APRIL - A PROMISE

O'Flavin, for the flowers now, that fight

From the flower, that fought

That come under the smiling dawn,

And laid the wreath of beauty

That the sun should, yes they can

That the sun should, yes they can

That the sun should, yes they can

That the sun should, yes they can

That the sun should, yes they can

That the sun should, yes they can

That the sun should, yes they can

That the sun should, yes they can

That the sun should, yes they can

That the sun should, yes they can

That the sun should, yes they can

That the sun should, yes they can

That the sun should, yes they can

That the sun should, yes they can

That the sun should, yes they can

That the sun should, yes they can

That the sun should, yes they can

That the sun should, yes they can

That the sun should, yes they can

That the sun should, yes they can

That the sun should, yes they can

That the sun should, yes they can

That the sun should, yes they can

That the sun should, yes they can

That the sun should, yes they can

That the sun should, yes they can

That the sun should, yes they can

That the sun should, yes they can

That the sun should, yes they can

That the sun should, yes they can

That the sun should, yes they can

That the sun should, yes they can

That the sun should, yes they can

That the sun should, yes they can
