter part of April, on ground that has been well prepared. Mr. Sellers states that he had to reseed his fields by sowing the oats and then sowing the alfalfa by seeding both ways and covering the seed by rolling or cultivating lightly.

The main point with the alfalfa seems to protect the crop and further-more a good crop of feed that would be lost if the alfalfa was pastured. This crop of oats should be cut when ripe and not allowed to go down as the young alfalfa. By mowing the oats off one cuts a good amount of the alfalfa with the oats, thus adding to the value of the cut crop as feed.

Many times, after the oats is cut, a fair cutting of alfalfa may be taken off. This can be done so long as time enough is given to allow the alfalfa before freezing weather to allow it to make a six inch growth for protection during the winter, thus preventing winter killing.

Mr. Sellers says that curing alfalfa is not a difficult job; he finds that the best quality hay can be put up by allowing the hay to dry thoroughly in the swath, when dry rake and shock, then allow it to stand a day or two until it begins to heat. While it is heating, put it in the barn or stack, during this heating period it will be tough and the leaves will not shatter, also the natural green color will remain in the hay.

Ordinarily Mr. Sellers spends three days per year harvesting the crop from an acre of alfalfa and he estimates that the yield will range between three and five tons of hay per year from an acre. Today he could sell his alfalfa hay for $18 per ton.

In his experience alfalfa does best on limestone land that slopes gently to the South or East, however, the land should be free from drop and should either have a firm clay or limestone underlying.

At a fund for sharp, cattle or horses when three cents cannot be surpassed.

A good field of alfalfa will increase the value of any farm and it can be grown easily on most of the soils of the county. There is always a ready market for any surplus hay that may be produced, and now it is alfalfa with onto the spring; such is the advice given by one who is experienced in the production of alfalfa.

GARDENS SHOULD BE PLANNED EARLY

The trouble with a good many gardens is that they are too often last-minute affairs. A garden, at its best, will furnish vegetables for some form the year around. It is enough space can be provided. Even where space is no object, and even in cases where the garden is actually large enough the supply of vegetables is by far too scanty in some parts of the season and entirely out of all others.

Often the fault lies with the varieties chosen. The matter of seed buying is put off until the spring weather comes, and after more provident gardeners have started the choice varieties. What is left is sometimes quite unsuited to the garden's an uncertain thing.

Often the method of fertilizing is at fault. Garden crops are heavy all alike in the food they require, and indiscriminate top dressing with-out a measure may result in tomatoes and potatoes with splendid tops but no fruit to speak of, and radishes and turnips with just enough fruit to keep them from blowing away. Yet, in the same garden, the lettuce, onions and greens may be pitiful-ly out small and quite disappointing.

Proper garden planning will eliminate these troubles. Begin by making a list of the vegetables you like best. Then, with a plan of the garden adapted to that budget. The seed requirements may be worked out, and the seed secured before the spring rush. Then, with the fertilizer requirements of the various crops should be learned by-hand, and fertilizing materials to balance up the manure provided. At the same time, equipment and materials for fighting disease and insects can be inventory and properly cleaned, garden begun, as special tools secured, and the garden plan will not be caught unawares.

All this in garden planning and this will mean the difference between a good garden and a poor one. To help Kentucky gardeners plan their gardens, a budget and a plan to fit it have been worked out, and can be had by writing to the College of Agriculture, Lexington, for it.

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING

GROWS

(Hitchcliffian News)

The advertising revenues of the Saturday Evening Post increased from $4,000 in 1923 to $72,000,000 in 1924, and were the largest of any year since the war boom. The New York Times which leads all newspapers in this country in advertising lineage, and all the papers except the Hearst journals, in circulation, gets $1,750 to $2,000 a page. It has a daily circulation of 400,000 and a Sunday circulation of more than 600,000. Its advertising rate, per subscriber, is nearly twice as high as that of The News. It might be remarked incidentally.

The New York newspapers have been able to attain anything like the subscription lists that the London papers possess. For instance, the London Daily mail has the prodigious circulation of 1,500,000, or nearly the population of a small state. The Daily Mirror has 1,000,000 and the Daily Herald 1,000,000. Each of these papers has a page to its advertisers.

RESULTS THAT LAST!

Proven by Carlisle People.

Thousands of Kidney sufferers have tried remedy after remedy with little more than temporary benefit. That's mighty discouraging! But one kidney remedy has earned a reputation for lasting results and Carlisle people can tell you the name—Doan's Kidney Pills.

Read the experience of one who used Doan's Pills years ago and publicly confirmed it recently:

James Barlow, prop., jack boat line, 217 Derrer Ave., Carlisle, says: "I had a deep-seated pain through the center of my back which put me past going. I was light-headed and dizzy spells came over me when black specks swam before my eyes. As soon as I began using Doan's Pills from Turner's Old Drug Store, I was relieved and three boxes cured me." (Statement given November 19, 1920).

On May 3, 1924, Mr. Barlow added: "The cure Doan's Pills made for me has lasted and I am glad to back up my former statement." 60c, at all dealers. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

POOL MAKES SALE OF SIXTY MILLION

Liggett & Myers Take Biggest Amount in Sale of Leaf By Association

$15,000,000 PAID IN DEAL

Another sale of approximately sixty million pounds of tobacco by the Burley Tobacco Growers Co-operative Marketing Association to the leading manufacturers of the United States was announced last Thursday night by President and General Manager James C. Stone, of the Lexington organization.

The Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company purchased approximately 60,000,000 pounds, part from the 1923 crop and part from that of 1924. The American Tobacco Company bought about 5,000,000 pounds and the P. Lorillard Company 2,- 500,000 pounds, both from the 1924 crop, and the Penn Tobacco Company took 400,000 pounds from the 1924 crop. The sales will start immediately, President Stone announced.

Association prices were paid for the tobacco sold and the total value of money involved is approximately $15,000,000, it was said by Mr. Stone. A. Walker, vice president of the leaf department of the Liggett & Myers Company, represented the company in the negotiations.

The sales announced last week made a total of approximately 100 pounds of burley tobacco that has been sold by President Stone. There also is leaf of the sales department of the burley association, since December 1, which would make approximately 120,000,000 pounds.

The sales announced Thursday night leave the association with sufficient condition, it was said, with little more than 100,000,000 pounds of the 1923 crop as it started the season with and with many millions stored already sold.

Up to the beginning of the 1924 season the burley cooperative had received approximately $45,000,000 pounds. It had paid to its members, the owners of the tobacco an average of 18 cents per pound on all of it and had paid out $36,- 000,000 from which to make final payments when it was sold.

Dismisses Suit Against Hollands

Judge Stoll Sets Aside Temporary Restraining Order

Judge R. C. Stoll, in the Fayette circuit court at Lexington in Thursday, set aside a temporary restraining order granted the Burley Tobacco Growers Co-operative Marketing Association against John Holland, former president and now a member of the pool, and declared 6,000 pounds of tobacco, the property of Holland's wife, Mrs. Catherine Holland, and Lucien, Andrew, Joseph and John W. Holland, with the defendant members of the association, not subject to the crop.

An agreed order to that effect was entered, and Holland was ordered to deliver the tobacco to the association. The association previously had given Holland its note for $1,200 which was allowed a married person, $2,- 500. In addition, a taxpayer's exemption was given for each person dependent upon him for support. Persons in the service are either under 18 years of age or in the class of dependents, mentally or physically defective, or have been discharged from a member of the taxpayer's household. The taxpayer would be exempt only to the $1,500 exemption, plus the $400 credit. The matter not living with him, he is not considered as a dependent.

An exemption he the head of a family can be claimed by only one member of a household.

The exemption does not apply to the wife or husband of a taxpayer, though she may be totally dependent upon the other.

SOLD 250 FORDS AN HOUR

People of the United States in 1924 bought Ford cars at the rate of 250 an hour, day and night, for four hours a day for 300 working days of the year.

This demand, in a year of rather general business depression, was brought to the Ford Motor Company by the greatest sales record in its history. The domestic retail delivries for 1924 totalled 1,132,- 161 cars and trucks, an increase of 87,756 over the sales of 1923, the company announces.

Retail sales of Ford trucks for the year went over the 200,000 mark.
