PERHAPS IT WAS THEIR SOX SUPPORTERS

It's sad to think that we shall never know what kinds of cigarettes were responsible for the manly virtues of George Washington and Andrew Jackson.

Now is the time to dip livestock for flies, sheep ticks, tree ticks, and mange. These pests will be more troublesome later on, when it will be too cold to dip stock.

Dry Fall May Change Tree Planting Time

Fall is considered the ideal time to plant trees and shrubs in Kentucky, under normal conditions. Dry weather, however, has brought about a condition unfavorable to planting trees in many sections of the state.

Unless there is plenty of rain by Nov. 15, it probably will be better to defer extensive plantings until next spring, suggests R. B. Elliott, of the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky. Even with plenty of rain, the planting season probably will be somewhat later this fall than normally.

If the ground is too dry to make fall planting advisable, it would be well to create favorable conditions for spring planting by digging the holes now. Winter rains, freezing and thawing tend to loosen the ground and put it in good condition for planting.

MEMORY BELLS

(After half a century)
I know a sweet and sacred spot
Where jets of silver sands
And sparkling water tidbits up ager, swirling strands.

And near the pathway to the spring,
Once bloomed beside the way,
A dainty flower—a beauty shower,
Too perfect for decay.

Upon a slender, vibrant stem,
By elfin fingers rung,
Were rows of living, breathing bells,
On threads of moonlight strung.

Their tinkling tones were much too fine
To reach the ears of men,—
Their slender throats too exquisite
For human tongue or pen.

Logan, Williamson And Vinson In Lead In State Balloting

Democrats Piling Up Lead As Early Returns Are Tallied and Vote Cut

RETURNS ARE MEAGER

At six o'clock Wednesday night the Associated Press gave a summary of the vote in the State in which it stated that returns from throughout Kentucky indicated the election of Logan and Williamson. Precincts in Louisville, which have reported, showed a net loss of 8 votes to the good start from the 1928 election, indicating a majority for the Republican ticket in Louisville of about 12,000 instead of the 28,000 given in 1928.

The Tenth and Eleventh districts, with meager returns, were a disappointment to the Republicans. Seventh district, a Republican stronghold, returned a small Democratic majority. All of the Democratic nominees for Congress are leading their Republican opponents by heavy majorities with returns from about one-fourth in the Associated Press Summary.

The summary, with returns from scattering precincts in the Republican counties, gives Vinson a lead of more than 2,000 over Kinchloe.

Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic National executive committee, at 6 o'clock Wednesday night claimed the election would give the Democrats 66 House seats, exactly half of the total, and 223 House seats, five more than a majority.

Indications from early returns bringing the news that the Democrats carried the cities of Louisville and Harlan, in the Eleventh district, that Madison county, usually close, went Democratic by a majority of 600 votes with Elliott, Rowan, Magoffin safely in the Democratic column and every evidence that the Eleventh district has "fallen down" so far as its old loyalty to Republicanism is concerned supporters of Judge Logan and Ben Williamson were jubilant over the returns which indicated that the Democrats would carry the state by a majority of more than 2,500. That Mason county would give Logan and Vinson majorities of from 1,200 to 1,500 was regarded as the count neared completion.

Reports from the Republican district indicated that Logan, Chapman and the rest of the ticket would win by majorities of from 10 to 12,000.

That Ben Williamson had polled a tremendous vote in Bourbon, Kennedy was evident as returns began to come in.

M. M. LOGAN

In Bourbon county, the fight over the bond issue for the purpose of erecting a new court house, was won by an overshadowed the general election, the issue carrying 2,026 to 1,744. However, voters found time to cast ballots for the Democratic ticket, with exception of returns indicating a majority of 800 in Democratic majority of about 1,000.

The race in Fleming county was a hectic one, the Democratic ticket piling up a majority of 61, Williamson 60 and Vinson 120.

Bath county returned a Democratic majority of 900. Robertson county gave Logan a majority of 374, Vinson a lead of 386.

Nicholas county gave Judge M. M. Logan a majority of 482 votes over John M. Robsion for the long term in the United States Senate, Williamson a majority of 607 for the short term, Eva B. Kendall, a Nicholas county boy, led the Republican ticket in the county but lost the county by his Democratic opponent, Fred M. Vinson, by a majority of 584 votes.

The counting of the ballots was completed about 2.15 o'clock Wednesday afternoon by the election commissioners.

The election in Nicholas county was one of the quietest ever held, no disorders being reported at any of the voting precincts.

With a total vote of 2,856, Nicholas county's vote was about on an average with the "off-year" vote and was 97 less than the number cast in 1926 when only the Gallatorial race appeared on the ballot. Interest was more involved in this race Senator Barkley carried the county and the Democratic Presidential nominee, Alben W. Barkley, received 1,800 votes to 1,056 for Frederick M. Fentress, Republican Presidential election in 1928, and the vote for the Democratic ticket was
