SANITATION CONTROLS DISEASES OF POULTRY

Coccidiosis and most other common poultry diseases as well as parasites can be controlled through sanitation, says Dr. F. E. Hull of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

The sanitary program should begin before the chicks are hatched. Incubators should be cleaned and disinfected before being filled with eggs. Brooder houses and all other equipment should be cleaned, disinfected and dried before the arrival of the chicks. Ventilation of the house is also important, as dampness is favorable for the spreading of coccidiosis. Details concerning effective methods of cleaning and disinfecting may be obtained from county agents or veterinarians.

A minimum amount of clean straw should be used for litter. The brooder houses should be cleaned each day. Unless it is possible to dry the house quickly and thoroughly the frequent use of disinfectants is not recommended.

"Utensils used for feed and water should be kept clean. The use of drugs in the drinking water is probably more harmful than good in the case of disease cleanliness. The possibility of the infection into the brooder on the feet or with green feed should not be overlooked.

Portable brooder houses should be moved to clean, well drained soil each year. Yards for permanent houses should not be used except during the brooding season. The use of a concrete brooder ward assists in reducing infection by providing a yard that can be easily cleaned. Sun porters with netting or hardware cloth floors may be used in place of yards.

HOW EDITORS GET RICH

("Flemingsburg Times-Democrat)

The editor of the Times-Democrat has been publishing a weekly newspaper in this town for 51 years. We do not over-estimate it when we say that on an average he has lost $200 per year from delinquent subscriptions and job printing and advertising Now, put $200 at interest at 6 per cent compound interest, and see what it would amount to. Then take the following fifty years and run it out, and you will see that the editor ought to be one of the rich men of the country. But is he? Well, hardly

SANITATION HELPS TO SAVE MORE PIGS

Now that the farrowing season is here one of the problems of hograisers is to save as large litters as possible

Better sanitation as practiced on many Kentucky farms has greatly increased the average number of pigs reared per sow, says Grady Bellamy, extension field agent for the College of Agriculture of the University of Kentucky.

A plan widely used begins with washing the farrowing house with scalding water and lye, before the sow is put into it to farrow. All dirt is removed from the sow by washing her with warm water and soap. This is done to eliminate round worm eggs that may be living in the dirt

After farrowing, the pigs are not allowed in old lots, but kept on clean ground until they are at least four months old. Clean ground means land that has been plowed since last used for hogs or not used as a hog run for at least three years

If pigs and sow must be moved from the place of farrowing they should be hauled, since driving them might result in their picking up round worms

FIGHT TO PRESERVE FALLS AS PARK WON

Senate Passes Bills Over Veto Of Governor Accepting Offer Of Senator du Pont

BILL HAS PASSED HOUSE

The long struggle to preserve Cumberland Falls was won Monday afternoon when the Senate, by a vote of 20 to 11, overrode the Governor's veto of the measure accepting the offer of Senator T. Coleman du Pont to give the state $230,000 with which to purchase the Falls and several hundred acres of land for a state park. The bill barely passed by the constitutional majority of 20. The House had already overridden the veto.

Those voting for overriding the veto were:

Adams, Bartlett, Bondurant, Brock, Chandler, Darbee, Dawson, Franklin, Gilbert, Holloway, Jacobs, Littell, Mc-Brayer, Moore, Pigman, Stevens, Turner, Vincent, Yates and Gates Young—20

Those against overriding:

Bach, Chenault, Fox, Fitzpatrick, Garlin, Johnson, Poole, Rouse, Ryans, White and Adair Young—11

Senator Luker was absent and Senators Booth, Bosworth, Hensley, Page and Williams did not vote.

Tuesday night the Senate overrode the Governor's veto to give the State Park Commission the power to name eminent domain to condemn land for state park purposes by a vote of 22 to 8

Sponsors of the power dam at Cumberland Falls lost their eighth and final skirmish when the bill was killed. The Falls victory was the most closely contested fight which has yet marked the battle to prevent despoilation of scenic beauty. The fight for the offer of Senator du Pont favoring the passing of a permit to the Insull interests to build a power dam at the Falls.

No measure in recent years has had more telegrams and letters on each side. With hundreds of affirmats on each side the measure would have died passed for the past three years.

CENSUS REPORTS ABSENT FAMILIES

Fifteenth Decennial Census Of United States To Be Taken During April By 100,000 Enumerators

Census Bureau makes special provision for enumeration of families absent from home on April 1 during the month of April.

The Fifteenth Decennial Census of the United States will be taken during the month of April. The enumeration will be made by a force of about 100,000 enumerators, who will go from house to house and secure the information required for the census. Every person is to be enumerated, as far as possible, by the "usual place of abode" or the place where he usually lives. Where individual members of a family are away from home at the time the census is taken they will be reported by the enumerator by other members of the family.

For guests there it is known in advance that the whole family will be away from home at that time, special provision has been made by the Director of the Census in the form of the absent family schedule which is to be filled out by some responsible member of the family in advance of the census date and transmitted to the local Supervisor of the Census. A copy of this schedule may be secured by application to Mr. Porter M. Gray, of Ashland, Kentucky, who is the Census Supervisor of this district.

Families planning to be away during the month of April, leaving the home closed or with no one in charge who is qualified to give the census information to the enumerator, are urged to obtain one of these schedules at once and to fill it out and send it to Mr. Gray at the earliest possible date. Or if the house is left in charge of a servant who will be sure to be at home when the enumerator calls, the schedule may be left with such servant for delivery to the enumerator. The information furnished on this schedule will be treated as confidential and will be used only for the tabulation of statistics which will not reveal any information with regard to individuals or families.

SAMPSON VETOES ARE OVERRIDDEN

Highway Reorganization Bill Becomes Law As Both Pass Measure

ENDS HARDEST FIGHT

Both branches of the Legislature Thursday overrode Gov Flem D. Sampson's veto of the highway reorganization bill. This action made the present state highway commission was abolished and the supervision of a new commission under Democratic executive control was provided. The veto was overridden by the Senate 23 to 15, three votes more than necessary, and by the House 58 to 39, eight votes more than necessary.

Immediately after the veto on the highway bill had been overridden, the House of Representatives overrode Governor Sampson's veto on the bill abolishing the present state textbook commission and providing for the establishment of a new commission.

The third major blow of the day came when the Senate refused to confirm the four members of the state highway commission appointed by Governor Sampson. The state will be without a highway commission until another commission is appointed.

The Legislature's action Thursday, accomplished solely through the power of Democratic majorities in each house, established a precedent in the history of the state for a one-day session over the governor's veto message and in rapidity. The end of the democratic party fight to reorganize the highway department was the hardest fought political battle in the history of legislature in the last quarter of a century.

Governor Sampson's message in which he vetoed the bill was read with great and thrilling dramatistery phrase.

GETS LIFE SENTENCE FOR STEALING SIX CHICKENS

Jim Asbury, negro, will spend the rest of his life behind the prison bars at the Frankfort reformatory for the theft of half a dozen chickens, according to the verdict of a jury returned in the Bourbon circuit court at Paris Tuesday afternoon.

Asbury was faced the court under the habitual criminal act, entered a plea of guilty to the charge, he having previously served time for chicken stealing. The charge under which Asbury was convicted was the theft of six chickens from the barn of E. Clockman, near Paris. He was arrested after selling the fowls to a Paris commission dealer.

The Kentucky legislature will adjourn its session on Thursday, March 20, it was decided Monday by both houses now have all bills under consideration and only such bills as are brought out by that body will be considered. The last few days of the session the governor can control all legislation by "the veto power. There are now more than 1,100 bills in the hoppers and hundreds of them will never be brought out for consideration in the limited time now left to consider them.

As the pallets in the poultry flock begin to lay eggs they need fairly large amounts of calcium for the formation of eggshells. This is probably best supplied in the form of oyster shells or limestone.

JESSE H. DONNELL SUICIDES AT HOME

Well Known Carlisle Man Fires .38 Calibre Bullet Into His Brain

CAUSE ACT UNKNOWN

Jesse H. Donnell, 49 years old, ended his life at his home on Fourth street about noon Friday by shooting himself through the head with a 38-calibre revolver. His lifeless body was found in his room a few minutes later by his mother, Mrs. Rhoda Donnell.

The cause of the act is unknown, but friends and members of the family generally declare that he had been suffering from an organic ailment for the past year and his health had failed. It is believed worry over the condition was partly responsible.

Mr. Donnell went downstairs at 11:30 to his room. A few minutes later he came down the stairs and talked with his mother. He then went back upstairs. After he had been there for a few minutes Mrs. Donnell heard a shot. She rushed upstairs and found the report was in the street, going to the room she found her son and when he failed to answer her knock opened the door. With the pistol clutched in his hand Mr. Donnell was lying on the bed and life was practically extinct. He is thought to have lain on the bed before shooting himself.

Mr. Donnell was a son of the late James L. Donnell and had spent all of his life in Carlisle and Nicholas county. For many years he was in the tax collector, exhibiting horses at the various county fairs. He also served as tax collector. Mr. Donnell and his family were prominent socially.

He is survived by his mother and two brothers, William and Keller Donnell, Lexington, and a sister, Mrs. Jed Louisville.

Funeral services were held at the home Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, conducted by Rev. E. H. Cruickshank, pastor of the Christian church. Burial followed in the Carlisle cemetery.

CHARGE STATE TRUCKS WITH EXTRA WEIGHT

The charge that state highway trucks were being used to haul liquor for consumption by state police employes in Bell county was made before the legislative investigating committee at Frankfort Saturday. Two witnesses appeared before the committee and declared that the man responsible for the hauling was the driver of one of the trucks was a maintenance foreman in charge of a state highway project between Pineville and Harlan. J. H. Lee, Bell county democratic leader, appeared and charged that the foreman "drank liquor generally" and said he had seen him under the influence of liquor while supervising road work.

The fire was discovered about 9 o'clock Wednesday night, a short time after the store had been closed. The entire interior of the store was a mass of flames when the fire was discovered. The fire is believed to have started near the coal oil tank in the rear of the store, and is thought to have been caused by a cigarette carelessly tossed on the floor.

Nothing was saved from the store. The loss to the building is estimated at $4,000 and the contents $9,500. The building was owned by S. T. Cameron, of Carlisle. The loss on building and contents was par-tially covered by insurance.

WARNING AGAINST "FAKE" SOLICITORS

Charles H. Mohr, Salvation Army Agent, Says Organization Makes But One Appeal Annually

Charles H. Mohr, field representative for the Salvation Army, made the Army's annual appeal in Carlisle last week. Through The Mercury he wishes to thank all who so kindly made a donation. His Honor, Mayor Veach, and Nicholas Post, 17, American Legion, for indorsing and signing the petition with Mr. Mohr for the appeal.

Mr. Mohr said to The Mercury: "If any appeals are made here, unless for local purposes, all appeals should be first investigated before allowing any solicitations. I am told there is an ordinance to that effect in Carlisle. Either, Salvation Army officials will not hesitate to lay its credentials on the table before the Mayor. We will not be solicited any more this year, either, before or after Easter. However, if one of the Salvation Army workers should call here to sell the Army's paper, The War Cry, you will know the solicitors are not "frauds." "On the other hand all persons for the cause I represent must have the indorsement of the Mayor of the town in which they solicit. Concluding Mr. Mohr said: "It is a hard matter to apprehend these 'fake' solicitors getting money in the name of the Salvation Army, and I shall do all in my power to protect the people from this graft as well as assist this sag of work. I know that the Army most depends upon of any other legitimate organization for the cause I represent and bear this in mind. The Salvation Army affiliates with all fraternal lodges, churches, orphanages and welfare organizations in every city and always ready to respond to any emergencies in Carlisle or any other cities or town in the division I represent."

"Kentucky For Progress?" Yes! Answers State Press As Long Fight To Save Cumberland Falls Is Won

WHERE CREDIT IS DUE.

(Louisville Times)

Bringing a fight to a finish and ending in the sheaves.

And now come rejoicing, bringing in the sheaves.

Handsome boulders at Cumberland Falls, just right in tone and texture, as a background for those sheaves, are gigantic.

If the largest of them were covered with names it would not bear the name of all of those to whom credit for the victory of Kentucky at Frankfort yesterday was due, but several would not have been possible without overwhelming public sentiment.

The Times, not knowing where to stop, must have to content itself with erecting a bronze tablet bearing the names of the lawmakers who voted for the du Pont acceptance bill, and the Governor who signed it. Of course, the presiding officers of the two houses of the General Assembly, one of them, Lieutenant Governor Breathitt, an elected member of the body over which, by virtue of his office, he presides, the other, Mr. Milliken, Speaker of the House.

But how about Attorney General Cammack, and Assistant Attorney General Gilbert, whose gallant defense of the State, in their brief against the Sampson-Rankin veto, was a great inspiration in the fight? And how about Chairman Fields' State Park Commission, among conservationists, the Christopher Columbus of Cumberland Falls, who discovered the treasure, November when he formed his Anti-State Park Association?

And John C. Doolan, and John W. Barr, Jr., and the flying squadron from the highlands, headed by Dr. C. E. Vogel of Barbourville and "Tom" Gallagher, Wade Candler and "Boss" Blair of Corbin?

And Frederick A. Wallis of Paris, who set up with the legislature, most of the time and dreamed of details of the fight when he fell asleep?

And former Senator Richard P. Ernst, who presided over preliminaries and arrived from Florida, for the fray, when the battle was on, and conventions had been crumpled Saturday? And Wilson Lyons, Democratic floor leader, and Speaker Milliken, Democratic floor leader, and Speaker Milliken, Democratic floor leader, and Speaker Milliken
