WAYSIDE FLOWERS

Pluck not the wayside flower
It is the traveler's flower;
A thousand passers-by
It's beauties may espy.
May win a touch of blessing
From Nature's still caressing,
The sad of heart perceives
A visit under leaves
Like some fresh budding hope,
The prisoner on the slope
A spot of sunshine dwells,
And cheerful message tells
Of kind renewing power,
Of life's unfailing dower.
Pluck not the wayside flower,
It is the traveler's flower.
