Keep Her Teeth Good

The regular use of a good dentifrice is a far step toward keeping your children's teeth in good condition. It also serves to preserve the gums. The pleasant flavor induces the children to use it often.

A Mistaken Idea

To those who think they "can't afford to buy at Embrys"---we direct this message and invitation.

That the best to be bought is featured here, and that the majority of women concede the palm of Good Style to Embry's clothes, are well known facts. But about price . . . it is a mistaken idea to think that you cannot afford to buy here. Those who believe this have either been influenced by hearsay or have jumped at their own conclusions, without truly investigating.

We are quite confident that you, like many others, will realize the folly and the extravagance of buying anything that the best---for "cheap" things are dear at any price, and give little service or satisfaction. While a $45 Embry dress, or an $85 Embry coat, means the best fabric, the best workmanship and the best value to be procured at the price. You'd pay the same anyway and not get as much!

May we not have the pleasure of showing you the new styles and the opportunity of convincing you by actual demonstration how well you can afford to buy at Embrys?

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK

Observance of Fire Prevention Week started Sunday and will continue through Saturday, October 12. It is a national institution, given official indorsement through presidential proclamation, with the National Fire Waste Council, composed of civilian and governmental agencies, acting as a sort of master of ceremonies. There is no partisan interest behind it. In fact, it is designed for educational purposes to focus nation-wide attention upon methods of reducing fire waste, which is the United States is far higher than in any other part of the world. An intensive program at this time aims to develop public interest upon which people should practice all year to make America safer against fire.

If, as a well known writer puts it, we could photograph simultaneously all the fires that rage in the course of a year, America would appear as a sea of flames.

The organizations that are endeavoring to relieve America of the fire menace advocate an all-year fire prevention campaign, but special efforts are put forth during Fire Prevention Week. To that end all factory managers, business men, home owners—in fact all people who are interested in the preservation of property—are asked to enlist in the movement this Fire Prevention Week by the practical method of eliminating from their establishments and homes everything that may readily ignite or on which fire may easily take hold.

"If you see a man bite a dog, that's news," the old reporters used to tell the cubs. But speaking of news, a Republican speaker here Tuesday night the mad-bite-a-dog story in the shade. He informed his audience that a President of the United States could "repeal an amendment to the Constitution" and that Al Smith had recently made known his intention of repealing not only one amendment, but three. This particular "news" was addressed to the cultured voters, whose intelligence he must have rated as nonexistent.

John Squires Reed, a graduate of the Carlisle high school and of the best quarters that ever wore the green and white, is having success in his first year of coaching football. Coaching at Van Lear, Reed has a very inexperienced team to work with, his team is beginning to show the results of his work. In their first game they defeated Paintsville by 12 to 6; in the second encounter, in a sea of mud, they tied Pikeville 6 to 6, and in the game last Saturday against Pikeville, although outweighed 20 pounds to the man, Van Lear defeated Pikeville 7 to 0. We are glad to see that John Squires is making a good record as a coach and we feel sure that as the season progresses he will have a team that will rate high in the state.

WHAT WAS HIS CREED

(Author unknown)

He left a load of anthracite
In front of a poor woman's door
She deep snow, frozen and white,
Wrapped street and square, mound
ain and moor.
That was his deed; he did it well.
What was his creed? I cannot tell.

"Blessed in his basket and his store"
Is sitting down and rising up
The more he got, the more he gave,
Withholding not the crust and cup.
He took the load in each good task
What was his creed? I did not ask.

His charity was like the snow
Soft, white and silent as its fall
Not like the noisy winds that blow
From shivering trees the leaves a pall
For flowers and weed drooping below.
What was his creed? The poor may know.

He had great faith in loaves of bread,
For hungry people, young and old.
Hope he inspired; kind words he said
To those he sheltered from the cold.
Fog,se should feed as well as pray,
What was his creed? I cannot say.

In words he did not put his trust
His faith in words he never writ.
He loved to share his cup and crust
And left mankind more rich for it.
In time of need a friend was he.
What was his creed? He told not me.

CARTER GLASS ON THE WHISPERERS

This is what the distinguished Senator from Virginia, Carter Glass, formerly Secretary of the Treasury in the Wilson Cabinet, is thinking and saying to the voters along the line of his whirlwing campaign. The citation is from a speech in the Alexandria Gazette of Sept. 21:

"If there are any two religious denominations in the United States that ought to stand responsible and inseparable for religious freedom it is the Methodist and the Baptist, for no two bodies of people have suffered the hardship of persecution more than John Wesley and Roger Williams; or if some one would prefer, I could go back further in history to the founding of the church by John the Baptist; he had his head cut off because of religious intolerance.

"Here in old Virginia, the very cradle of civil and religious liberty, we should be in Where Isaac Backus, Thomas Jefferson, the founder of the Democratic party, considered the greatest Virginian that ever breathed, was the founder of religious freedom. When he came to lie down and die, with his own hand he wrote the Inscription for his monument. He requested that the great statesman Minister from this country to little friends. Thomas Carter, Helen's secretary of State of all times; said nothing about being the honored Vice-President of the United States, but he wrote of his service as Governor of Virginia, said nothing about his terms as President of the United States, but he wrote that he was the author of the Act of Independence and the Virginia Statute of Religious Freedom, and the founder of the University of Virginia."

"My friends, if we in Virginia have any fair degree of the faith of that great man as a legacy as to defeat Al Smith for a religious issue we had better send some of those vandals to Monticello on the 7th day of November to carve from his tomb the inscription which he wrote there with his own hand."

Could anything be better said? What rebuttal—except a whisper—is possible?
