A LITTLE

A little water, a little play

To get you going—

A little warmth, a little light

Of love between—

Is good!

It's the secret of the answer

Of this day's giving—and

Of this day's giving—and

Of this day's giving—and

We reap the good—

—Dr. Maurice

THE TEXT BOOK "JOCKING"

A very neat, the "text" book is available. An absurd plot always, even a series of political humors to attract views, it promises to read them in the flesh of the Commonwealth before the next Legislature assembly and explain it to the people. The book is available in reflected all in the art of public administration. The

BARBARA ALLEN

(A Kentucky Mountain Ballad)

In the heart of the mountains,

There was a fair maid living,

Who was the fairest of them all,

And her name was Barbara Allen.

When the green buds were a-coming,

And the birds were a-singing,

She went to the garden to work,

And she was the fairest of them all.

And she was the fairest of them all,

And she was the fairest of them all,

And she was the fairest of them all,

And she was the fairest of them all,

And she was the fairest of them all,

And she was the fairest of them all,

And she was the fairest of them all,

And she was the fairest of them all,

And she was the fairest of them all,

And she was the fairest of them all,

And she was the fairest of them all,

And she was the fairest of them all,

And she was the fairest of them all,

And she was the fairest of them all,

And she was the fairest of them all,

And she was the fairest of them all,

And she was the fairest of them all,

And she was the fairest of them all,

And she was the fairest of them all,

And she was the fairest of them all,

And she was the fairest of them all,

And she was the fairest of them all,

And she was the fairest of them all,

And she was the fairest of them all,
