WHAT'S NEW?

The chemical warfare branch of the army has designed a gas mask which will not prevent the wearer from talking and using field glasses.

A shock-recording device has been invented to register the strains on landing gear and other parts of an airplane in taking off or landing.

Transparent slippers are a new type of shoe form, which enables salesmen to see how a given shoe fits or fails to fit.

French railway authorities are considering mechanically hails any train that has passed a danger signal.

By means of a new process, aluminum articles are now being made in a variety of colors.

Railroad trains running to some of the English pleasure resorts are now equipped with windows of "health glass," which transmits ultra-violet rays.

When empty, a light push cart of German invention can be folded and carried under a man's arm.

Get 'Double-Range' Winter Protection

Ask for Mobiloil

AT ANY GARAGE OR FILLING STATION

Lots of so-called "winter oils" are thin enough to give easy starting. They are all right when the engine is cold. But these oils are usually too thin to stand up under high operating temperatures.

Mobiloil Arctic is specially refined for winter lubrication. It flows freely at zero and below—gives quick, easy starting. It spurts instantly to every friction surface the moment the engine catches hold. And yet, at high operating temperatures, Mobiloil Arctic retains the rich lubricating body necessary for adequate engine protection.

Twice the Light on Half the Oil

The new Instant-light Aladdin Lamp is a modern miracle—not only does it produce the highest quality of white light from common kerosene but of a saving of over four times of what the old "yellow flame" lamps used to burn. Just imagine—the new Aladdin that it actually saves its cost in a few months' time, while the wealth of pleasure and comfort in use affords cannot be reckoned in money.

Instant Light

Aladdin

KEROSENE

Mantle Lamp

Gives a quality of light next to sunlight, without odor, smoke, heat or flicker. Lights instantly and lasts a lifetime. Nothing to wear out. So simple a child can operate it. Absolutely safe. Modern in design and finishes, with exquisite shades in glass or parchment.

It would afford us pleasure to demonstrate this new Aladdin to you. There's table, hanging, wall and floor lamps from which to select, and a wide range of prices.

Dear Santa Claus,

I am a little girl. I go to school every day. I want you to bring me a book, a new dress, some fruits and candy. Don't forget my two brothers and my sister. I live on the Stony Creek pike. So good bye.

From your little girl,

INSIDE INFORMATION

A convenient arrangement of the kitchen with work centers in a logical sequence reduces the time spent in it.

Do not undertake to can any meats without a steam pressure canner, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

When introducing new foods into a child's diet, give only one food at a time, and that in small quantity, well cooked and nicely served.

A 2-year-old child can be taught to carry a glass of food or a glass of milk safely, and takes great delight in doing so. He learns self-reliance and independence. He can enjoy a tray of lunch if it is not too heavy, and play at "cafeteria."

Always cook okra in an agate, porcelain, or earthenware vessel. If a copper, brass, or iron cooking utensil is used for this vegetable, the pods will be discolored and possibly made less wholesome.

In choosing school coats, the plainer the style the better. Raglan sleeves and wide front laps allow for growth. See that the collar is comfortable against the child's neck. Some materials chafe the skin. The pocket should be in an accessible position, and wide enough to hold gloves or a purse without tearing at the corners.

Pipes in places outdoors that are subject to freezing may be boxed and surrounded with dry shavings, excelsior, sawdust, leaves, chopped straw charcoal, granulated cork pea or nut size coke, or mineral wool. Indoors, use a commercial covering of wood felt or hair felt lined with tar paper, or a homemade covering of tar paper lining wrapped with felt, covered with canvas, and finished with a good waterproof paint.

In choosing Christmas gifts for the children, avoid complicated or fragile articles that give pleasure only for a short time. Select materials or tools with which the boy or girl can make things. Blocks for the younger ones, paints and crayons for the next older, with some simple pictures to color, and always acceptable. The still older boy will like a few real tools—a hammer, saw, T-square, and plane—while his sister will be overjoyed with a small workbasket, with scissors, thimble and a good assortment of threads and needles, tape measure, emery, and so on.

If your rooms are covered with a figured wall-paper, choose a plain colored curtain material. If the wall-paper and most of the furnishings including the rug, are plain, the curtains may be figured, preferably with a background the same color as the walls or slightly darker than the walls. In choosing figured materials, choose conventional designs that will stand the test of being looked at day after day. Don't forget that stripes tend to increase the height, and if used in excess, tend to give a stiff unconformable effect. Sprawling designs make windows look shorter and broader.

HINTS TO FARMERS

Apples are less susceptible to storage scald when packed in boxes, baskets or ventilated barrels than in the usual tight barrels.

Keep the horse's stall dry and well bedded, and clean it daily. Wet, mucky stalls are likely to cause thrush and other foot troubles.

It is not necessary that a Christmas tree be perfectly symmetrical. Christmas trees cut as part of a thinning operation are often one-sided, but a one-sided tree can be placed in a corner of the room or against the wall where it will serve its purpose fully as well as a perfectly rounded tree.

Cutting the straightest, thriftiest, healthiest young trees in the stand for Christmas trees is like taking the best plants out of the garden and leaving the weeds. To make Christmas trees a legitimate by-product of good forestry, take only those trees which are stunted, crooked, or overcrowded in thickets. Make the cutting a thinning and weeding operation.

If your chickens have worms, add 2 per cent, by weight, of finely powdered tobacco dust (containing at least 1.5 per cent nicotine) to the dry mash. The mixture should be fed for a period of three or four weeks and repeated at three-week intervals as often as necessary. This will control roundworms and to some extent, cecum worms in the flock as well as lessen the danger to young chickens and poults next spring.

One of the most common causes of fire in farm dwellings is the defective chimney, including flues and stovepipe connections. Walls of chimneys should be built of brick, stone, reinforced concrete, or hollow units of clay or concrete. Walls not more than 30 feet high should be at least 4 inches thick for brick or reinforced concrete, 8 inches for hollow tile, and 12 inches for stone. Use only sound, hard-burned brick for brick chimneys. Reinforce concrete chimneys to prevent cracking. Don't use quartz gravel in the concrete. Farmers' Bulletin 1090-F, which may be procured from the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., gives further directions for constructing chimneys so as to eliminate the danger of fire from this source.

Suitable feed and ample exercise are most important points in caring for sow during pregnancy. The best feeds for bred sows are corn, shorts or middlings fish meal or tankage, old-process linseed meal, bran, alfalfa hay or meal oats, and barley. A good way to feed shorts or middlings is to mix about a pound with one-half pound of tankage and feed dry in a trough once a day. At a convenient place between the watering trough or sleeping quarters and the self-feeder put a rack filled with good alfalfa hay, preferably the third or fourth cutting. If this plan is followed, the corn may be fed twice daily in troughs or on a feeding floor. Keep a mineral mixture in a self-feeder. Scattering ear or shelled corn in the field will furnish exercise for the sows.
