THE HERITAGE

(James Russell Lowell)

The rich man's son inherits lands,
And piles of brick, and stone, and gold,
And he inherits soft white hands,
And tender flesh that fears the cold,
Nor dares to wear a garment old;
A heritage, it seems to me,
One scarce would wish to hold in fee.

The rich man's son inherits wants;
The bank may break, the factory burn,
A breath may burst his bubble shares,
And soft white hands could hardly earn
A living that would serve his turn;
A heritage, it seems to me,
One scarce would wish to hold in fee.

The rich man's son inherits naught,
His stomach craves for dainty fare;
With sated heart, he hates the paints
Of toiling hinds with brown arms bare,
And wearies in his easy-chair;
A heritage, it seems to me,
One scarce would wish to hold in fee.

What doth the poor man's son inherit?
Stout muscles and a sinewy heart,
A hardy frame, a hardier spirit;
King of the hands, he does his part
In every useful toil and art;
A heritage, it seems to me,
A king might wish to hold in fee.

What doth the poor man's son inherit?
A patience learned of being poor,
Courage, if sorrow come, to bear
A friend, a fellow-feeling that is sure
To make the outcast bless his star
A heritage, it seems to me,
A king might wish to hold in fee.

What doth the poor man's son inherit?
Wishes o'erjoyed with humble things,
A rank adjudged by toil-worn merit,
Content that from employment springs,
A heart that in its labor sings;
A heritage, it seems to me,
A king might wish to hold in fee.

What doth the poor man's son inherit?
Resignation, and poverty,
Love without stint, and friendship's merit;
The seeing eye, the listening ear,
Curses are blessings, and blessings are dear,
A heritage, it seems to me,
Worth being poor to hold in fee.

Thus speaks the rich man's son,
Thus speaks the poor man's son;
Both, heirs to some six feet of sod,
Are equal in the earth at last;
Both, children of the same dear God,
Prove title to your heirship vast
By record of a well-filled past;
A heritage, it seems to me,
Well worth a life to hold in fee.

VISIT TO CARLISLE

Of Gen. Bennett H. Young Recalled By H. M. Taylor

Reliving in a substantial plan a move to finish the Confederate Blue Lick Springs in honor of the brave ones who fell there reminds the writer of a visit to Carlisle some time in the nineties of Gen. Bennett H. Young, according to the preface in his history of that battle, he says: "An association was organized at Carlisle, Ky., for the purpose of erecting a monument to the men who on that eventful day in August, 1862, fell there." The following officers were elected: G. R. Kelley, president; Bennett H. Young, vice president; F. B. the purpose of placing over the Lindsay, second vice president; H. M. Taylor, secretary and treasurer; H. M. Scudder, Hanson Keenely, Thomas Hunter, J. T. Boyd, and T. Durrett, directors. They have undertaken to secure a fund for the common grave of the heroes who perished there a stone lasting and appropriately memorial."

General Young brought with him on his visit to Carlisle a glee club and a photographer. They gave an entertainment at the court house at night and went to Blue Lick Springs next morning. Mr. B. Lindsay accompanied them and found many relics and implements used by the Indians. They also took a number of views of the grounds and surroundings, which are embodied in his history published in 1892.

The small collection here from the sale of his history and the entertainment was kept in the treasury for a long time. The treasurer at one time asked General Young to let him send him the money but the General said, "No, I have to wealthy men who will build the monument when I get time from completing my plans for a Confederate home. He finally accepted the money and gave it to the treasurer of the Jefferson Davis monument at Fairview.

Great Opportunity Lost

Some things are worse than death worse than death by Chinese torture, worse than being buried alive; aye, worse than seven times seven deaths forty-and-seven times. For example, there is the Chicago man who held thirteen diamonds at bridge, then never had a chance to play the hand. He was known as an opponent who ultimately bid seven spades and the fault was all his own; he took a peep, spoke too soon, and opportunity was gone forever.

The head of a century did not take a point. It spent its great life force following the dummy's lead and when the finnish and the shouting died was a sorry pile of scrambled tricks. Oh, the pity of it! Imagine the despair of his children, his children's children, his posterity to the doomsday generation. Paradise gained and paradise lost, the thrill that comes once in a lifetime, life's darkest moment throwdarkened with gloom!—New York World.

Marion Insko, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wyatt Insko, has been awarded a fellowship at the University of Wisconsin, one of the largest institutions of learning in the West. In the preface in his history of that battle, he says: "An association was organized at Carlisle, Ky., for the purpose of erecting a monument to the men who on that eventful day in August, 1862, fell there." DO THIS

(Exchange)
Do you know there's lots o' people
Settin' round in every town
Growlin' like a broody chicken,
Kerchin' every good thing down?
Don't you be that kind o' cattle
'Cause they ain't no use on earth,
You just be a booster rooster,
Grow and boost for all your worth.

If your town needs boostin', boost 'er,
Don't hold back and wait to see
If some other feller's willin',
Sail right in, this country's free;
No one's got a mortgage on it,
It's yours as much as his,
If your town is shy on boosters,
You get in the boostin' biz.

If things don't seem to suit you,
Don't be sour and seem kinder wrong,
What's the matter with a boostin'
Just to help the thing along;
'Cause if things should stop agin',
You'd be in a sorry plight.
You just keep that horn a-blowin',
Boost 'er up with all your might.

If you know some feller's failin's,
Just forget 'em 'cause you know
That some feller's got some good points—
There's the ones you want to show;
'Cast your loaves out on the water,
They'll come back' 'a sayin' true,
Mebbe they will come back "buttered"
When some feller boosts for you.
