BRE'R LANGLEY'S SPURS.

If a dilemma has horns, Mr. Richard P. Ernst is on 'em. If there ever was a case of a poltroon having to steer his way between Scylla and Charybdis, to say nothing of a course charted between the devil and the deep blue sea, the genial duck is that master.

For we have been told that "Coolidge needs Ernst." Those of us who have been privileged to peep beneath the cover of political pots a-boiling know of experience that Ernst needs Langley, which is to say he needs the seeds and crops and nutty mountain tops of the Loyal Tenth and the votes that lurk therein and frequently increase and multiply, come election day. So far, no dilemma. "Coolidge needs Ernst." Ernst needs Langley—but O, lo, lo! Many John Sarks Ernst and he needs Coolidge and he has that wherewith to back up his needs. "I her a monitor," wrote the inimitable Josh Billings, "for the crow that is in him and the spurs that is on him to back up the crow with." Many John Langley has the spurs. We affect he will use 'em, if there is any bukin' or rarin' and pitchin' or shyin' at rock piles or rock walls.

But John is the hypotenuse of the triangle. To square him with take the sum of the squares of the other two sides geometrically or politically speaking. Now that 2 x 2 was was a stumbling block in school boys, that problem, 'tis said, was solved, called it his "pi-a astronomy," for the mentally deficient always balked at that bridge. Now Bre'r Ernst must cross it and Col. Cal must cross it and Marse John he buckle on he spurs and work birds impatient like.

To the "good and democratic dum" is almost as far as it was to Tipperary and the going's rough for there are those of the clan of Bre'r Dick and Uncl' Cal who lifted up their robes and passed by on 'tother side, when Marse John needed a good Samaritan and didn't show no signs of relenting. And though there seems not to be hoptoads in republican administrations and "protective tariff"—Fleming Gazette.

Answering your question, sonny boy, Democrats don't need Kat Stevens this year of the reign of Cal the Silent. That is, it isn't good to agricultural districts and small towns. A canvass of the merchants and farmers and real estate men of your town and county will show, we'll wager, that "Aunt Kat" is not popular with Democrat or Coolidge-Langley triumphs.

"The stone which the builders refused is become the head of the corner." That line of the Psalmist has been trying to get out of our subconscious for two weeks. Inappropriate, come to us, for spring fields is a difficult subject. But trust the old subconscious not the psychologists, twist the old subconscious and they ought to know. Perhaps you'll get it.

But you'll excuse us, please, for right now we have "been hoein' with a stone of the dry grass, thinkin' of the bridge Bre'r Dave Gaines' Cal used errors and Marse John barking on his spurs. Gross ones such as politics and baseball to be enjoyed.

POLITICAL "DOPE."

In the Cynthiana Democrat, Will Ardery gives us what he calls the "present dope from the inside," on State politics.

Now we never crowd much for "dope," football, horse-race or soda fountain, but Will ought to know. He has spent two years in Frankfort as Southern country's representative. That ought to make a politician, but it hasn't in his case. Possibly it has developed the vision of a seer in the bay, for in Swope's days in Frankfort all ways has some effect on the vision, for better or worse, and Will shows no change visible to the naked eye.

Anyhow his prophecy will be worth watching. He writes:

Not being a politician, I have no secrets. So, here is the present dope from the inside. Arthur Roane, of Covington, will be the next Democratic nominee for Governor, if present plans go through; Governor Fields, as I predicted some months ago, will be a candidate for his old seat in Congress, while Fred Vinson, your present district representative, will be the next Democratic candidate for the United State Senate.

A SEDUCED WERE.

Have you a pet word-aversion? Is there some word in common usage or bit of slang that gives you the cold shivers and fills you wit a desire to commit murder, manslaughter or mayhem? Ours is "Tain."

Now there's a perfectly good verb, as witness "he eats, she eats" and sometimes twave the mark's good service. Under certain conditions of race, color or previous condition of servitude. But as a noun, as meant to convey the meaning of food—from such a word good Lord deliver us! It must have been in one of these "caste" corporations that the famous "Ain't" corporation was organized.

"Apple, peach, mince and raisin," quoth the stricken.

"Ketch it," he retorted sassy. "Wait a minute—shoo!" shouted the waiter making off with the pie. "Nesse me, mister. That ain't raisin, it's prunes."

First thing we know this mongrel word will be swapping vows on commencements of pie-suppers and basket picnics. With the effrontery of a half-breed we may expect it to nose its way into high school literary luncheons and church suppers. But if ever we found that misbegotten son of a seduced verb in the columns of this esteemed journal, we shall murder it where it stands with the bluest pencil procurable.

For to us this "tain" is one of the "unpleasantest words that ever blotted paper." It is a veritable jorkass of a word and one may be sure that it cannot climb the sprightly summit of the long ears and loud bray, it has no pride of ancestry, and the Lord grant it's lack of posterity.

IT ISN'T.

Business reports from all sections of the nation show that there is a remarkably good month for industry, banking and merchandising on top of the high and commercial statements are reports on the crop conditions and this, in the main, is favorable. Bank clearings were reported to have reached new heights and car loadings have been the greatest in a number of years for the twelfth consecutive week.

Why is it that business seems to be prospering good under republican administrations and under protective tariff?—Fleming Gazette.

Answering your question, sonny boy, Democrats don't need Kat Stevens this year of the reign of Cal the Silent. That is, it isn't good to agricultural districts and small towns. A canvass of the merchants and farmers and real estate men of your town and county will show, we'll wager, that "Aunt Kat" is not popular with Democrat or Coolidge-Langley triumphs.

NEW VERSION

Here are the new commandments, lies,
Which seem now make for material men:

Remember that I am thy wife,
Whose thou most cherish all I'm-self.

Thou shalt not stay out at night,
Or leave home, friends or dear wife.

Thou shalt not smoke indoor or out,
Or chew tobacco round about.

Thou shalt with praise receive my gifts,
Nor yearn made by me despise.

My mother thou shalt strive to
And let her live with us in ease.

Remember: Sir thy duty clear,
Be true and well throughout this year.

Thou shalt in manner mild and
Give me wages every week.

Thou shalt not be a drinking man,
Nor 'Bar'-ter prohibition plan.

Thou shalt not flirt, but must allow
Thy wife each anyhow.

Thou shalt get up when baby cries,
And try the child to tranquilize.

Thou, my commands from day to day,
Implicitly thou shalt obey.

A STITCH IN TIME.

The Lexington Herald thinks the effort of the Fayette county Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals to eradicate rabies in that county by inoculating all dogs with a preventive serum is a work of much importance. The Herald opposes with the Herald and hopes to see the day when each county will take up this movement.

It is a "stitch in time," at small cost, that will save lives and prevent the needless sufferings of the mangled dog.

We never lock the door until after the stool is stolen in the matter of "mad dogs." Someone is bitten and then the hue and cry is raised, every hot and pasting dog is a suspect and the muzzling edict is forthcoming. This is typical of summer as is the sunflower, despite the fact that scientists know that rabies is as common in winter as at any season.

If we are able to take preventive measures against; small pox and diphtheria, typhoid and scarlet fevers in the human and many diseases of hogs and cattle, why not use a serum to prevent rabies in dogs?

That's one new law we are willing to see passed next time at Frankfort. For it would result in the saving of lives and the prevention of needless suffering in a friendly and faithful animal.

"NOT BY A DAM SITE."

(Maysville Independent.)

The Independent editor is in receipt of a letter from Hon. Ben Johnson, the chamber of commerce of Millersburg, Bourbon county, which urges the support of the superpower company which is endeavoring to secure permission to develop beautiful Cumberland Falls for commercial purposes, by harnessing a power that belongs to all the people to turn it into a profit machine for a foreign corporation.

The writer modestly suggests that it will develop that section, which is most difficult to locate, as the center of water would be most favorable, and that Millersburg would be where lowers spoon, and again it might afford a fish pond for those who like to fish, and the editor knows several men that know a good thing when they see it, and that is a very fine thing. But as to power developing employment after the plant is completed, we cannot fig ure out. When that large power plant is completed less than a dozen men will be able to operate it. This being the fact, we think that a lower point that would receive its water from Jessamine creek would be the best thing for Williamsburg. Whether and the other counties and towns in the state, that have the numerous coal mines there employ the hundreds of men and mining a very superior quality of coal. A power plant using this coal would provide employment for hundreds of miners and assist in feeding their families which would result in greater benefit than a whole flock of power plants operated by water power.

It seems to this writer that the number of consumers is proceeding against the plan here described in the interests of the people in its orbit and this, in the main, is lacking a proposition that will take employment from them. They are family do not want their mines to be idle for they do not want the price of coal at that territory. Many men we know of in Carlisle and town of Williamsburg are interested in coal mining and would be glad to want to destroy their own business by electrical power developed by plants which the proposed Cumberland Falls power would furnish them so that they would want their mines to run regardless of the merchants down there are certainly lively concerned about the matter and have no time to be monkeying the week as a dam that does not produce one existence for the farm.

So, we are not in favor of turning Cumberland Falls over to anybody, but we do want to D. boy county to Kentucky.

POEMS THAT WE LIKE.

THE WINNERS

(Kipling)

What is the moral? Who rides may read.
When the night is thick and the tracks are hid
A friend at a pinch is a friend indeed.
But a fool is naft for the laggard and the slow.

Down to Gehenna or up to the throne,
He travels the fastest who travels alone.

One may fall but he falls by himself—alone.

Falls by himself with himself to blame.
One may attain and to him is known
Lost of the city in Gold or Flame—
Plunder of earth shall be all his own
Who travels the fastest and travels alone.

Wherefore the more ye be human-ly strong
Stayed by a friend in the hour of wrong—
The heretical song I have made—
His be the labour and yours be the spoil.
With by his aid and the aid denied—
He travels the fastest who travels alone.

THE HERETICS

Early in the morning
The still, cold still,
There comes a gentle murmur:
The trees are at prayer!

The weeping lady willow,
With a delicate bowed head,
Is sighing supplication
For the souls of the dead.

The stern Lombardy poplar
Is lifting to the Throne,
In silent, solemn whisper,
Petitions of its own.

And the dainty, quivering aspen
Is trembling for fear
Is pouring out to heaven
The measure of its grief.

From the elm and the maple,
The oak and sycamore,
The wrath and warrior praises
To the blue sky's very door.

But not the faintest stirring
From the tall dark fir.
A group of gloomy heretics
Among the worshippers!

THE PRESS

(Kipling)

The Soldier may forget his sword,
The Sailor mend the oars,
The Mason may forget the Word
And the Priest his prayers,
The Maid may forget both joy and woe
And the Bride her wedding-
But the Jew shall forget Jerusalem
Ere we forget the Press!
The wheels are kept clean through the loaded hour
And the fire in the grate,
The Herald and the Hoe devour
Hourly nourishment and sweat,
And has lit his pipe in the morning
Before the work is a dam that does not produce one existence for the farm.

So, we are not in favor of turning Cumberland Falls over to anybody, but we do want to D. boy county to Kentucky.

FEED PULLETS FOR PRODUCTION

The only way to bring pullets into production early in the fall is to feed them for egg production, says C. E. Harris, a poultry field agent for the Kentucky College of Agriculture.

He recommends that grains and mash be kept before the pullets for support. A satisfactory grain mixture would consist of 75 parts by weight of corn (preferably yellow) and 25 parts by weight of wheat or heavy oats.

A good mash is made of 200 pounds of corn meal and a 100 pounds each of bran, middlings and meat scrap or tankage. Only good grade of tankage, 60 per cent Protein, should be used. If milk is available, the meat scrap or tankage may be reduced to 5 to 10 percent of the mash.

Those who do not desire to mix their own mash find good commercial ones on the market. The important thing is to keep a good mash before the pullets at all times.

The cheapest pullet is the one that reaches production early," Mr. Harris emphasizes. "That means that the birds must be kept growing, and not become stunted. Do not feed yourself by thinking you can feed almost enough and still get the most for your time and money.

"Where growing pullets never prove profitable; call them out and sell them."

Too Much "Acid?"

Excess Uric Acid Closes Kite to Many Unpleasant Troubles.

AUTHORITIES agree that an excess of uric acid is primarily due to faulty kidney action. Retention of this toxic material often makes its presence felt by aches, painful joints, a tired, languid feeling and sometimes by nagging backaches. That the kidneys are not functioning right is often shown by scanty or burning passage of kidney secretions. Thousands must their kidneys at such times by the use of Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic. Doan's are recommended by many local people. Ask your neighbor!

Ice-box Biscuits

IF BISCUITS were baked in ice-boxes, a good way to test baking powder would be with cold water.

Snow King Baking Powder doesn't "act" at all in cold water. It takes even heat to make Snow King "act."

In fact, Snow King doesn't work until the dough goes into the oven. It reaches the oven without having any of its strength wasted. That is why it is next to impossible to have a baking failure with Snow King. It saves its leavening power until it is needed.

To prove this, make up a batch of dough at night, and the biscuits you bake next morning will be as light and fine as any you have ever tasted.

You can sell pound of Snow King for 20 cents—and the quality is second to none. Results prove it.
