Leading Man in Benefit Play

JOSEF SAULINE

"Roosters Sometimes Crow," which the T. N. is supporting, will be for the benefit of the penny lunch fund which he is Carlisle at the school auditorium, for one night, Friday, September 18.

This is a company which comes to us after a successful tour of several Eastern states and a run in Chicago. It is a comedy that has made thousands laugh.

Of particular interest is the fact that the lunch fund is to receive 30 per cent of the receipts. This is very worthy cause and we feel sure that everyone is wishing it success. So give "Roosters Sometimes Crow" a full house, help the lunch fund and have a pleasant evening's entertainment. The management, the leading man, whom many will no doubt remember, has played in Carlisle several times with Bud Hawkins Co. Dolly Crawford, the comedienne, was also a member of Mr. Hawkins troupe.

There are many features with this company, one of which will entertain the children. It is a little dog, which has a human brain. It is a perfigured fox terrier and her amazing intelligence, is well displayed in her feature act. Mr. Mostin, the trainer and owner, has played leading vaudeville circuits with this act and has been a big hit everywhere.

SEPTEMBER DAYS

(B. Y. Williams)

Locusts, shrill heralds, cry, "Summer is dying!"
Softly, like tears the first fading leaves fall.
Soon through the air the white flakes will be flying;
June with her roses is past our recall.

Yet before chill of the winter endows us,
Days that are dearer because they are few
Come as a respite; the charm of them holds us,
Could earth be fairer or heaven more blue?
Who is so dull that he cannot remember
Some of the glorious thrill of September?

Youth, heart of mine, like the summer is fading;
Soft, like the leaves, fall the hopes long held dear
Age creeps upon us with chill all-pervading;
Grimly approaches the end of our year.
Still a few days while the warm sun is shining,
Still a few blossoms are yay by the wall!
There is no time now for useless repining;
June with her roses is past our call.

Quick, before Life's flame dies down in the embers,
Heart of mine, live the glad days of September!

AUTUMN FRAGRANCES

The obvious perfumes that have sailed
The nostrils soothed by Summer drift away
By the wind. The last wild rose has paled.
The darkened clover drowses, but today
A secret richness lingers in the grass,
A mellow fragrance hides within the husk,
And senses simple where old orchards mass
Their cider-tang in this soft-breathing dusk.

through shadowed vines the fragrance drifts over home mint that our steps bruise in passing.
We touch new richness in familiar shapes
Of bush and wall, as all these deferred
Their fullness till this time when hests must need
Fragrance of harvest—and new faith in seed.

—Edwin Ward Drebisch in New York Times.

AL SMITH SILENT

Alfred E. Smith remained noncommittal last week as to whether he would run for President again. Commenting on an article in the New York Post to the effect that he would not allow his name to go before the Democratic national convention, Smith said:

"I have not authority to speak for me. I did not give out any statement and I have nothing to say at this time about events which are still in the future."

The Post story added that Governor Roosevelt would probably be opposed by Newton D. Baker and that Smith would be opposed by Governor Ritchie of Maryland if the latter favored repeal of prohibition.

Baked pears are good. Wash them, cut in halves and core. Place in a baking dish. Sprinkle with sugar and a little salt, add a dic of butter and a very little water. Cover at first, until the fruit is soft. Baste occasionally with the liquid in the pan. Add more water if necessary to keep the pears from burning.
