BETTER LIVESTOCK

Why All People Should be Interested in Better Livestock, by Carrie Hammonds, Professor of Agricultural Education, University of Kentucky.

(This the first of four articles this paper is to run on "Better Livestock." The second article will appear next week.)

Any man or woman who is not interested in making people better and happier is not a useful man or woman. "Now," you say, "what has that got to do with better livestock?" I answer, "People will be happier and better when they can make a better living. Caring for farm animals just naturally makes better farmers." If you will read these four articles carefully you will see how better livestock helps make better people. Perhaps you had never thought before that good farm animals had anything to do with making people good or bad. Well, read and see. If you can see how better livestock helps make better people then you can write a good essay or can make a good talk on "Better Live Stock."

Wherever you find poor livestock you nearly always find poor people. The general rule is, poor stock, poor people. People are almost never prosperous where their live stock is thin and scrubby and scrawny. Where poor stock is found there are will usually find poor homes, poor schools, poor churches and poor roads. Inasmuch as all people should be interested in homes, schools, churches and roads all people should be interested in better Livestock. Bankers, teachers, merchants, preachers, and everybody else including the farmer are interested in what live stock does for the community and for the farmer. Any one interested in people must be interested in better livestock.

Nearly all the prosperous nations of the earth get a large share of their wealth from raising improved livestock. Farm animals consume fully three-fourths of the total product of America's cultivated fields and all the products from her pastures. Only about two-tenths of all our cultivated land is used for the direct production of human food. Only one-tenth is used for the growth of crops that cannot be used for food or feed—such as cotton, flax and tobacco. Thus, you see, we market three-fourths of our crops through livestock. Because of low-producing animals a large part of what we feed is wasted. When feed is wasted, the labor and time it took to produce that feed is wasted. Wasting feed is wasting money and means doing without the things that money will buy. Children have fewer clothes to wear, mother has to do more of the washing has to do more of the mending and the father has to work harder—all because feed is wasted by being fed to poor stock.

Because They Produce More

Improved livestock of all kinds give better returns. It doesn't make any difference whether you have beef cattle, dairy cattle, hogs, horses, sheep, or poultry.

Market returns show clearly that breeding is a big factor in the production of beef cattle. It has been shown that good feeding and management will not bring best results, unless there is also good breeding. The use of a good pure-bred bull, according to the result of a study made, means about $2 per hundred more for his calves at markets of time than for average calves sired by scrub or grade bulls. In selling one beef weighing eight hundred pounds this would make a difference of $16.

Feel Tired and Achy?

Too Often This Warns of Sluggish Kidneys.

LAME? Still? Achy? Sure your kidneys are working right? Sluggish kidneys allow waste poisons to accumulate and make one languid, tired and achy, with often dull headaches, dizziness and nagging backache. A common warning is too frequent, scanty or burning excretions. Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, increase the secretion of the kidneys and thus aid in the elimination of bodily waste. Users everywhere endorse Doan's. Ask your neighbor!

TAXES paid by American Railroads

DURING 1927, the steam railroads of the United States paid in State, County and Federal taxes the highest proportion of their revenues ever recorded in any one year.

As shown in the graph above, of every $100.00 received by the carriers during 1927, $6.13 was paid out in taxes, whereas in 1912 but $3.90 from each $100.00 was required for taxes—an increase in the aggregate amount paid of more than $271,000,000.00, or about 247%, during the past 15 years.

In 1912, the daily tax bill of American Railroads was $226,000.00; whereas in 1927, more than $1,000,000.00 a day was paid by the carriers for the support of schools, institutions, governmental expenses and other tax requirements. Again, in 1926, and for the fifth successive year, the taxes paid by the American Railroads exceeded the amount of cash dividends received by their stockholders.

Railway taxes constitute one element in the cost of producing transportation today over which the railroad management has absolutely no control. Over the things that can be measurably controlled, such as economy and efficiency in operation, a remarkable improvement has been made. As an indication, notwithstanding the vastly greater and improved public service rendered by the railroads, they have, since the end of Federal control in 1920, reduced the direct operating costs by more than $1,200,000,000.00, or 20%. Against these economies, however, the railroad taxes—in the same period and without any commensurate increase in the investment—have increased by over $150,000,000.00, or 65%.

W. I. DORSEY

Fifty-three years in business is the record of William I. Dorsey.

We present for your approval in this cartoon, Mr. William I. Dorsey, business man, founder of a notable family of Carlisle and one of the builders, literally and technically of our town.

Mr. Dorsey is 71 years of age, yet his activities and business acumen do not mark him as a man of that age.

Beginning with the lumber yards on Dorsey Avenue, residences gradually sprang up, until an addition to Carlisle came into being. This addition can be attributed to the work and effort of one man and that is the gentleman pictured above.

Two sons take an active part in this business. Carlisle knows them as men who are carrying on their business as their father founded it, and the same underlying principles still govern their activities.—They are H. A. Dorsey and S. A. Dorsey. This firm specializes in many brands of trademarked goods in building material, such as Mule Hide Roofing, Hanna's Green Seal Paint, Murphy's and Berry Brothers Varnishes. These and other items who know building Material, mean that the use of these will give the builder lasting and beneficial service. This firm also specializes in carpenters' tools of every kind.

They sell coal, and feeds, handling only the best quality of these. The slogan in regard to the lumber they handle is unique. It reads: "Not a kick in a million feet." Pretty good isn't it?

Mr. Dorsey is a Mason and a Shriner. Here is a firm that takes pleasure in serving you and satisfying you in every respect when you trade with them. Such a firm is worthy of consideration, when you are in the market to purchase their goods, are they not. Why not give them an opportunity to prove that their prices are fair and just and their service unequalled in your town; and above all folks TRADE AT HOME. The dollar then does Double Duty.

PRICES ARE LESS NOW

Place you order for next winter's coal supply now. If you do not want delivery right now we will deliver when you say, but the cost will be based on present prices, which are much less than later.

Rice Milled by Hand

The primitive way of milling rice was to pound it by hand in a stone or a wooden mortar with a pestle until the husk or cuticle cracked and rubbed off and could be winnowed out, and this same principle is still used in oriental countries, though the power is usually applied in a more efficient way than by hand.

Explaining the Zodiac

The zodiac is an imaginary belt encircling the heavens and extending about eight degrees on each side of the ecliptic, within which are the larger planets. It is divided into 12 parts called signs of the zodiac, which formerly corresponded to 12 constellations bearing the same names.
