KENTUCKY FARM CROPS MAKE BIG STRIDES

Fully 80 per cent of the farmers in Kentucky do business through cooperative organizations, according to the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation which reports more than a thousand per cent gain in membership of farmers' business organizations in the state since 1915.

Ten years ago the membership of the 63 farmers' cooperative organizations then in existence in the state was 19,000. Today, the Foundation states, the figure has jumped over the two hundred thousand mark while the number of organizations has dropped to 59 in number.

Live stock cooperatives head the list of farmers' cooperative efforts in the state with ten distinct groups, according to the Foundation. In addition there are other miscellaneous organizations embracing activities in dairy products, fruit and vegetables, poultry, tobacco, wool and other lines.

Nearly two-thirds of the organizations in the state are incorporated, but only 29 per cent report paying stock dividends, the Foundation finds. Eighty-four per cent of the organizations limit membership to members-producers.

Cooperatives have become an important factor in American agriculture, says the Sears-Roebuck Foundation. Two and one-half million farmers out of 6,500,000 in the United States now do an annual business in excess of $2,500,000,000. This is an increase of nearly 200 per cent in the number of organizations since 1915, and an increase in membership in the same period of nearly 200, per cent.

SPRING CLEANING

The time has come, to paraphrase the Waltzes, to talk of many things, especially of house cleaning and gardening. Its an ages old problem, and one which they always depend upon to get them a good laugh, that women are never happier than when they are cleaning house. It is an established fact when Father pulls this joke, Mother must flare up and tell him how much "fun" house-cleaning really isn't.

But whether it is fun or whether it isn't, there never was a woman who didn't feel all happy and contented inside when the rugs were all clean and the windows were bright and all the old newspapers had been thrown away. There is something in the good clean air of spring which makes one hate the winter dust rags and curtains, and the most which will gather in the windows.

Mother, however, can get back at Father every time, if she only waits to. For while she is tossing furniture and dust about with the broom, it is altogether likely that Father will be tossing the dirt about in the garden and getting ready for his spring spree of planting.

And it is these two annual sprees which make our homes the delightful things they are. To really love a home one must work with it, shape it and help it be a highly individual one, and would have true the urge to their home in Sevenup county.

C. W. Thompson, of Falmouth, was elected president of Group Four of the Kentucky Bankers Association at the annual meeting held in Lexington last week.

CARD FROM JUDGE TILTON

To my announcement for the office of County Judge, I stated that I would later make known what had been accomplished during the four years of my administration. This will be done through the columns of The Mercury each week, and in doing so it is my intention not to mislead the public, but for the purpose of advancing my cause and to help them to make up their minds if I am worthy of their support. Any statements made, you may rest assured, will be borne out by the records.

A short time after I had been in office, and even before I had taken the office, several ladies asked me to assist them in securing a suitable place for a Rest Room. They came before the Fiscal Court and asked that the room now used for that purpose be equipped and given them. This was done, and the City of Carlisle gave them the furniture for it.

This room has now been in operation more than three years under the custody and control of the ladies of the county. Mrs. Sneed has son has supervision of the Rest Room, for which she receives $25 per month from the county.

The ladies who were interested in this civic improvement, at the beginning, and those who now have it under control, will, I assure you, testify that at all times they found me a friend, willing to give every assistance possible, and it the ladies believe that any one since given them is worthy of consideration, it will be highly appreciated.

CARD FROM E. M. MYERS

In this week's issue will be found my announcement as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Magistrate from the Third Magisterial district, subject to the action of the voters at the August primary.

I entered the race after requested solicitation. I belong to an old Democratic family and have always supported the party nominees. This is the first time I have ever sought office.

While living on a good road myself, I believe in an equal distribution of the county's funds on all of the turnpikes of the county, and if elected will cast my vote to that effect.

E. M. MYERS

R. S. HARDIN ANNOUNCES

In the proper column of The Mercury today will be found my announcement as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Magistrate in the Third Magisterial district, subject to the action of the Democratic party at the August primary.

I am now serving my first term as Magistrate and feel that my experience as a member of the Fiscal court qualifies me for re-election. The Fiscal court, as is well known, has control of the Fiscal affairs of the Nicholas county, and its members are the most important officers in the county.

During my term of office I have attended all meetings of the court and have endeavored to be fair and impartial in the distribution of the county's funds.

If nominated and elected I promise to continue to give the office my best efforts. Respectfully,

R. S. Hardin

BACK GIVEN OUT?

Then Follow the Advice of This Carlisle Resident

Are you dragged along day after day with a dull, nagging backache? Do you feel tired, tired and achy, suffer sharp, torturing pains at every sudden move. Then look to your kidneys. Cold strains and overwork weaken the kidneys and bring on throbbing backache and kidney fatigue. Don't risk serious kidney disease! Use Doan's Pills—a stimulant directed to the kidneys. Read what this Carlisle resident says:

J. W. Martin, Walnut St., says: "A severe lameness and soreness in my back was the first symptom of kidney trouble. When I stooped over to pick up anything, sharp, knife-like pains darted across my kidneys. Mornings, the muscles of my back were stiff and my kidneys were weak and aching often. Doan's Pills from the Hopkins Drug Co., drove away backache and regulated my kidneys."

21,000,000 LETTERS A YEAR ADDRESSED WRONG

There is something of nervousness about the contents of a letter. The writer often reveals more of himself on the written page than he would in direct conversation. This revelation of course, is designed only for the eyes of the correspondent to whom it is addressed.

In this country a wholesome respect has been built up for the sanctity of a letter but it is not as respected in many other countries where the opening and reading of sealed mail becomes, at times, so frequent that the writer has actually the application "tracking seals." The envelope is usually found to be filled with wrath and the timid soul would shrink with horror at the thought of a third person, and a stranger at that, reading his personal correspondence."

Yes, that is exactly what happens to 21,000,000 letters a year and would continue to do so if they were not fail to put return addresses on their envelopes.

When a letter, without a return address, can not be delivered for any reason, it is sent, after a certain time, to the Dead Letter Office.

There it is opened and read—not for the prurient wandlul it may contain—but with a view to finding some clue which will enable the wandering on to the addressee or returning to the sender.

Out of every five letters received at the Dead Letter Office one of them is found in one and it is sent merrily on its delayed way to one or the other of the two persons whose correspondence it is.

The other four are destroyed.

The writer should know his own address and if he would put it on the envelope in the correct manner, roman , stylishe and the letter would be returned with notice of failure to deliver.

DELIVER CREAM OFTEN

Farmers complaint of fluctuating weights of cream during warm weather is due to them using too much or increase or decrease in the thickness of cream in the can, or too separation to another. These changes cause the cream to vary in density organism, says the Kentucky agricultural extension service. The object of the farmer should be to keep cream cool and deliver it frequently, twice a week if possible. Cooling cream and keeping it cool is the most important factor in the development of those organisms and sound loss and damage for the producer, the railroads and the creameries. Yearly cream boils out of condition and is a weight shortage for the producer. It becomes sticky in appearance when churned and causes butter to score as low as 85 points, compared with 92 for the product of other states. Keep cream cool and deliver it often.

HARRISON'S FIRST WOMAN LAWYER

Miss Minnie Benton Peterson, of Cynthiana, recently passed the bar examination with honors and secretaries was received by the Kentucky Court of Appeals at Frankfort.

In June Miss Peterson will be admitted to the Harrison County bar to practice her profession with her father, Mr. Hanton Peterson. The law firm thereafter will be known as Peterson and Peterson.

Miss Peterson has the distinction of being the first woman to practice law in Harrison county. She has decided to claim her and many friends in her home county will welcome her professional career with keen interest.—Cynthiana Democrat.

"SETTLE UP"

Every charge account is due to be paid in full each month—according to the words "Settle Up" is a abstract part of the agreement every charge customer makes on opening an account.

Monthly settlement in full, still cutting the others out the same two words, are what lets charge accounts and customers rate to cash transactions.

Then a way you can buy on credit just as well as you can buy for cash, so long as you keep your credit good.

You could not make a cash purchase and pay only part of the money. Neither can you keep faith with the stores at which you have charge accounts unless you settle up in full every thirty days.

The merchants who sell to you on credit can afford to do so only when you square accounts promptly. And your credit rating depends altogether on how carefully you keep your part of the bargain.

"WEARING DIAMONDS"

One Kansas editor remarked a few weeks ago that "another big wheat crop in Kansas with prices running over a dollar will put diamond paste buttons on Kansas farmers." That remark came in February, when wheat topped all records since 1866, and equalled the war prices obtained from 1916 to 1921. Huge fortunes were made by speculators last month, but the average citizen is wise enough to know that the men who actually grow the wheat didn't get any such great extent. And on last year's wheat—and three-fourths of the farmers in Kansas marketed their grain last November when the price was right around a dollar, instead of $2, as it was in February. Just now how much of the latter profit went to Kansas farmers is unknown, but they probably know, along with farmers of other sections of the country, that when prices are any "diamond paste buttons" worn it will be the speculators in the Chicago wheat pit that wear them.—Exchange.

STATE'S TRIBUTE

Sixteen Kentucky counties bear the name of Governors of the Commonwealth and in few of them is there any reminder of the namesake either in the way of statue, bust or picture. Naming a county for a governor seems to have been regarded as paying a debt of recognition without exerting memories in addition.

Kentucky counties that bear the names of Governors are Adair, Garrard, Breathitt, Crittenden, Clark, Greenup, Knott, Leslie, Letcher, Madison, Magoffin, McCreary, Metcalf, Owsley, Powell and Shelby. Most all early Governors were remembered and honored in naming new counties. In the last forty years two counties were given the names of Governors, Knott and McCreary, both of which were created during the Beckham-Willson Executives.

In proceeding the erection of a new county it has always been regarded the part of wisdom and foresight to give it the name of the Governor in office, not only for the moral effect, but to make a bid for his cooperation. In recent years it has been more difficult to form a new county and in the last twenty years three such attempts have been frustrated. They were the Kentucky counties of Beckham, "Stanley" and Fields," all named for Governors.

THE WAY HE "WENT BROKE"

Down in southern Illinois a few years ago a well seasoned fellow from Kentucky established a general merchandise business in connection with old established concerns that had been in the trade of the locality. Soon surprised the community by taking a large ad every week in the local paper. His ads were well written and prints featured in big figures. The other merchants all laughed and said Bloss would go broke spending all his money on advertising. In a few years the new store had pulled nearly all the trade of the town and county from the old stores. A little later, Mr. Bloss organized the Rosenthal-Bloss Millinery Co. on Washington Ave. in St. Louis the largest wholesale millinery house west of the Mississippi River. More recently he helped organize the McElroy-Sloss Shoe Co., a large shoe manufacturing concern of St. Louis. He is now worth two millions of dollars. That's the way he "went broke."—Democrat, Marshall, Ill.
