Gives the Elephant Sagacity

"Which elephant is the most intelligent?" repeated the keeper of these huge beasts at the question son, who asked the question. "Well, the elephant is exactly like any animal in the world for sheer common sense and quick perception. Which is fitting for more brain than any of the rest.

"I should say that Bertha, the big Indian elephant, is our finest animal for thinking, though the two females living together in the same den, would move here to reside in a few days' notice when carrying folk on her back in the gardens; her quick grasp of what is wanted by her attendants or patrons; her intelligent love and care for her children, have made her the general favorite, as well as my own. She will even, when her boy gets as carefully as the kindest mother, will find it course to her, will cross over it, will rock it in a cradle, will watch it when sleeping, with all the affection, and would kill anyone who attempted to hurt it."

Colors of Grapes

The dark red color of certain grapes is due to a compound of tannin which all varieties of grapes contain. This color seems to depend on the combined action of the air, light and heat. This change in color is produced naturally in the vine by means of a specific ferment which carries the oxygen of the air to the grape. Those ferments are often the agents of colloring in vegetable substances; as they are found in apples and in potatoes which have been cut open and thus exposed to the air. The grapes that are white on maturity owe the absence of coloring to the absence of this ferment.

COURTESY

Blessed be God who made such pretty birches,
And spent such gold in dandelions' crowns.
He made small swallows flying o'er great churches,
Made little fish that graze from streams at towns.

He made great woods to give the small birds perches
Made the green meads to give the crickets gowns.
He made the snail. He made the crab ohigh lperhe
Sideways to port, made cockleshells, made clowns.

Blessed be God, so sweet, so near is He.
He made the old man's sunlight made this hour.
Make stars for roof tops. O what courtesy!
'T was He who dreamed the honeysuckle flower.
He gave the mole a labyrinth. He gave
The beach grass the embroidery of the wave.

A cordial invitation is extended to everybody to attend these services every night at 7 o'clock.

We are expecting all the church members and all unconverted teachers and all the singers and workers to be at prayer meeting this Wednesday night at 7 p. m.

A cordial welcome to all.

All plans for a revival campaign to begin on Sunday October 16, with Rev. Ben M. Bogard, Editor, lecturer and minister, will be the evangelist. The pastor and people have had year of experience in the evangelistic field and specialists in Sunday School work and a good revival may be expected through their combined efforts. There have been accessions to the local congregation for many Sundays and every department of the church is doing excellent work.

PRICES OF 1926 ARE "NORMAL"

Price intreases made by and during the war at last are to be recognized governmentally as having set up a totally new level of values. The Labor Department's bureau of statistics has announced that hereafter instead of trying to consider the 1913 level of prices of commodities as normal and representing a 100 per cent basis of values, it would hereafter use the average price levels of 1926 as 100 and proceed anew. Adoption of the 1926 base, it was said, will assure the "use of the latest and most reliable information as the standard for measuring price changes."

ILLITERACY WANING

(Maysville Independent.)

Illiteracy in Kentucky is nearing the vanishing point, and there will be no excuse for anyone going through life without an education. More schoolhouses are being erected in practically all the counties, and good roads are being constructed to them reaching in all directions. Then the Mason county plan of consolidating schools which includes the transportation to and from the school of the pupils is also finding favor, because of its economy and improved educational facilities that such consolidation creates. Then there are to be free school books which will be the very limit of state encouragement, and this boon will cost neither every attending block's parent a cent as frequently found, so that he will either have to inform himself or spend some state where the educational facilities are inferior to what they are here.

AUTUMN

Now, upon the brown earth's breast
Fall the crimson leaves to rest;
Mad it were to grieve and laughing Spring—
What does gray-clad Autumn bring?
Autumn, like a gypsy bild
Wanders east and west and wild!
Autumn, with her magic brush
Gilds the pumpkin at our feet
In the fields of yellow wheat;
Bids the wild duck homeward fly
Through the quiet, hazy sky;
Gaily through the orchard goes;
Tints the apple's cheek with rose;
And with pleasant fruits and grain
Cheers the waiting world again.
There is loveliness sublime
In the earth at Autumn time—
Autumn like a gypsy bold
In her cap of red and gold!
