Kind Words for White Rose

One of our best county merchants said he had been catering to the whims of his patrons for cheap flour, but has decided he has been doing them an injustice as well as degrading his own business. He has been making some tests himself and finds that the so-called cheap flour is not only the highest priced in the long run, but that most of it makes bread of very inferior quality. He has always handled some White Rose Flour but says he is going to push it now as the quality is so much better and the price very little more.

WHEN VISION IS PRICELESS

In maturity we depend more upon our eyes than in youth. Vital to success and happiness as clear, comfortable vision at all times is, it becomes more and more a source of pleasure as we advance in years. In business we "make our heads save our heels." We graduate from running errands to the office and desk of executive. Our sight becomes the principal tool of our brain. Vision becomes vital to success.

Consequently, from early youth on, not a year should pass without a thorough consultation with Optometrist in regard to the conditions of our eyes.

Why Your Child Must Have A Good Posture

(State Board Of Health)

In good posture the head is held straight above the shoulders, the chest is high and well forward, and the abdomen flat. Not one child in a hundred has this good posture, but when the head is stuck out in front, the "shoulder-blades" stand out like wings, the chest is flat and sunken, and the abdomen protrudes. Such posture is not conducive to good health, for the sunken chest crowds the lungs so that they do not have room to expand and take in as much fresh air as they should. The abdomen protrudes in front indicates that the organs of the abdomen are out of place and therefore not firm and strong as they should be. Such a child will not have the strength nor life to do its best work if some of the machinery of the body is out of order. Most of the time, however, when we expect the "human machinery" to do good work either under these circumstances. And he may be sure it is out of order. If, in school inspection or daily routine, your child's posture is marked "fair, poor or bad, try to help him to make it good or excellent, so that he may be a Kentucky Blue Ribbon child. His poor posture may be because he is undernourished, does not get enough rest, or from bad habits of sitting, standing and walking. The following will help him to get good posture; Lie, from five minutes to one-half hour daily, on a flat surface, on his back, with no pillow under his head. Shoulders should be behind the hips. Stand erect. Tips touching. Head and chin up. Shoulders back. Arms and his elbows touching the sides. This will train him to get his body in good position, and practice will help him to keep it.

Straight men and women will not be crooked little boys and girls, so help your child to grow to be a Kentucky Blue Ribbon Child.

THE ETERNAL TRIANGLE

He was mine once; no other dared claim him,
And of me, only me, he was fond.
But of late there's a younger attention,
She is beautiful; dainty and blond.

He still rushes madly to see me,
He is happy with me a moment or so.
No longer we spend evenings "two-some?"
He seems always eager to go.

So I've vowed I'll be happy without him.
That he shall not ruin my life.
For I'm sixty years old, she's his mother;
And, I, too, love his little blond wife.
