We Are You, Is You?

The Mercury republished in a recent issue an editorial from the Cynthiana Democrat, in which Dr. R. F. Reynolds was urged to make the race for State Senator this year. We say republishing a further editorial from the Democrat this week, touching the system of "rotation" of office, which prevails in this district. The Democrat thinks the custom is not a good one and should be broken and states its reasons in reply to objections registered by the Bracken Chronicle. We make this statement in the preface of an explanation of The Mercury's attitude in the matter.

In commenting upon the Democratic editorial, which urged Dr. Reynolds to stand for re-election The Mercury said: "The editorial, which pays high tribute to Dr. Reynolds' courage and ability, will prove most gratifying to his friends in this county."

In last week's issue the Democrat explains our comment as "noncommittal," which is quite true. At that time we had no idea that Dr. Reynolds could be persuaded to make the race, nor do we know yet, after talking with him concerning the matter, whether he would be willing to undergo the personal sacrifice which the making of a race indicted certain and active opposition would entail. We make this statement, an eventuality quite possible, this explanation that it may be understood that this newspaper stands for Nicholas county always and is not lukewarm in the support of one her sons against the candidate of another county.

Frank Reynolds is the personal friend of the writer. We like him. have his worth and admire his character. As an office-holder he has merited respect for having convictions and sticking to them and should be rated for re-election he will receive the writer's vote.

Notwithstanding all this, we think so much of him that we should not wish to see him enter a contest and be ham-strung by opponents of his county in the district, an eventuality quite possible and not at all improbable.

For that "sticking in stronger than custom" seems to us to be a serious error today as it was in the time of our ancestors and we have no doubt that the political custom under discussion is as strong as any of them. We do not mean to preach a doctrine of despair in the face of odds, but if the "breaking in to be done by our own Frank Reynolds it will take the united support of two counties to "hew up his axes."

And now, assuredly The Mercury does not wish to see this lad "slaughtered" politically. We're wondering in Harrison genius has a candidate?

Our Feathered Friends

The writer remembers with a pang of regret the ownership of a Robert cur, with which he was all too apt at the age of twelve or thirteen. The tall token of that happiness past, the English sparrow, is not regretable, but it is with shame that we confess that the song birds suffered too, except for catbirds and wrens. Just why these two, and, sweet goggins, were immune from the slaughter has been forgotten, but we are glad that it is so.

In a somewhat belated attempt at expiation of these youthful sins, we have been publishing a series of articles entitled, "Our Feathered Friends." If the thoughts been her, (golly little semi-savages some of them, those their hearts!) and with his shiny new rifle, failing to read this series, we hope his parents will go to school and tell him that almost all of the feathered folk are our friends, ridding the air, the fields, the orchard and garden of insect pests, helping man as they fend for themselves in Nature's perfect cycle of life and change.

The most observant of us are all too blind to the beauties of the everyday manifestations of the Great Mother. We are too much absorbed in our petty parts in carrying on the magnificent scheme of things to look up, be see, to listen to that small part to which human ear is attuned of the unanimous harmonies of the air and fields.

In a gorgeous climbing rose vine, his nest with the lining of grayish-white bark safely hidden in protecting briars, we know where a Kentucky Cardinal has made his home. Occasionally we see the flaming streak of his crimson coat as he flashes by, but more often we hear his whistle—"tee-tee-tee-tee" he begins, then more rapidly, "whoo-wee-whoo-wee-whoo-wee," clear and silver-toned as flute notes. And only the Carolina. Wren has remained with us all winter, for she was among the first to herald the coming of the dawn these mornings. First a sleepy, chirping roll of notes, then "whoo-ee-whoo-ee-whoodle," merging into "wee-ooh, wee-ooh, wee-ooh-ee," liquid, bell-like, far reaching tones of joy in the coming of another day. We have contrived coining apartments for this songster, inviting her to take up her abode rent free, but like all prima donnas she is a true bohemian and seems to prefer the sleeve of a discarded coat left hanging on the garden fence or some home equally as preposterous.

Cock Robin is singing sweetly this week, which insists, as the students of birds tell us. that he will also be joined him, after wintering a bit longer in the South. Bobolinks are also among the songs are few and lack joy. And if you think that we are not correctly placing the purple grackle, for the real blackbird sports crimson circles on his wings, has a harsh voice, listen to his gleep croon when he first begins to shake the sleep from his feathers. Soon that unnerving chuck, the blue jay with his preliminary harsh-bassite squeals and interlocutory "djay, djay, djay" will be with us, rarely failing sign of the true coming of Spring.

Dont kill them boy, but learn to know and love them, these feathered friends and the many more which will come to be our guests later on. They greet each morn with cheerful voices; they sing at their work, setting an example worthy of our emulation. Valiant, cheerful workers they are in the scheme of a Purpose, hidden yet manifest, if one but rises with loving eyes.

It was a pretty good idea to limit a Kentucky Governor to one term, too, judging from the kind we have had lately. Might be a bad idea to go further and providing that after serving his one term he be taken out and shot. — Cynthiana Democrat.

Ca'm yo'self, Bro' Allen! Cruel and unusual punishments are forbidden, you know. Why not electrocute 'em, or if you must be severe, make 'em ineligible as candidates for any other office.

A bill has been introduced in the North Carolina legislature making it a misdemeanor punishable by a $100 fine or imprisonment to fatten with college girls or teachers. — New York Sun.

"Sports" the girls flirt back? Where's your chivalry? This is another example of ingratitude to a man," which will not be "taken."

Spraying Fruit in Winter

Successful orchardists now consider an efficient spray program a necessity. All sprays should be applied in a systematic manner. For successful results it is necessary to use the correct materials, at the proper time and apply very thoroughly.

The following spraying directions are arranged to meet average conditions. For best results in commercial orchards it might be desirable to make more frequent applications than are here recommended.

The important thing to consider at this time is to be ready when the time comes and to apply the spray without delay.

A simple spray schedule for Apples, one which will control worms, scab and bitter rot follows: 1—1 gallon of Liquid Lime-Sulfur and 1 pound of Arsenate of Lead in 40 gallons of water. Apply this spray when three-fourths of the blossoms have fallen. The second application should be given two to three weeks later followed by a third application about the fourth of July. This schedule will insure a good crop of perfect fruit provided you have a good crop of blossoms to begin with.

A simple spray schedule for Peaches, one which will control worms, scab and brown rot follows: Ten days after the blossoms have fallen apply the following solution, 1 pound of Arsenate of Lead and 4 pounds of hydrated lime in 50 gallons of water. One month after the blossoms have fallen, then again one month before the fruit is ripe apply 12 pounds of sulphur-lime dry mix and 1 pound of Arsenate of Lead in 50 gallons of water. (The sulphur-lime dry mix is made by mixing 8 pounds of Sulphur and 4 pounds of hydrated lime thoroughly while dry, then add 1 pound of wood spraying resin dissolved in 1 gallon of water. Mix thoroughly and apply at once.) Use a fine spray nozzle and apply with high pressure. Be sure to thoroughly cover the trees. Do not spray when the trees are in bloom.

Spraying Grapes: Spray with Bordeaux mixture plus 1½ pounds of arsenate of lead. Spray before the blossoms have fallen apply the third application about the middle of July. Spray as carefully as possible and should be sure to cover the fruit clusters with a fine mist.

Spraying Currants: Spray with Bordeaux mixture plus 1½ pounds of arsenate of lead. Spray before the blossoms have fallen and repeat if necessary.

Spraying Gooseberries: Spray with Bordeaux mixture plus 1½ pounds of arsenate of lead. Spray before the blossoms have fallen and repeat if necessary.

Spraying Cherries: Spray with Bordeaux mixture plus 1½ pounds of arsenate of lead. Spray before the blossoms have fallen and repeat if necessary.

Spraying Plums: Spray with Bordeaux mixture plus 1½ pounds of arsenate of lead. Spray before the blossoms have fallen and repeat if necessary.

Spraying Peaches: Spray with Bordeaux mixture plus 1½ pounds of arsenate of lead. Spray before the blossoms have fallen and repeat if necessary.

Spraying Pears: Spray with Bordeaux mixture plus 1½ pounds of arsenate of lead. Spray before the blossoms have fallen and repeat if necessary.

Spraying Quinces: Spray with Bordeaux mixture plus 1½ pounds of arsenate of lead. Spray before the blossoms have fallen and repeat if necessary.

Spraying Nectarines: Spray with Bordeaux mixture plus 1½ pounds of arsenate of lead. Spray before the blossoms have fallen and repeat if necessary.

Spraying Apricots: Spray with Bordeaux mixture plus 1½ pounds of arsenate of lead. Spray before the blossoms have fallen and repeat if necessary.

Spraying Figs: Spray with Bordeaux mixture plus 1½ pounds of arsenate of lead. Spray before the blossoms have fallen and repeat if necessary.

Spraying Persimmons: Spray with Bordeaux mixture plus 1½ pounds of arsenate of lead. Spray before the blossoms have fallen and repeat if necessary.

Spraying Pecans: Spray with Bordeaux mixture plus 1½ pounds of arsenate of lead. Spray before the blossoms have fallen and repeat if necessary.

Spraying Walnuts: Spray with Bordeaux mixture plus 1½ pounds of arsenate of lead. Spray before the blossoms have fallen and repeat if necessary.

Spraying Chestnuts: Spray with Bordeaux mixture plus 1½ pounds of arsenate of lead. Spray before the blossoms have fallen and repeat if necessary.

Spraying Hickory Nuts: Spray with Bordeaux mixture plus 1½ pounds of arsenate of lead. Spray before the blossoms have fallen and repeat if necessary.

Spraying Almonds: Spray with Bordeaux mixture plus 1½ pounds of arsenate of lead. Spray before the blossoms have fallen and repeat if necessary.

Spraying Filberts: Spray with Bordeaux mixture plus 1½ pounds of arsenate of lead. Spray before the blossoms have fallen and repeat if necessary.

NOMINATING A STATE SENATOR

(Cynthiana Democrat)

Our friend, the Bracken Chronicle, does not agree with us that Dr. Reynolds should be induced to keep a hand in politics. The Chronicle says: "Democratic party has custody of this Senatorial District, Bracken, Nicholas, Robertson and Harrison, fully competent to fill the office with a Democrat, and we feel "Democratic doctrine to put a man in office and keep him there."

If it is not Democratic doctrine to keep a good man in office, we are not a good Democrat and have been proper believers it is time to change our democratic doctrine. Certainly the condition of political affairs in Kentucky do not present a favorable time for the part fifteen or sixteen Democrats in the county to make an argue for a continuance of democratic rule. It is a time to bring the offices around if that be the purpose of politics. Democracy has been in the saddle for a long time and it will Kentucky come into an official majority. The harder it is to be removed and some sort of order established. Why not be as much interested in the "good" of the party as the "good" of those who are in the "good" or "bad" of the party. If there is a time when the party to keep a good man at the head of affairs, it is when the party is in power. It is only when the party is out that it is necessary to change the policy and the men who represent it. Democracy every two years. There are much better to handle in their own county than to have to go to other counties to find men to represent them, they some other county in the district, whose only claim is that he is entitled to the rules of "rotation." The Democrat is not the time to bring this. The very best man that can be found in the county is deserving of his place of residence or how long he has been in the county. Shame, should be sent to Frankfort if he can be spared. If he can't be spared he should be kept there, so long as he represents the people satisfactorily.

The Democrat does not agree "many men in each county of this district" should be qualified to fill the office" of State Senator but we believe there are very few county of good men, of course, but there are many who are not willing to be candidates. The same is probably true in other districts of the State. That's one reason the party is not more in the State Senate at Frankfort for it is hard to get a good man to run for the office. That's one reason we want to keep a man in office when he has shown himself competent to discharge its duties. That's one reason we want to keep a man in office when he has shown himself competent to discharge its duties.
