SOMEWHERE IN NICHOLAS

(By J. W. Rogers)

We think it interesting to compare some of the things mentioned in Edward Bellamy's unique novel, written in 1887, "Looking Backward," in which he jones as living in the Golden Age of 2000, and tells us of social and economic conditions there with the developments of the present time. Touching on the subject of music, he said:

"All really fine singers and players are in the musical service, and fifty per cent of us hold our peace. We enter a room finished with new devices in musical instruments, a program of the day is handed us, from which to make a choice selection, the exact time for which being marked, and the program is an all-day, and all-night one. On entering one or two scenes of the most strange, new, musical devices, the room is instantly filled with perfectly rendered selections of our choice, as never before heard. They are so coordinated as to be as distinctly heard in different rooms at the same time Every body is provided with such music in his home, perfect in quality unlimited in quantity, suited to every feeling and taste, and beginning and ceasing at will."

How like our modern Radio!

Touching on other services he said:

"If you wish to hear a sermon, you can do so, either by going to church or by listening to the preacher who is to hear sermons in church, while remote in his home, perfect in quality and hear a sermon in the music room of their home. Also, at a meeting of the town you would prefer to hear from a program of sermons, you have only to touch a button, the voice of a man in ordinary pitch is heard addressing us from all branches of the hall. At the close of the sermon, the melodious voice of the Church Choir is heard. How like our modern Radio!

Many other of our modern economic conditions were prophesied, which time will not allow us to mention here. The Golden Age believed by Bellamy, to be "not far away," may be nearer than A. D. 2000.

YOUR PERSONAL APPEARANCE

Personal appearance has much to do with getting on in the world. Every man should take a little more pains and time to it when her younger years are passed. Many men are handicapped in the case may be. Men do what they can to improve their appearance, but with them they are young but incline to grow careless in old years.

Personal appearance has because so many people are made hideous by the disease of dyspepsia that it is no need of this.

The art of the really efficient Optometrist is sufficient to produce beautiful results of cradle once more and hold his glasses.

It is simply appalling to note how many otherwise presentable persons are disfigured by poor vision of the eyesight.

Be as particular about your spectacles as you are about your other apparel.

WINTER WINDOW

When I look out of my window
In Winter, I can see
Roofs that the green of Summer
Will hide away from me.
There are lines of snow on the mountains,
The hills are far and blue—
If you live long by the mountains
They call to and answer you

When I look out of my window
I see where the long road lies,
It goes from city to city,
An old road and wise.
It has lived so long by the river,
And known so many men,
It says the same thing over
And over again:

The road says—
You who sit by the window,
And you with the magic eyes,
Here I am, I am waiting,
Happy and blest are ye.

Rev. S. H. Cunningham.
Dear Bro. Cunningham:

Owing to the very unusual and intensely interesting manner in which you handled the subject "Christians" at yPrayer meeting last Wednesday evening, a very large majority of the sixty or more present at that meeting, earnestly desire that you repeat this sermon on Sunday morning, March 8, 1931, and thus give opportunity to the congregation, at large to hear it.
