Social and Society

THE FLOWERS

Day after day,
At spring's return
I watch my flowers, how they burn.
Their lives away.

The candle crocus
And daffodil gold
Drink fire of the sunshine—
Quickly cold.

And the proud tulip—
How red he grows!
In quenched ere summer
Can kindle the rose.

Purple as the innermost
Core of a sinking flame,
Deep in the leaves the violets
Hide.

To the dust whence they came.
Day after day.

At spring's return
I watch my flowers, how they burn
Their lives away.
Day after day.
