JUNIOR CALVES TO SELL FOR $100,000

Junior agricultural club boys and girls from 25 Kentucky counties will sell approximately $100,000 worth of fat calves at the seventh annual Fat Stock Show at the Bourbon Stock Yards in Louisville Nov. 14-16. In addition, they will win more than $2,500 in prizes.

Their calves, which have been fattened under the auspices of county agricultural agents and field agents from the College of Agriculture, will average about 900 pounds. Fat cattle have been selling at a price that should return them good profits. Approximately 650 head will be offered by junior 4-H club members.

In addition to the large amount of prize money to be divided among winners, junior club members showing the champion Angus, Hereford and Shorthorn calves will each be given an educational trip to the seventh national boys' and girls' club congress, held during the International Live Stock Exposition in Chicago.

Eighteen hundred dollars will be divided among counties exhibiting carloads of junior club calves; $400 among boys and girls owning the best single steers or heifers; $200 in a class on economic production; $100 for the best records kept of finishing calves for market; $600 in a class for the best five calves from county carloads; $100 for the best five calves from counties showing fewer than a carload each, and $50 in a class for the best 10 calves from counties not exhibiting carloads.

CAREFUL CLASSING OF TOBACCO PAYS

Farmers who grade their plants before stripping are able to do a better job of classing their tobacco and on that account get a better price, according to observations made by E. C. Vaughn, a field agent for the College of Agriculture of the University of Kentucky.

Poor classing reduces the price received. This has been proved many times, and is apparent to all who closely observe the loose leaf sales, notes Mr. Vaughn.

"One great difficulty in classing is the correct placing of leaves of small plants, when large and small are stripped together. It is practically impossible under such circumstances to class tobacco correctly. The remedy is obvious: grade the plants before stripping; in other words, stalk-grade.

"When bulking, make three lots of tobacco—one of large plants, one of average size plants and one of small plants. Strip each lot separately and keep these lots in sets of grades, or classes, separate until sold.

"For the additional time required, the grower will be well repaid."

FACTS ABOUT TUBERCULOSIS

Dr. J. S. Lock, Secretary Kentucky Tuberculosis Association

Tuberculosis is a communicable disease, but to this statement there should be added the fact that tuberculosis is also preventable as well as curable.

As a contagious or communicable disease, tuberculosis is spread by a germ—tubercle bacillus. It was discovered by Dr. Robert Koch of Germany in 1882. The sputum of a person having tuberculosis is laden with these germs. When he coughs, these germs are put into the air which others are soon breathing.

To prevent the spread of this disease tuberculosis should be discovered as early as possible. Periodical physical examinations are the only way to make this early discovery possible. The person, knowing he is ill, should be quarantined as to proper treatment. The manner of scattering infection through the germ laden sputum is thus greatly lessened.

Tuberculosis is also curable. This is proved by the fact that every year for some time is infected with tuberculosis. However, everyone does not die of tuberculosis. Furthermore many of those who are discovered to have the disease, while it is in its early stages, are cured through sanatorium treatment.

One of the early symptoms of tuberculosis is a cough which hangs on. If you have such a cough, don't tell yourself that it is merely a cold. Have a physical examination. Let your doctor decide whether you have tuberculosis.

If you do not have a cough, you may have some of the other early symptoms of the disease. These are: Tiring too easily; indigestion; or loss of weight. Never forget that the most important thing in the treatment of tuberculosis is its early recognition so that prompt and proper care may be given. In the early diagnosis of tuberculosis lies the hope of cure. To procrastinate with tuberculosis is to gamble with death.

Citronella is the name of a fragrant oil imported from Ceylon, the Malay peninsula and Java. A group of closely allied grasses supplies the oil. The name of the grass is also given. POULTRY INTERESTS WILL FIGHT THIEVES

The Kentucky Poultry Improvement association was organized at the recent seventh annual poultry day at the Experiment Station of the University of Kentucky. The purpose of the organization is to unite all interests in a general poultry improvement program.

Representatives of the certified poultry breeders accredited flock owners, farmers, the Experiment station and other interests comprise the board of directors of the new organization.

The first problem to be considered by the poultry improvement association is chicken stealing, which is said to be increasing. A committee was appointed to make a report on what has been done about thievery in other sparse sections.

G. B. Vickers, field manager of the Ohio poultry improvement association, who addressed the 500 men and women from 40 counties attending the meeting, said that farmers should endeavor to increase their efficiency in keeping with increased efficiency in industry. He believes this must be done if farmers are prepared to accept a lower standard of living.

He also thinks the need—of more economical production of eggs in order to meet competition from the Pacific coast—will force the adoption of intensive poultry culture. He advocated greater egg production per hen and per man. Kentucky hens have an average yearly production of only 40 eggs, as compared with 95 eggs in the state of Washington. There is a similar difference in German and four and forty minutes with the needle.

On wash days an extra six hours should be given to the laundry for the hours on ironing days. Well, the surface made-them stick watchers for one day, anyhow; and, now that they know how many hours they work, maybe the feminine movement will receive some recruits.

CLOCKING THE FARM WIFE

(Courier-Journal)

Farm women in the Purchase don't belong to the leisure class, according to a survey made by the Kentucky Homemakers' Association, as reported to the local press.

The report is based on the answers to 861 questionnaires. A majority of the women are mothers in families of five to eight members and keep cows, chickens and gardens. Their duties showed an average of sixteen hours each working day for 85 per cent of the women. Most of them arise at 4:30 and 65 per cent found leisure time of one to three hours a day, when they mend socks do a little reading or take a nap. None of them indicated that she goes in for exercise in her spare moments.

The weekly schedules compiled are thirty-six hours for washing, including cleaning and extra baking; fourteen hours for washing dishes, pots, pans and milk separators; fourteen hours for working with chickens and cows, eleven hours for gardening, eleven hours for cleaning, ten hours for sewing, six hours for canning and five hours for ironing. With eight hours for sleep, this leaves a total unaccounted for— but then there are the 24 hours.

The daily routine, omitting some of the duties on Sunday, would include: Rise at 5:30, cook stove and tend washing up after three meals and the additional duties mentioned, besides always attending to the cows and chickens; then there is a time to rest in the afternoon; an hour and fifty minutes cleaning the house and another hour and

"CONTRACTING" COLDS

In this season of sniffles and sneezes music is not the only thing transmitted over the air. There is also walking "transmitters" of varying degrees of virulence, broadcast right wherever they go. It may be impossible to keep entirely away from such "carrier" persons" but there are definite cleanliness precautions, health authorities tell us, that will minimize your chances of being a "receiver" of unwelcome "cold" germs.

The word "cold" is a misnomer. We use it because it was handiest. Colds are not, nor because it is the result of cold temperature. It may have had its origin, medical historians say, in one of the characteristic symptoms, chills and fever, just as coughing and sneezing may have led the Chinese to say that they have caught the "wind." A cold is really an infectious disease, although the causative organisms are still indefinitely known.

Most persons indulge in one to three colds a year. Colds are communicable from person to person, just as typhoid fever, diphtheria, and a host of other communicable diseases.

The victim of a cold, says a leading medical authority, goes about his daily business mingling freely with people at home, in public conveyances, in offices, stores and workshops. Thus he has every opportunity for contaminating the disease. He coughs and sneezes his way through crowds. His hands are contaminated by frequent contact with nose and mouth, and unwanted germs upon everything he touches. He is a walking "transmitter."

Here are a few rules of preventing cold infection:

Wash your hands before eating or handling food.

Avoid hand-shaking with cold sufferers if you can, or at least wash your hands immediately afterward.

Keep away from common drinking cups, roller towels and other objects that possibly may be contaminated.

GOAL OF RED CROSS ANNUAL ROLL CALL 5,000,000 MEMBERS

Disaster Relief and Work for Veterans Cause Heavy Drain on Resources.

In order to enable the American Red Cross to carry on its broad activities, ranging from service to the world war veterans to disaster relief in time of disaster, a membership of 5,000,000 should be enrolled, and in this year of 1928-1929 that is to be carried out the twelfth annual roll call, to be held from November 11 to 29, Armistice to Thanksgiving Day.

Dr. Barton Payne, chairman of the American Red Cross at Washington, in calling upon the nation for 5,000,000 such members, directs attention to the great expenditures required of the Red Cross for disaster relief, peace relief work, and for its many other activities, and to the public confidence in and improvement and to cutting down the number of calls for aid, through life saving and first aid courses.

"The Red Cross should at all times have a large reserve fund," Judge Payne declares, "and it has not. Disaster relief, and this organization is called on last fiscal year no money in the treasury, and four and fifty minutes cleaning the house and another hour and forty minutes with the needle.

On wash days an extra six hours should be given to the laundry for the hours on ironing days. Well, the surface made-them stick watchers for one day, anyhow; and, now that they know how many hours they work, maybe the feminine movement will receive some recruits.
