What Plant Foods Do NITROGEN starts the plants off, promotes stem and leaf growth and favors root develop-

Armours

PHOSPHORIC ACID increases growth, nastens maturity and brightens the color.

POTASH adds vigor, strengthens the plant and helps it resist disease; improves the color and effects the even burning properties of the

The proportion of these elements in a formula must be correct. Excessive nitrogen produces a coarse beary leaf, above mature, and of poor quality. Enough Phosphoric Acid to offset the Nitrogen and mature a maximum field in the short growing season without first produced to the produce of the produced produced to the produced produced
