SCHOOL VERSUS READY MONEY

(Hardin County Enterprise)

It is always a temptation for young men, to give up their schooling and go to work, before they have completed the education that they are offered. In a lesser degree this applies to the young women of today. The greatest prospect of being self-supporting, independent financially, with perhaps more money to spend, looms glowingly in their life's horizon.

We admit, the immediate satisfaction of such a course seems alluring, but the inevitable future arrives only too quickly. Then the opportunity to attend school has gone and it is in futile to wish for the education, neglected when young. In after years those who did not complete their studies will find the lure of the "easy money has denied them chance to rise to the world high, they might have attained were better educated. Their work will lose much of the prestige of glamour that it may have had in youth. They did not take advantage of the educational delights and satisfaction to be attained by a thorough and broad education.

Youth is headstrong but the wiser and far-seeing ones will continue their education, as far as their finances will permit. We earnestly urge the completion of the high school course and the college course, whenever possible. It will pay immense profits, later, and leave no regrets.
