THORNLESS BLACKBERRIES PROMISED BY SCIENTISTS

Blackberries and dewberries without thorns has been a subject of interest to many breeders for a number of years. Doubtless those who have picked either of these pests are in sympathy with the efforts of the scientists to eliminate the thorns, and it now looks as if it were to be done, according to George M. Darrow of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Two of the varieties—the Cory blackberry and the Austin thornless dewberry—are ready for market. Several years have now met with fairly good success in growing these varieties in certain southern Appalachian states.

One of the most recent developments in the production of thornless fruits is the variety of thornless crab developed at California. In the summer of 1928 it was exhibited by the Department of Agriculture at the annual meeting of the American Pomological Society. Its place in the list of fruits that can be grown will be determined by further tests.

MUSKETEERS LOSE IN HARD CONTEST

Carlisle High Takes Low End Of 11-12 Score In Game With Richmond

(By John Parker Ross)

In the greatest game of football ever staged on Jacksons Field, the Musketeers were defeated last Friday by the Madison high "Royal Purples" by a one point margin, 13 to 12. What makes the game the more remarkable is the fact that not a member of the Musketeers that saw action in the battle till was in good condition after being injured in one way or another, being cut and bruised from head to foot and this is no alibi. At the half and at the end of the game two or three of the "Fighting Musketeers" had to be carried from the field. Never did a team put up a greater battle against both the visitors and their numerous injuries than did the valiant band of green jersied warriors, well named the Musketeers, on last Friday. D'Artagnan and all of his cohorts would have been proud of their namesakes that day, and well they might be proud of the way they were playing on nerve, inspiration, and the never say die spirit that cannot be forgotten. True, they did not win the game but that saying that it was lost by everyone held good beyond all reasonable doubt. "It matters not whether you win or lose but how you played the game." Carlisle has never been accused rightfully of playing dirty in any sport and that held good beyond all doubt Friday.

The Musketeers scored first when Payne, the greatest football player on the state high school circles, went 75 yards through right tackle for the marker, the try for point was wide. Two minutes later Morgan, the best man on the Madison team, went through right tackle 50 yards for a score and kicked the goal that proved to be the deciding factor in the game. In the second play in the second quarter Payne raced 30 yards through the same hole for his other score of the game, and again the kick was wide. A few minutes later the Musketeer line showed what was in them when Madison had possession of the ball first down on Carlisle's 4-yard line and the Musketeers line held until on fourth down and two to go Madison fumbled and Durham, one of Carlisle's candidates for the All-Conference team, recovered the ball for the locals. Payne punted out on the first down, but Madison resorting to the forward passing game scored their last marker when Morgan passed 25 yards to Maupin over the goal line. Just as the half ended the ball was in possession of the Musketeers on Madison's two yard line and second down, after a sustaining drive down the field. There was no scoring done in the last half although Madison got down to within twenty yards of Carlisle's goal once and the Musketeers had the ball on Madisons twenty yard line when the game ended as a result of a forty yard pass from Barrett to Hazelrigg. The Musketeers completely outplayed the visitors the entire game with the exception of the second quarter, making 13 first downs to Madison's 8 and gaining almost twice as much yardage. Every man on the team gave his all in the game and the outstanding star on the team was, in fairness to all concerned, Conley Gaffin with a back that seemed prefixed to support his head, playing both the visitors and their numerous injuries than did the valiant band of green jersied warriors, well named the Musketeers, on last Friday. COMMERCIAL FEED BILL ON INCREASE Kentucky feeders used 50,000 tons of commercial feeds, exclusive of whole grains and hays, last year than they did in 1927, according to Prof. J. D. Turner, head of the feeds department of the Experiment Station of the University of Kentucky.

He says that as a conservative estimated retail price, more than $15,000,000 were spent by Kentucky feeders in 1928 for commercial feeds. On the basis of the value placed on livestock in Kentucky by the United States Department of Agriculture for January 1, 1929, the cost of commercial feeds for the year amounts to one-seventh of the total value of all livestock in the state. It equals the value of all horses in Kentucky, is three-fourths of all calves, three-tenths that of all cattle, and nearly half that of all dairy stock. It is nearly one-third more than the value of all sheep, two and a half times that of all swine, and one-fourth more than that of all poultry.

From a study of these figures, Prof Turner points out, it will be seen that the expenditure for commercial feeds is one of the chief items of expense in the livestock industry. In many instances feeders do not exercise enough care in purchasing their feeds and too often buy on prices rather than on quality.

It is estimated that at least $40,000 was paid last year for salt used in mixed feeds and more than $45,000 for minerals, principally ground limestone. While these materials are important, they could be purchased apart from feeds at much less cost.

TO THE POOL

I know a road that leads from town,
And a pale road in a Watteau gown
Of wild-rose sprays, that runs away
All fragrant-sandaled, slim and gray.

It slips along the laurel grove
And down the hill, intent to rove,
And crooks an arm of shadow cool
Around a willow-silvered pool.

I never travel very far
Beyond the pool where willows are:
There is a shy and native grace
That hovers all about the place.

And resting there I hardly know
Just where it was I meant to go.
Content like the road that does
In pansieled gown of briar roses.

Shoes worn while working with lime, Portland cement, tar, and other alkaline substances that ruin leather will last much longer if kept well greased. Among the best materials for greasing leather are neat's-foot, cod, and castor oils, tallow and wool grease.

Red clover makes excellent fall pasture for any kind of livestock, but a first-year growth should not be grazed too closely at this time of year, or next season's hay crop may suffer. The clover plants should go into the winter with some growth on the crowns to prevent winter killing and to store up material for early growth in the spring.

Too much concentrated feed for the dairy cow after calving may cause digestive troubles and hinder the production of swelling in the udder. From 4 to 7 pounds a day is enough just after calving, the amount depending on the size of the cow, her production, and the condition of the udder. With good producers not less than three weeks should be taken to get them on full feed.

Pressing improves the flavor of parsnips and it is considered desirable to leave the roots in the ground where they grew until they become frozen. The roots, however, if allowed to remain until they start growth the following spring soon lose in quality and flavor. The period for use can often be extended by digging the roots as soon as the frost is out of the ground in the spring and storing them in a cool place.
