When the Politicians
the Taxpayer's Money
Who are the chief advocates of municipal ownership of electric power?
They are politicians, certain electric machinery men, men who can acquire a profit from the sale of municipal bond issues, and promoters of the social form of government.
To gain their ends these people need freedom from taxation; electric service is granted at cost; the tax-payers and expensive municipal improvements from the profits of the electric plant.
But something is wrong with that idealistic picture. It doesn't work according to practice because these politicians are not in fact for what he gets. Sometimes, if he is smart and very wealthy, he gets his money's worth in the matter of reasonably honest and capable government. But he never gets anything for nothing from the politician-extract trouble.
He stays plenty in full for what he gets. Sometimes, if he is smart and very wealthy, he gets his money's worth in the matter of reasonably honest and capable government. But he never gets anything for nothing from the politician-extract trouble.
This applies equally to the federal, state and municipal governments. The nation with special emphasis on state and municipal governments.
Much of the blame for present-day conditions is due to the fact that the politicians are rapidly waking up to the fact.
