THE CARLISLE MERCURY

ESTABLISHED 1867

Entered at the Carlisle Postoffice as second class matter

WARREN FISHER, EDITOR
GRIMMI CAYWOOD, NEWS EDITOR

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Year (in advance)	$2.00
Six Months (in advance)	1.00
Three Months (in advance)	.60

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1930

THIS, THAT AND T'OTHER

A PAGE FROM THE DIARY OF A COUNTRY EDITOR

Awake after a night's restless tossing, casting my poor sorrowin, the Lord help me, thirst for the honey-lenders seem disthrilled, and sorely beset with the problem that afflicts all of us, poor improvident wretches, who have swindled the butterfly rather than the ant during the fat years of high prosperity. Yet, we butterflies slipped at many a flower and caught many glimpses high over garden walls, while grubbing ants toiled and stored with never a look skyward—a pretty thought, yet bearing scant solace for him to whom the howling of the wolf comes, if ever so distantly. Truly the days of mildred Hoover's reign grow such as to test the courage of the hardiest, a courage grown soft through disuse during the fat years of plenty. And how rare is real courage! of the kind that may be summoned to aid, in the grey stillness of a troubled night, at the zero hour of some mental crisis, when no fife thrills, no drum sizes to action. Rare and splendid is true courage and few men possess it. When they do, they rise above their fellows. Heights! I must invoke this quality, if there is ile be sound sleep o' nights for me this winter.

So, to welcome again the risen sun and another day and heartened somewhat by the rare sparkle of October sunshine. Topping a distant ridge the crows pass sendlessly, lazily and the distant caw comes through the frosty air most serenely typical to me of Kentucky, of pastures glistening with frost, save where a fat steer has slept, or the grassy nest of a rabbit has defied the icy time. Away back along the path of memory comes the dragging and jingling stirrups across a porch, the creak of saddle leather, the low of cattle, hog-calling, the crackle and incense of wood fires under steaming lard kettles, the smell of the cold steel of a gun, barrel and of powder on the fingers, the perfume of rotting hemp, the aroma of country ham and boiling coffee—all these bodied forth from the realm of boyhood's recollection by the harsh, unmusical, but, to me, sweetly sweetly lingers.

• • •

"I'll tell you," quoth Will of Avon, "who Time ambles withal, who Time trots withal, who Time gallops withal, and who he stands still withal." And right well I remember the droning days of the schoolboy, when Spring burgeoned and Time stood still withal. But not again. Time flies, faster than the patter of the bare feet of my young daughter, a blonde nestling of two Maytimes ago, now precocious grown and mighty like her sex in tearing wiles, who comes to snuggle with me. And I gut at her like a distant parrot for a verse someone has taught her and that she says with stumbling prettiness

The wild geese are flying away from the fold.
With soft downy feathers and bills bright as gold.
Their leader cries, 'Ready!' and onward they go.
And soon will come Winter with drifts of white snow

A parroted jingle to her now, but some day I hope she will think with a thrill of the flying wedge of the wild geese driving southward like a scouring cloud of the whistling brat of the wings of the wild duck, that she will hear something beside a raucous cry in the call of a crow, be conscious of all the nice and beauty that Nature lavishes so abundantly for him who will see on fallow field and bare-limbed woodland and the variously splotched canvases of her Autumn skies. For in Nature alone, I think, is the Change made beautiful and the hope of resurrection.

Of which thoughts my blonde fledgling thank Heaven! now were not at all and began me out of such immoral maunderings in a trice by jouncing sturdily a-straddle on a stomach that is not of the least early 1 the morning. And I fear I have filled her young head too full of rhymes and jingles, for once a-thyme she jingles merrily on through a metrical repertoire that a schoolmarm and doting parent has taught her. And I chorkle at this one:

Dogs in the mountain, fish in the sea.
Well, a red-headed woman made a wreck out of me!

Which is a base slander on my fledgling's sorrel-topped and more important parent, for if there has been once any wrecking, the teacher of the rhyme aided and abetted by the taught, has done it. And so I plague her to repeat Lewis Carroll's quaint rhyme, her rendering of which never tires me, fond distant that I am—

"Tis now high time de warmus sed
To spik o' sunter sings—
Uh shone 'n shpine in semis wa
To cali-sag-ree 'n hinds.
'N if uh sea is boyin hot,
'N weather fair ave wings

With the sentiment of which, as expressed in the second line, patient readers of this hodge-podge will doubtless agree.

• • •

So up and to a breakfast of country sausage, as fine as I have tasted this year, and to eat in the kitchen, where one can scrape the cakes from a sizzling skillet and reach gingerly into the oven for a biscuit that will melt the butter and so to a biscuit in every one of the word and not the cool semblance of these poems of our Southern culinary art so often found piled bettines on a cold plate in the best of dining rooms. And earh hot biscuits and hot sausage and hot coffee, strongly brewed. are of the concentrates of this chill season "when chill November's surly blast makes field and forest bare." There comes, too, to soften the winter of our discontent, spare-rib and savory bottom and golden sorghum— gifts of the winter gods.

So to breakfast well and drink too much coffee, having backslid inglloriously as regards my boasted abstinence from the brew of the coffee bean—and mean to stop again some day, after the sunsin of my new house a-building. Lord help me! is ever, when I will find still further excuse for continuing my morning cup I hope, for there be fewer solaces I find as Time begins to gallop withal, and the fragrant brew of the coffee bean is one of these.

• • •

Down into the town and to my new house a-building and envy the good workman, Gilbert Head, the completion of what in April was a jumbled pile of wreckage. A great satisfaction it must be to the artisan to see his work grow and take form and the carpenter who builds well. It seems to me, is as great an artist as he who fashions a poem or paints a glowing canvas. And while I linger about the yard, I note the coming of the winter birds, the wens and chickadees and downy woodpeckers, wondering, no doubt, at the passing of the stub of cherry tree on which a lump of suet has always hung, and I must remember to set a post for another bird lunch-station, for members of the hardy feathered tribe which winter with us are a constant source of pleasure to the bird lover. Winter overcomes their fear of man and they come close and feed fearlessly and they hardy courage under the scourge of icy wind and snow and sleet is stimulating to contemplate. Many lessons are to be learned from the winter birds. One is the quality of their courage in the face of difficulties; another is exemplification of the wisdom of the teaching of a carpenter's son, of Nazareth:

Take therefore no thought for the morrow; for the morrow shall take thought for the things of itself. Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof

Yet few of those of Nature's children who arrogate to themselves alone a soul—blessed and cursed with the gift of thought—are able to achieve the comfort of living for today.

To read the morning papers, filled with the doings of politicians, become, the campaign waxing hot, as the crackling of thorns under a pot. A bore is politics more often than not, but this race has been not without its saving grace of humor. For surely it is not beyond the sense of humor of anyone, partisan or no, to appreciate the sly tendenss with which our friends, the Republicans, have been hoist with their own petard. Even milord Hoover, with the solemn dignity which attends the office-seeking merchant: "My success is due probably to 10 per cent work and 90 per cent luck." I will revise that statement to "due to 90 per cent luck." In Julius Caesarwald, I think, Diogenes might fittingly end his search.

• • •

At this, that and t'other all day, casting my accounts with doleful face and home in the grey of late twilight tired and discouraged. But in the glow of the firelight I sit and look at a young man, immersed in his reading, and note the "young mule" angles and the big-boned roughness of the young male and I am glad that there is somehow for the round faced little lad who saw the prints of sleigh-runners in the sooty chimney on Christmas morning. It seems, fancied he heard in the hushed stillness of a Christmas Eve the slim tinkle of reindeer bells. Soon he will face and buffet the blast of life, sink or swim, as the fates and his own hardihood decree. Again Time gallops withal!

And she, who came to us with the roses of two Maytimes past, when peonies flaunted their beauties in my garden and the blue of delphinium vied with the azure of the skies and the slim catbird sang so feelingly to his breeding mate, comes now to my knee and to me chatter of her sex to charm me from the doldrums. And I, foolish dotard, in defiance of the parchologists who forbid such trick take her on my knee and prompt her to say a verse of the old ballad that rang through my head one whole week of that Maytime, when the catbird sang from my cherry tree in joy of four blue-green eggs in a nest, and my heart sang for joy of a blonde nestling that came to us with the first of the roses. So, intrigued, I fancy, with the name of the heroine of this old ballad, come down over the Wilderness Trail from the highlands of Scotland to us, because it is her name, my baby does her best to sing

'Twas in the merry month of May.
The green buds they were swelling.
Sweet William came from the Western States
And courted Barbara Allen.

• • •

As I sat later in the glow of a dying fire on the hearth, there comes to me a thought that is the culmination of thought of someone groping to see beyond the curtain, to bolster a drooping faith, to achieve the comfort of a philosophy—that as we live again in our children we shall achieve immortality. Who, with certainty, shall say?

So to sit the fire out and presently to sleep.

The Love Of Woman

(A. A. Bowmar in The Woodford Sun)

In Sunday's Courier-Journal, in the "Point of View" department, Hugh Malcolm McCormick has a poem which concludes with these pessimistic words.

"Whoso shall love a woman
He shall pay, pay, pay—
Till his worn heart be broken
And love shall pass away."

It is usually in youth that we men take these gloomy views, so I imagine that Mr. McCormick must be a young man. After reading his well-written verses, I picked up a pencil and wrote the lines given below. As they were the work of a few minutes, and as I am not a poet, I remember the fact that they have no literary merit, but I publish them simply as the effort of an older man to offset the sadness of the Courier-Journal's poet. As Ben Johnson said to Sylvester in the rhyming contest, my lines are not poetry, but they are the truth:

Fear not to love a woman.
'Twill fill your life with glory.
With tenderness and laughter,
With poetry and story.

Fear not to love a woman
Whose heart is good and true.
'Twill set your feet upon a road
Which you shall never rue;

For though it lead over hill or dale
Or over the pathless sea.
The end of it is happiness
Great as can ever be

A journey through the world for her
Though every step were pain.
Would count but naught when you could look
In her dear eyes again!

Frost In The Night

(Charles Greenville Wilson)

Last night before the third cock crew, the flowers
Began to marshal on the broad highway,
From garden nook and field they came in hours
And formed their ranks in colorful array;
Till just before the dawn hushhed in the East
That sprightly host in gorgeous pageantry
Took up its march, unseen by man or beast,
Southward to warmer wind and summer sky.

And all that we could find at break of day
Were hiveaxes untenanted and torn,
And tattered tags of their pavilions gay,
But as we were about to grieve and mourn
And turned as if to follow in their track,
We heard the words, wind-borne,
"We will come back."

30 Years Ago

Thursday, November 6, 1900

Rev. B. A. Dawes arrives to assume pastorate of Carlisle Baptist church.

Dr. M. Dills installs new X-Ray and electric treatment machine, the first of its kind in this section.

Edmund Cumbliss and E. T. Rule announce as candidates for the Democratic nomination for Assessor.

Hobbers enter store of Miss Josie Cain Monday night and steal about five dollars cash drawer.

Robert L. Parks leaves for Cincinnati to take position as bookkeeper for the H. & S. Pogue Company.

Tom Spratt, negro, found dead on the farm of Samuel Anderson Monday his death being due to a heart attack.

In the election Tuesday, returns indicate election of Benjamin Harrison over Grover Cleveland for President. T. H. Paynter, Democrat, elected Congressman from Ninth district. Nicholas county gives Democratic majority of 549

Married—Miss Mollie L. Duckworth, of Carlisle and Mr. Christopher Herr, of Harrison county, on October 31st. Miss Nora Hurdis and Mr. Jno. D. Lynam, both of the county, on the 1st.—Miss Cora Brasher and Mr. J. D. Linville, both of the county, on the 1st.—Miss Laura Oxley and Mr. William B. Cooper, both of the county, on the 4th.

Married—Miss Cynthiana Dallas and Mr. Henry Creasy, both of Carlisle, on the 5th.—Miss Addie Morris and Mr. George H. Fuller, both of the county, on the 1st.—Miss Elizabeth Mattox and Mr. Rolla Kenton, both of the county, on the 1st.—Miss Ines Burgess and Mr. Oliver Dale, both of the county, on the 3rd.—Miss Maysie Ryan and Mr. W. H. Tucker, both of the county, on the 7th.

42 YEARS AGO

Thursday, November 8, 1888

Herman T. Conway leaves for South Canadian, Indian Territory on prospecting trip.

One of the biggest crowds ever seen in Carlisle attends John Robinson circus here last Thursday.

Many fights staged here election day. Al Myers, deputy sheriff, cuts Jim Williams, a negro, about the head and Williams resists arrest.

Charles Stump, who has resided in Carlisle for the past several months, disappeared from his home last Thursday and nothing has been heard of him since.

At the request of a number of women, city council, in session Monday night, passes ordinance prohibiting for a fine of $10 for spitting on the floor of any church in Carlisle.

OUT OF A JOB

He comes cheerfully down to the side door of the plant where a "Help Wanted" sign is all but employes. There is a good lunch in his dinner pail. The family is well. There are going on a picnic tonight in the car, which is almost all paid for. After he gets home, he'll listen to a program over the radio, which is only half paid for. The thought of those future payments on household equipment may give him a little qualm at times, but after all, he can meet them. He's got a job.

But has he? The foreman meets him as he goes in.

"Orders to lay off 20 men," he says "You're on the list, Jim. Sorry."

It happens that quick. One moment, a contented prosperous citizen, the next, a jobless wanderer with a great fear in his heart.

Urban workers are living on the edge of a precipice. Every pay envelope provides but little surplus. Sickness, bad luck, or bad management may keep them using up every cent they earn for years to come. When the job stops, when pay stops, it means that the family will soon face suffering for the family, always mental anguish for the family's head.

Until he can find another job, every industry in the country suffers from fear prices go down because folks can't afford steak; butter prices go down because folks can't afford oleo; cheap substitutes; the effect is felt in every field.

What can we do about it? We can't force individual employers to keep men on when business is bad. That would simply mean bankruptcy for the employer and worse results for everybody.

But we can establish unemployment insurance. We can force industry to provide work for its own victims. We will do it. It is a case for collective action by the whole nation. —Wallace's Farmer.

DID YOU KNOW?

That the man who piloted the U. S. S. Oregon through the waters of the Argentine republic on her great trip in the Spanish-American war is still living? He is a British subject living in Punta Arenas.

That a vessel of the United States navy was used in an emergency to supply light and power to one of our Atlantic cities? The U. S. S. Wabash came to the aid of Tacoma, Washington.

That there are about 175 different kinds of fish in the United States navy?

That men over 74 inches in height may not be enlisted in the United States navy?

That the above information was furnished by the United States navy recruiting office, McDowell building Third and Walnut streets, Louisville.

OLD FAVORITES

THE EARTH AND MAN

(Stopford A. Brooke)

A little man, a little life,
A soft wind blowing from the west—
And woods and fields are sweet again—
And warmth within the mountain's breast.

A little man, a little life,
A little love, a little strife,
Then Thousand years have dawned and fled,
And still her magic is the same.

A little love, a little trust,
A soft impulse, a sudden dream—
And life as dry as desert dust—
Is fresher than a mountain stream.

So simple is the earth we tread,
So ready for new hope and joy;
Yet thousand years shine ill began
Have left it younger than a boy.

UNFORTUNATE

"Did you enjoy your trip to Newbunkport?"

"No, we had to detour around some of the best billboards."

UNDER SUSPICION

"Are mosquitoes bad around here?"

"Well, I never seen 'em any good mosquitoes, did you?"—Florida Times-Union.

Why Women Prefer ALLEN'S PARLOR FURNACE

Heats Your With Oldtime Fireside Cheer

WHEN you buy an Allen's Parlor Furnace you will have, not only the most modern and efficient above-the-floor warm-air furnace, but a heating system that offers you these advantages:

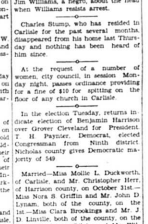
1—Combines circulated, moist, warm-air heating with oldtime fireside cheer.

2—Harmonizes with latest furniture. Beautiful natural walnut effect is reproduced in porcelain—enamel finish.

3—Burns any fuel—saves 25 to 50 per cent. Generously proportioned doors and firebowl.

4—No smoke, dust and dirt. Hot blast smoke consumer. Efficient with cheap fuels. Ash door is on the side and closed when grates are shaken. Roomy ash pan.

5—Designed and constructed low on the floor to warm lower strata of air, insuring warm floors.



C. R. KING

"I Haven't Used Tuxedo 50 Years, but—"

"I've used it the whole five years I've had my own farm, and I know Dad used to swear by Early & Daniel when I was a boy.

"I've proved to my entire satisfaction that Tuxedo Dairy Does lengthen the lactation period—Does build up the cow's health—Does make cows give more milk—Does pay. And so I'm mighty glad to wish the makers of Tuxedo a very prosperous 50th Birthday, because they've certainly contributed to my own prosperity."

Every sack of Tuxedo Dairy is a scientific blend of selected grains, mineral salts, and pure Cane Molasses—milled in the exclusive Tuxedo manner. A high-quality feed, yet the cost is surprisingly moderate. Ask your Tuxedo dealer or write to Tuxedo dealers, who will give you real service. Try Tuxedo!

TUXEDO FEEDS 50TH ANNIVERSARY

Carlisle Mill & Supply Co., Carlisle. Millersburg
Cecil & Lander Co., Millersburg. Sharpsburg
Nalling Co., Sharpsburg.

Tuxedo Dairy

A Protein Content for Every Requirement—16%, 20%, 24%, 32%

2 Radio Programs a Week—over WLW | Every Tuesday, 12 noon—"The Tuxedo Nutritionist" | Every Friday, 12 noon—"The Tuxedo Fiddler"

Public Sale Of City Property

As agent for Mrs. Green Feeback, I will expose at public auction to the highest and best bidder, on Monday, November 10

at 1:30 o'clock, P. M.,

a lot of ground, containing 7 acres, more or less, lying near the city limits of Carlisle, Nicholas county, Ky., known as the "Tony Slaughter House Lot," located at the foot of North Street, and having an entrance from North Street. This is a first-class building site, now getting into a nice and timothy, virgin soil, well located and watered.

Also at the same time and place will sell the dwelling occupied by the late Green Feeback, located on North Street, in Carlisle, Ky., near the vacant lot, said dwelling consisting of six rooms, well located, with necessary outbuildings, good condition; equipped with water and light. Immediate possession.

Terms will be reasonable and made known on day of sale. The purchaser may take this property and pay for it from same. Immediate possession given.

For further particulars, call upon

R. M. SMITH,
Agent for Mrs. Green Feeback.

NEWS OF KENTUCKY

The Citizens and Deposit Banks at Vanceburg have consolidated.

The new school building at Dover, Mason county, will be dedicated next Tuesday.

Erk Hewitt, 23 years old, shot and killed Felix Isbell, 21, in Warren county Saturday.

Ms. Mary Hellon, of Knox county, last week celebrated her 107th birthday anniversary.

A large number of cases of diphtheria have been reported throughout various sections of Kentucky.

A total of 10,923 persons in Louisville registered as being unemployed in two days registration last week.

Mrs. E. P. Thomason, 80 years old, died at her home in Millersburg last Thursday following a short illness.

Twenty-six sows were submitted for the construction of a new postoffice at Harrodsburg, the low bid being $62,200.

The plant of the Marion Milling Company at Marion was carried by a fire Friday night, causing damage of $35,000.

Arthur J. Rice, 45, Louisville merchant, was burned to death when gasoline kept in his garage exploded.

Mrs. Anna Thompson, 87, a native of Paris, who as a child danced with her hands with Abraham Lincoln, died at her home in Chestnut Thursday.

Dr. Hugh Dunn, 72, student at Transylvania College, Lexington, died last Thursday night when a Halloween carnival prank resulted in a gas store explosion.

George Bentley, 70, a recluse, was found dead in the ruins of his home in Pike county last Thursday. It is believed the aged man was robbed and the home set on fire to cover up the crime.

Harry A. Thomas, 54, recluse, was found dead in his home at Henderson Monday with a fractured skull, caused by a crack in the floor and caused him to fall.

Prohibition agents from the Lexington office last week conducted a series of raids in Morgan, Elliott and Magoffin counties in which ten large stills were destroyed and seventeen men arrested.

The court house at Lebanon was declared "unsafe and very insanitary" by the state board of health and the county grand jury in session last week. The jail was also pronounced in bad condition.

At Kansas City Friday, Paul Kauffman confessed he strangled 7-year-old Arlo Guinn to death after luring her to Kansas City from her home near Leach, Boyd county, on the promise of a job.

Bryant Simmons, of Maysville, was arrested last week on charges of being an accomplice of George Hornback in the attempted robbery of a store at Maysville in which Hornback was shot and seriously wounded.

Charles Cain, -35, Madison county farmer, was killed instantly Saturday night when an automatic shotgun in the hands of his son-in-law, Searcy Portwood, was accidentally discharged while the men were coon hunting.

Five steel bones, believed to be part of the loot obtained by bandits who robbed a bank at Leipsic, Ind., last week, were found near Todd's Point in Shelby county last week. One of the bones contained $23.00 in bills.

Two Kentuckians are listed among the recipients of 124 scholarships awarded by Yale University. The Kentucky students are Don Edwards Cooper, a law student from Somerset, and Robert Galvin, art student from Berea.

In the Whatley circuit court last week a jury returned a verdict awarding Marion Hood $250 damages against the Eagle Distilling Company at Corbin, for selling Hood Jamaica ginger which caused "jake leg." Hood sued for $25,000.

Twenty-three persons were hurt in automobile accidents in Kentucky Sunday. At Dry Ridge five persons were injured, when three cars and two automobiles piled up. Eighteen persons were hurt in accidents near Louisville.

A number of citizens of Paris have filed suit in the Bourbon circuit court to require the water company to furnish 24-hour day service.

Dependent because he was out of work, Collins Isaacs, 23, ended his life at the home of his mother-in-law, Richmond Thursday by drinking poison.

Clarence Neace, 22, is dead and his brother, Logan Neace, 18, is wounded as a result of a gun battle Sunday afternoon on Lost Creek in Perry county.

Jake McIntosh, 67, shot and killed his 50-year-old wife and then ended his own life with the same pistol at the McIntosh home in Webster county Friday.

Pretext forages may cause indigestion, Milleroids, Prof. Dr. Jones, superintendent of the Bourbon county poor farm, declared that the automobile was stolen.

The University of Kentucky Wildcats suffered their first defeat of the season Saturday when the powerful Alabama Crimson Tide defeated the Kentuckians 19-0 before a crowd of more than 20,000 people at Lexington.

When three youths attempted to rob the cash register of Charles Marshall, proprietor of a restaurant on the Richmond road in Fayette county Saturday night, the proprietor entered the room with a shotgun and frightened the men away.

Putting her foot on the accelerator when she started to apply the brake, Mrs. Ruby Kincaid, 27, of Lexington, missed a bend and crashed into a wagon which she was driving on the Versailles pike Friday in which her husband was killed instantly and her two children suffered injuries.

A man and woman identified as Mr. and Mrs. O. W. O'Connor, of Louisville, were arrested in Paris when their automobile was struck by a train, at a crossing near Maysville.

The three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Wick Tackett was burned to death and a younger child seriously injured Saturday when fire destroyed the Tackett home in Pike county.

Two unmasked white men, whom he had escaped to give a ride, robbed Roy L. McCormick, of Lexington, of $21 and a watch Saturday night on the Athens-Lexington highway, it was reported to officers.

Seth B. Goodnight, four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Daisy Goodnight, of Mount Sterling, was severely burned when he fell into a basin of boiling water at the home of his parents.

Miss Ethel Dunn, 22, student at Transylvania College, Lexington, was severely burned last Thursday night when a Halloween prank resulted in the explosion of a gas stove.

Flames caused when a kettle of kerosene, thought to be water, was placed on a stove in the stove, trapped 11 children in a negro school house at Emerson Monday morning before the fatality and two others seriously. The dead are: C. J. Bryant, 66, was badly burned on the face and hands.

Ed Green was lodged in jail at Hopkinsville Monday on a warrant sworn out by his wife, Louise, 19, known in Western Kentucky as the "Snake Bride," charging him with kidnaping her at the point of a pistol. Mrs. Green left her husband while they were living in Detroit, she said. She was married and "bought" her from her father for a team of mules and a wagon.

Kentucky Tobacco Tax Shows Heavy Increase

Internal revenue receipts from the tax on tobacco manufactured in Kentucky during the first nine months of this year exceeded the figure for the corresponding period of 1929 by $1,- 186,238.37, according to a report issued by the Treasury Department last week.

Federal taxes collected in Kentucky on cigarettes showed an increase of $1,000,000, while the increase on manufactured tobacco and snuff amounted to about $185,000. The tax collected on cigar manufacturers in Kentucky, on the other hand, showed a decline of about $23,000.

Kentucky collections on cigarette manufactures amounted to $12,038,940 for the first nine months of this year, compared with $7,894,280 for the first nine months of last year. The amount collected during the first three-quarters of this year on manufactured tobacco and snuff in Kentucky amounted to $2,597,961.73 compared with $2,432,397.- 23 during the same period of last year. The collections on cigar manufactures for the first nine months of 1930 was $146,227.33 compared with $169,626.77 during the same period of last year.

The three States exceeded the Kentucky figure on Federal tax collections for cigarette manufactures for the first three-quarters of 1930, whereas five States exceeded the Kentucky figure for the corresponding period of 1929. The three States with higher figures on Federal cigarette taxes than Kentucky are Texas collecting $13,200 in a month, North Carolina, $179,538,655; Virginia, $61,065,964; and Kentucky, $11,741,000.

Receipts for the first nine months of 1929, as reported by the University, which Kentucky students are Don Edwards Cooper, a law student from Somerset, and Robert Galvin, art student from Berea.

In the Whatley circuit court last week a jury returned a verdict awarding Marion Hood $250 damages against the Eagle Distilling Company at Corbin, for selling Hood Jamaica ginger which caused "jake leg." Hood sued for $25,000.

Twenty-three persons were hurt in automobile accidents in Kentucky Sunday. At Dry Ridge five persons were injured, when three cars and two automobiles piled up. Eighteen persons were hurt in accidents near Louisville.

A number of citizens of Paris have filed suit in the Bourbon circuit court to require the water company to furnish 24-hour day service.

Dependent because he was out of work, Collins Isaacs, 23, ended his life at the home of his mother-in-law, Richmond Thursday by drinking poison.

Clarence Neace, 22, is dead and his brother, Logan Neace, 18, is wounded as a result of a gun battle Sunday afternoon on Lost Creek in Perry county.

Jake McIntosh, 67, shot and killed his 50-year-old wife and then ended his own life with the same pistol at the McIntosh home in Webster county Friday.

Pretext forages may cause indigestion, Milleroids, Prof. Dr. Jones, superintendent of the Bourbon county poor farm, declared that the automobile was stolen.

The University of Kentucky Wildcats suffered their first defeat of the season Saturday when the powerful Alabama Crimson Tide defeated the Kentuckians 19-0 before a crowd of more than 20,000 people at Lexington.

When three youths attempted to rob the cash register of Charles Marshall, proprietor of a restaurant on the Richmond road in Fayette county Saturday night, the proprietor entered the room with a shotgun and frightened the men away.

Putting her foot on the accelerator when she started to apply the brake, Mrs. Ruby Kincaid, 27, of Lexington, missed a bend and crashed into a wagon which she was driving on the Versailles pike Friday in which her husband was killed instantly and her two children suffered injuries.

A man and woman identified as Mr. and Mrs. O. W. O'Connor, of Louisville, were arrested in Paris when their automobile was struck by a train, at a crossing near Maysville.

The three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Wick Tackett was burned to death and a younger child seriously injured Saturday when fire destroyed the Tackett home in Pike county.

Two unmasked white men, whom he had escaped to give a ride, robbed Roy L. McCormick, of Lexington, of $21 and a watch Saturday night on the Athens-Lexington highway, it was reported to officers.

Seth B. Goodnight, four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Daisy Goodnight, of Mount Sterling, was severely burned when he fell into a basin of boiling water at the home of his parents.

Miss Ethel Dunn, 22, student at Transylvania College, Lexington, was severely burned last Thursday night when a Halloween prank resulted in the explosion of a gas stove.

Flames caused when a kettle of kerosene, thought to be water, was placed on a stove in the stove, trapped 11 children in a negro school house at Emerson Monday morning before the fatality and two others seriously. The dead are: C. J. Bryant, 66, was badly burned on the face and hands.

Ed Green was lodged in jail at Hopkinsville Monday on a warrant sworn out by his wife, Louise, 19, known in Western Kentucky as the "Snake Bride," charging him with kidnaping her at the point of a pistol. Mrs. Green left her husband while they were living in Detroit, she said. She was married and "bought" her from her father for a team of mules and a wagon.

QUICK RELIEF FOR COUGHING SPELLS

Famous Prescription Stops Them Almost Instantly

The amazing success of this prescription called Thoxine is due, to its almost immediate action in relaxing and soothes the irritation and goes directly to the internal cause of the trouble. Two doses usually relieve the most severe ordinary cough. The very first swallow usually stops even the most severe coughing.

Thoxine is pleasant tasting and safe for the whole family, including the baby. It is guaranteed to relieve the most severe cough or the druggist is authorized to refund your money. Ask for Thoxine Two Way Cough Relief with Double Action. Sold by Turseman & Sun's Drug Store.

Sentence was deferred.

STRANGE HEART

Equestrienne: "I had a close call while riding in the park. My horse ran away and—"

Motorist: "Don't tell me that there are still horses that shy at automobiles."

Equestrienne: "Oh, no. You see, we met another horse."

During the month of October the Kentucky Children's Home Society, London, has found homes for 19 children, according to a statement by Dr. D. R. Waller, manager of the Home. This is the highest yearly record in the history of the Home.

Expect Good Baby Beefs At Bourbon Stock Yards

The ninth annual Fat Stock Show at the Bourbon Stock Yards in Louisville Nov. 12, 13 and 14 promises to be one of the best in years, according to entries in almost every division, Junior agricultural, club boys and girls in 13 counties have entered a total of 540 head of baby beeves, while at least a normal number of entries are being made in the Smith-Grass and adult feeders' sections.

Fifty-eight members, who have won many of the top honors in previous shows, expect to be contenders for high places in the open classes this year. Warren county will send the largest number of animals finished by 4-H Club members, 78 head of mixed cattle, most of them well fitted.

Garrard county, always a contender for first places, both in the club calves and in the open classes, will present 48 well-finished Angus calves. Previous to last year, the Garrard county club won five consecutive grand championships at the Louisville show. Bottcher Bros., Goodnight, Ky., won highest honors in 1929.

Washington county 4-H Club will show 34 Shorthorns and Angus; Shelby county, 34 Angus; Clinton county, 30 Angus, Angus and Hereford, and Jessamine county 29 Angus. Eighteen other counties will have smaller numbers of well fitted animals at the show.

The cattle will be sold at auction following the show. Most county agents have prospects of a fair profit on 4-H Club calves, despite the high prices of pasture and water.

Premiums to the amount of $5,000 will be awarded by the University. The Kentucky will be divided among the Fayette, Lexington and Kentucky Utilities Company, a law student from Somerset, and Robert Galvin, art student from Berea.

In the Whatley circuit court last week a jury returned a verdict awarding Marion Hood $250 damages against the Eagle Distilling Company at Corbin, for selling Hood Jamaica ginger which caused "jake leg." Hood sued for $25,000.

Twenty-three persons were hurt in automobile accidents in Kentucky Sunday. At Dry Ridge five persons were injured, when three cars and two automobiles piled up. Eighteen persons were hurt in accidents near Louisville.

A number of citizens of Paris have filed suit in the Bourbon circuit court to require the water company to furnish 24-hour day service.

Dependent because he was out of work, Collins Isaacs, 23, ended his life at the home of his mother-in-law, Richmond Thursday by drinking poison.

Clarence Neace, 22, is dead and his brother, Logan Neace, 18, is wounded as a result of a gun battle Sunday afternoon on Lost Creek in Perry county.

Jake McIntosh, 67, shot and killed his 50-year-old wife and then ended his own life with the same pistol at the McIntosh home in Webster county Friday.

Pretext forages may cause indigestion, Milleroids, Prof. Dr. Jones, superintendent of the Bourbon county poor farm, declared that the automobile was stolen.

The University of Kentucky Wildcats suffered their first defeat of the season Saturday when the powerful Alabama Crimson Tide defeated the Kentuckians 19-0 before a crowd of more than 20,000 people at Lexington.

When three youths attempted to rob the cash register of Charles Marshall, proprietor of a restaurant on the Richmond road in Fayette county Saturday night, the proprietor entered the room with a shotgun and frightened the men away.

Putting her foot on the accelerator when she started to apply the brake, Mrs. Ruby Kincaid, 27, of Lexington, missed a bend and crashed into a wagon which she was driving on the Versailles pike Friday in which her husband was killed instantly and her two children suffered injuries.

A man and woman identified as Mr. and Mrs. O. W. O'Connor, of Louisville, were arrested in Paris when their automobile was struck by a train, at a crossing near Maysville.

The three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Wick Tackett was burned to death and a younger child seriously injured Saturday when fire destroyed the Tackett home in Pike county.

Two unmasked white men, whom he had escaped to give a ride, robbed Roy L. McCormick, of Lexington, of $21 and a watch Saturday night on the Athens-Lexington highway, it was reported to officers.

Seth B. Goodnight, four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Daisy Goodnight, of Mount Sterling, was severely burned when he fell into a basin of boiling water at the home of his parents.

Miss Ethel Dunn, 22, student at Transylvania College, Lexington, was severely burned last Thursday night when a Halloween prank resulted in the explosion of a gas stove.

Flames caused when a kettle of kerosene, thought to be water, was placed on a stove in the stove, trapped 11 children in a negro school house at Emerson Monday morning before the fatality and two others seriously. The dead are: C. J. Bryant, 66, was badly burned on the face and hands.

Ed Green was lodged in jail at Hopkinsville Monday on a warrant sworn out by his wife, Louise, 19, known in Western Kentucky as the "Snake Bride," charging him with kidnaping her at the point of a pistol. Mrs. Green left her husband while they were living in Detroit, she said. She was married and "bought" her from her father for a team of mules and a wagon.

Strawberries Should Be Grown In Every Garden

A new circular called, "Strawberries for the Home Garden," written by Prof. A. J. Olney, head of the department of horticulture, University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, says that strawberries should be grown in every garden. The circular says that every family should be grown generally in home gardens. Strawberries yield on the acre, planted row 200 feet long is about 50 bushels. Individual soils and methods of the patch is given good care.

Prof. Olney in the circular, gives in a concise manner full directions for growing strawberries. Directions for growing soil, fertilizers, plants and planting, varieties, cultivation, protection from frost, and how to be established from county farm and home demonstration agents or from the agricultural college. Ask for Circular No. 238.

Stunted And Frosted Crops Cause Trouble Among Stock

The dry season with its stunted and immature crops is resulting in many many inquiries to the Experiment Station, University of Kentucky, regarding feeding smutty grains and moldy forages. Letters also have been many inquiries regarding the danger from frosted crops, such as corn, sorghum, sudan grass, clover, alfalfa, rye, etc.

The Department of Animal Pathology states that there is no danger from feeding smutty corn or oats.

Several cases of botulism or forage poisoning have been reported in the state. This is a specific toxemia. The toxin is produced by the germ Bacillus botulinus. The germ is more or less present in animals on the feed. Smutty feeds than well matured clean feeds. In the case of an outbreak of botulism there are two courses open.

If there is only a small amount of the feed that is causing the trouble, then destroy the feed.

If there is a large supply of valuable feed, animals may be rendered immune to the disease by treating them with the anti-botulinus serum and then feeding small amounts on the feed.

Frosted forages may cause indigestion, Milleroids, Prof. Dr. Jones, superintendent of the Bourbon county poor farm, declared that the automobile was stolen.

The University of Kentucky Wildcats suffered their first defeat of the season Saturday when the powerful Alabama Crimson Tide defeated the Kentuckians 19-0 before a crowd of more than 20,000 people at Lexington.

When three youths attempted to rob the cash register of Charles Marshall, proprietor of a restaurant on the Richmond road in Fayette county Saturday night, the proprietor entered the room with a shotgun and frightened the men away.

Putting her foot on the accelerator when she started to apply the brake, Mrs. Ruby Kincaid, 27, of Lexington, missed a bend and crashed into a wagon which she was driving on the Versailles pike Friday in which her husband was killed instantly and her two children suffered injuries.

A man and woman identified as Mr. and Mrs. O. W. O'Connor, of Louisville, were arrested in Paris when their automobile was struck by a train, at a crossing near Maysville.

The three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Wick Tackett was burned to death and a younger child seriously injured Saturday when fire destroyed the Tackett home in Pike county.

Two unmasked white men, whom he had escaped to give a ride, robbed Roy L. McCormick, of Lexington, of $21 and a watch Saturday night on the Athens-Lexington highway, it was reported to officers.

Seth B. Goodnight, four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Daisy Goodnight, of Mount Sterling, was severely burned when he fell into a basin of boiling water at the home of his parents.

Miss Ethel Dunn, 22, student at Transylvania College, Lexington, was severely burned last Thursday night when a Halloween prank resulted in the explosion of a gas stove.

Flames caused when a kettle