College Furnishes Many Building Plans

More than 10,000 farm buildings have been erected in Kentucky in the last seven years from plans furnished by the agricultural engineering section of the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky, which has developed 120 farm building plans especially for Kentucky conditions.

The majority of these buildings have been for poultry, a total of 6,194 being modern brooder and laying houses. Last year 1,946 poultry houses were constructed to meet the requirements of efficient housing as advanced by the poultry department of the College of Agriculture.

Increased interest in dairying and livestock in general is indicated by the fact that 1,596 modern farm barns and 963 hog houses have been built since 1924.

During the last two years there has been a growing demand for building plans for air cured burley tobacco barns, due to the increasing acreage of burley grown in recently bottoming the bluegrass region and in western Kentucky.

Thelma Lentz, 19, of Paxton, Ill., who is the author of three novels, expects to meet expenses of a college education through the sale of her writings.

"I've just read Swift & Company's 1931 Year Book . . .

"This book is most interesting to me, because I'm one of the 200,000 producers of cream, poultry and eggs who sell to Swift & Company. It is just as interesting to everyone who has something to sell to Swift & Company, as well as the housewife who buys food for her family.

"This book showed me the source of Swift & Company's profits, which come, mainly, from savings in expenses, and not at the expense of the producer or the consumer. What impressed me was that Swift earns its dividend from an average profit from all sources of only a small fraction of a cent a pound.

"The chapter on Swift & Company's produce plants on page 35 held my attention, for here is shown how the company creates a direct road to remote markets for the producers' products. And you may learn how Swift's marvelous distributing plan serves producer, small retailer and consumer in every corner of the country.

"I know that Swift & Company will gladly send you the 1931 Year Book free of charge. Send for it; there's information of interest to every man and woman. Just fill out this coupon below."

THE GARDEN

PREPARING THE GARDEN

(By John S. Gardner, Kentucky College of Agriculture)

Even though actual gardening may not begin for a month or so, it is time now, to begin getting ready.

The first step is breaking. Just when and how to break and how to proceed from then on depends in a minor way on the condition in which the garden is, but in a great majority of cases breaking should be done at the first opportunity, now. This is true in almost any year, but especially in this. Because of the shortage of rainfall this winter, the land is in excellent breaking condition. After the land is broken it will be better able to absorb and conserve the rain that will fall from now on. Since moisture plays so large a part in growing vegetables the importance of thus assuring a moisture reserve cannot be overemphasized.

And, now, to discuss specific cases. Those persons who are fortunate enough to have a double garden, half of which stood in grass or in an early sown crop of rye, or if the "cover crop" was merely weeds, last year, should break without delay, previously top-dressing with a generous coat of manure. By "generous" is meant two loads to every square of space 100 feet on a side. If less manure than this can be had, it should be spread after breaking.

If the garden is bare, or covered only with fall sown rye or kale or turnip greens, the quantity of manure turned under may be increased by half, but breaking should be done now. It goes without saying that any vegetable tops or vines there are should not be removed, but turned under, for they furnish humus and some plantfood. Turned under now, they will have decayed and broken up so as to give no trouble in cultivating, by the time the garden is put in. The same suggestions as to manuring, just given, apply here, as well.

After breaking should follow deep harrowing twice with a disk harrow, to cut up the furrow slices and to work in the manure in cases where it is applied after breaking. The garden will thus be left level and in the best possible condition for the rains that fall from now on to sink in. This harrowing should be given as well to gardens broken last fall or earlier this winter, even though the rains this winter have not thus far caused soil to "run together." The object is to conserve rains from fall on.

So much for garden preparation in regard to humus; next week the plantfood question will be taken up.

PLENTY OF LAMBS

(Courier-Journal)

From everywhere in the Bluegrass come reports of big lamb crops. The mild winter has been kind to the little fellows and their mothers, with a low mortality rate as a consequence. Until the recent rains it seemed as though many flocks would have to be fed, thus running up the production costs for the farmer. The breaking of the drouth, however, has restored life to the grass and assured a successful period of preparation for the market.

The combination of a mild lambing season and the probably propitious period of feeding undoubtedly means the flooding of the markets in May and June. This is borne out by the reports from various breeding centers. Montgomery county, for instance, reports the largest lamb crop in many years, while Madison county expects to market 15,000 lambs. If the producers of the big sheep raising counties hit the market at the same time, the price is certain to suffer a drop.

Early lambs bring the best prices. Every farmer knows that. Lambs are not commanding the same price as last year, however, not only because the price of all commodities is down, but on account of the surplus of sheep throughout the nation. There are more sheep, the Richmond Register estimates, than at any time in the last forty years. During such a period of unemployment and industrial depression as that from which the country is beginning to emerge, the present supply of sheep is too great. With prosperity restored, mines, mills and factories again running full blast and all business improving, the demand for lamb chops, legs of lamb and other cuts from this choice meat animal increases. May that demand return before this year has passed its meridian.

Kroger Gross Sales Last Year Totaled $267,086,028

The Kroger Grocery & Baking Company, the second largest food distributing organization in the country, reports net profits for 1930, after deductions for Federal taxes and interest charges, of $2,158,247—equivalent, after minor payments on preferred stock and subsidiary preferred stock, to $4.15 per share on 1,813,486 6-30 shares of outstanding common stock.

This compares with net earnings of $5,818,986, equivalent to $3.27 per share on the 1,735,726 16-20 shares of common stock outstanding at the end of 1929.

Sales for 1930, including two operating days in 1931, were $267,086,028 as compared with sales for 1929 of $288,811,214—a decrease of 6.81 per cent.

Inventories of January 3, 1931 are $19,937,671, as compared with inventories at the close of 1929 of $22,080,580—a reduction in inventory of slightly over $2,000,00. On April 4, 1930, inventories amounted to $23,130,469.

BILL BOARD ADVERTISING

(Cynthiana Democrat)

The Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs has undertaken a movement for the prohibition of bill boards on highways, the object of bringing out as fully as possible natural scenery. Kentucky is wonderfully rich in scenic beauty. Almost every through highway has its share. No. 27, for instance, that traverses the state from Covington and Newport, through Falmouth, Cynthiana, Paris and Lexington, on south to its terminus, presents scenes of striking grandeur, as well as peaceful landscapes entrancing in their appeal. In Harrison county, along the ridge at Kelat and vicinity, there is a scene of hills and valleys, woodlands, meadows and cultivated fields difficult to excel.

It is almost a sacrilege to deface this natural beauty with glaringly painted and papered signs that obstruct the view forcing on the attention of tourists advertisements of things they are trying to escape by going into the country. Some of the states have forbidden roadside signs of any character. Kentucky would do well to look into the matter and listen to the women's appeal. Bill boards are not infrequently are so located as to prevent a positive necessity for the obstructing view of the road ahead, as well as shutting out scenery on either side.

While the women are engaged in having the largest area removed, it would be well to look into the matter of defacing trees also; the roads with small signs of almost every description tacked to them in haphazard way. The towns, like Cynthiana, for instance, have forbidden the defacing of telephone and electric power poles with signs—why not extend the prohibition to the trees along the roads in the county? Nothing is uglier than the signs of cardboard, metal or wood defacing trees.

DISINFECTING SEED POTATOES

Many farmers who formerly disinfected their seed potatoes by a long-time soak in a corrosive sublimate or formaldehyde solution now use the hot-formaldehyde or organic-mercury treatments which take only a few minutes. By either of these methods one man can treat 100 bushels of seed in a day at a cost of only $1 an acre. Gains in yield of from 20 to 30 per cent often result from seed disinfection. Soak the seed for 2 or 3 minutes in a solution of 1 pint of formaldehyde to 15 gallons of water, kept at a temperature of 124 degrees to 126 degrees Fahrenheit. The containers in which organic-mercury dusts are sold give directions for treatment. The solution is usually made by adding 1 pound of chemical to 3½ gallons of water. Treat the seed before sprouting occurs and prior to cutting. If potatoes are treated several weeks before cutting, do not put them in containers in which untreated tubers have been stored unless the containers also are disinfected.

THE DEATH TOLL

(Anderson News)

The United States was active in the World War for eighteen months. During this time there were 50,510 Americans either killed in action or died through wounds received. Sherman was right.

But now in the time of peace, there have been 32,000 people killed in the country in the past eighteen months by automobiles. Four hundred and ninety more than were killed on the battlefield in the same length of time.

Unless those driving automobiles give more thought to human life there is no telling where it will all end. Laws seem to be of no effect, and if the laws did have teeth in them, it seems that there is always a judge or a slick lawyer to get offending drivers out of trouble.

The only thing that can be done, it seems, is to arouse public sentiment against reckless driving, as most of the deaths are due to this cause. Drunken driving is one of the main offenses, but the law seems to be very lenient in such cases.

The toll of death by automobiles is mounting higher each year, and every driver should use extreme care in driving, which would help hold down accidents materially.

Most maps of Chile are now out of date, because that country has recently been surveyed and now has sixteen instead of twenty-two provinces.
