Minister Held In Hopkins County On Statutory Charge

Rev. Herbert Sheets, 29, pastor of a church at Benton, Hopkins county, was jailed at Madisonville Friday without bond on a charge of rape preferred by Dulie Parker, 17. The minister denied the charge.

The girl obtained a warrant issued Friday that the alleged attack occurred Thursday night while she and Sheets were returning from Madisonville where he had been holding a revival. She charged that after the attack the minister drove her to the home of her cousin, R. C. Jackson where both had been guests. After the minister retired, she said, she told relatives and authorities were notified. Mr. Sheets, who is not married, formerly resided in Chillothe, Ohio.

Life Sentence Given Woman In Child Hanging

A carter county jury Friday sentenced Mrs. Elsia Rickey, 25, to life imprisonment for the hanging of her infant in connection with the slaying of Hey Rickey, 10, her stepson. The jury deliberated 30 minutes before returning from a five hour the Rickey home at Soldier, August 6.

The boy's father, Clyde Rickey, 32, and Mrs. Rickey's father, Sherman Jim Andy Darr, 45, also face charges in the death of the boy in connection with the slaying.

William A. Price, commonwealth attorney and former governor, told the jury he always had been opposed to the death penalty, but he believed it should be imposed in this case.

Attorneys for the defense indicated that Rickey's insanity would be appealed.

Frank Sparks, defense attorney, asserted the prosecution had failed to produce evidence of the murder charge. Newspapers had been unfair in their reports of the trial, he said, and subjected spectators as "a howling mob."

Governor Roosevelt In Radio Talk October 5th

Meetings throughout the State are being urged to get into immediate communication with their county chairmen and assist in making arrangements for the luncheb-hour broadcasts and the luncheons that are to follow.

Evarts Murder Trials End As Five Men Plead Guilty

The Harlan circuit court Friday closed a sixty months' term from its docket, in disposing of 10 defendants charged with participating in the battle of Evarts in May, 1931. The special term of court, presided over by Judge Sam Hoskins, of Beattyville, came to an end with sentencing of the men.

James Reynolds, 40, Evarts miner, was sentenced to life imprisonment after a Jessamine county jury deliberated six hours. The case of Reynolds, Harlan county coal operator, was the first to be tried.

Five others entered pleas of guilty to voluntary manslaughter and were sentenced variously to three and four years.

The sudden disposal of the cases, other than Reynolds, was considered a surprise by court attaches. Reynolds was the sixth defendant to receive a life sentence in the Evarts cases, and after his conviction Commonwealth's Attorney W. A. Price was deluged with five pleas of guilty to manslaughter in a short time. He said he preferred not to accept them, but did so in view of the expense involved by hearing the Evarts cases, believing his action to be for the welfare of the county.

The boy died a moment after his father reached the Good Samaritan hospital after a 100-mile automobile trip.

WILLIAM S. DUDLEY DIES IN LEXINGTON FROM HEART DISEASE

Prominent Native Of Carlisle Succumbs After Illness Of Several Months

HAD MANY ACTIVITIES

Colonel William S. Dudley, prominent Kentucky coal operator, died at 11:50 o'clock Monday morning at his suite of rooms in the Lafayette hotel in Lexington, following a long illness with heart disease. Although he had been ill for several years, he was last stricken July 3.

Colonel Dudley came to Carlisle when a young man and engaged in the tobacco business and other lines of endeavor, later becoming interested in the coal and timber business with the late John T. Mann. For a number of years he had resided in Lexington, but kept his interests in Carlisle as his home and voted here.

Thursday's Lexington Herald had the following concerning Col. Dudley:

As one of the leaders of the great coal industry in the Big Sandy Valley of Colonel Dudley offers splendid example of what perseverance and the will to succeed, that seems inherent in the Dudley name, can accomplish.

He was born in Fleming county, near Elizabethtown, in 1864, a son of William Steele Dudley and Mary Jacobs Dudley, descendants of pioneer Kentucky stock. His father was a farmer and stockman of Fleming county and was killed by a train at Maysville, was a daughter of James Jacobs, one of the founders of what is now Maysville Baptist church. W. Hall Plow Factory of Maysville. Her father was one of the brothers who walked their way to Kentucky from Virginia in 1820. He also was one of the founders of Maysville, being at the time of his removal from Virginia to Kentucky, one of the earliest settlers in the Limestone from which the city of Maysville has subsequently grown.

The Dudley farm, in Fleming county, where Mr. Dudley was born, was "Big-Bend farm" in the years under deed in that county, and that deed for it now dates back 150 years, was one of Mr. Dudley's proudest possessions.

As a young man Mr. Dudley augmented his farm earnings by buying and selling saddle horses and farming and show horses always remained as important interest to him. In the last years he devoted considerable attention to the breeding and racing of thoroughbreds, in which he also achieved many prominences.

The buying and selling of tobacco on the Maysville market was also of interest to him. He started in the tobacco business in 1886, and for many years was prominently identified with this industry continuously since then. During the 10 years from 1902 to 1912, he was connected with the firm of Clover and Dudley, of Carlisle, in the handling and selling of tobacco.

His identification with the coal industry has been continuous since 1898 and it is doubtful if there is anyone in Kentucky more familiar with the coal lands and the sections of the state where good coal lies. For more than 30 years he spent much of his time in the saddle, and by mule or horse back, rode over and studied and learned about the coal fields of the state, even in the most remote areas.

His start in the coal business was in association with the late John C. C. Mayo, and principally concerned the holdings in the Big Sandy Valley, in eastern Kentucky. His partnership of the Kentucky River Coal Corporation, the Dudley, the Abijah, and the Grant Coal companies, all except the Dudley Coal Company, are of the leading operating companies, being large coal land holding companies, gave him a commanding position in the coal industry of the state. The Kentucky River Coal Corporation, incorporated for $5,000,000, and owning 150,000 acres of coal, was one of the largest coal holding companies in Kentucky. Until around 1917 and 1918 he was active, he was a member of the executive committee of the Woodford Oil and Gas Company, a director of the Elkhorn Coal Corporation, and the New York Consolidated Company. He was also a director of the Kentucky Union Building Company, which built the Lafayette hotel.

Mr. Dudley disposed of his farming interests in Fleming county in 1890, and, owning other farms property in Nicholas county, established his residence in Carlisle, until a number of years ago when he came to live in Lexington at the Lafayette hotel.

Mr. Dudley was affectionately known among some of the younger generation in the coal business of Eastern Kentucky as "Uncle Dud" and they looked to him for leader-

Garage And House Destroyed By Fire

Cook's Garage And Home Of Mrs. Dora Vice Burned With All Contents Sunday Morning

Fire believed to have originated in Cook's Garage on East Main street completely destroyed the garage and all of its contents and the residence of Mrs. Dora Vice, adjoining about 3 o'clock Sunday morning.

The automobile of H. N. Cook proprietor of the garage, and also the automobile of Wallace Ledford, stored in the garage, were burned, with the garage.

Mr. Cook carried only a small amount of insurance on the contents of the garage. The building, owned by Mrs. C. D. Vice's estate, was partially insured. A small amount of insurance was carried on the residence of Mrs. Vice.

The origin of the fire is unknown. Mr. Cook expressed the opinion that if it started in the garage defective wiring was responsible for a short circuit in the wiring of one of the cars in the garage.

According to neighbors, both buildings were in flames when the fire was discovered.

All of the contributors of the residence of M. P. Marshall, adjoining the Vice home, on the south, turned out, but the building was saved by a bucket brigade which kept the roof wet down. All of the buildings are outside the city limits and there is no water hose to reach the scene of the fire.

Fleming Officer Killed On Street

Dee Clark, Flemingsburg Marshal Slain By Drunken Man. Slayer Removed To Mt. Sterling

Fearing possible mob violence, Dee Clark, Flemingsburg marshal, was night removed John B. Burns, 63, to the Montgomery county jail at Mt. Sterling a short time after Burns had been placed in jail on a charge of murdering Dee Clark, City Marshal of Flemingsburg.

Dee Clark, who was 51 years old, was shot below the left eye and fatally wounded in the street at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning when the two men engaged in a fierce battle over a charge of being drunk. Clark was shot with a pistol held by C. L. Garr in Flemingsburg and died at the home of his brother-in-law while enroute to a hospital in Lexington.

Witnesses said the men, Burns and Clark, met at a filling station at Flemingsburg. Clark, it was said, had to go there because of his intoxication. Burns was employed at the filling station as the officer. Then his pistol jammed, Clark struck Burns with the pistol back into the holster without firing.

Clark took hold of the bridle of the horse Burns was riding and was leading the animal to the farmer off to jail when Burns pulled the trigger of the pistol. Burns, a mail carrier, is the officer just below the left eye.

Burns is held on a charge of murder.

Clark was a familiar with the grocery business, having been employed by Ed Boyd Grocery Co. for the past fifteen years, states that he was the best officer the town ever had.

Clark's passing attacks with a fair, receiving two cuts and gains out of four attempts, one for a touchdown. As many or less are expected in the opening game there have been reports that both teams, and in a few cases the blockers injured in the last game, will be out, but taking everything into consideration it was a game well worth seeing and the boys put up a fine fight and showed them the best kindness and spirit in the Musketeer team this season during the last few days.

Clark is survived by his wife, Mrs. Nettie Clark; two daughters, Mrs. Ben Fithack Fuller, one daughter, Mrs. Ada Whitley; two sons, Leslie Clark and Charles Fuller, and two sisters, Mrs. J. T. Sims and Mrs. Alice Coy, all of the Morning Glory section.

Funeral services were held Thursday afternoon at the Flemingsburg Baptist church, conducted by Rev. Henry Hill. Burial followed in the Republican cemetery.

APPROPRIATION OF $300 PER YEAR MADE FOR COUNTY AGENT

Fiscal Court, At Meeting Held Tuesday, Reduces Allowance 25 Per Cent

DAVIS IS RE-EMPLOYED

The October term of the Nicholas fiscal court was held Tuesday with all members present.

By unanimous vote of the court, an appropriation of $900 was made for the employment of a County Farm Agent for next year. This is a reduction of $300, or 25 per cent of the appropriation made for the employment of an agent this year. County Agent Davis, for whom, has served in this capacity here for the past two years, has not announced whether he will accept the reduction in salary, but is expected to exercise his right to approve or reject any county agent offered by the University of Kentucky.

The fiscal court announced that the reduction in the allowance for the salary of a County Agent was in conformity with the voluntary reduction in salary made for all county officers in the October term of the court. Each officer of the county at that time accepted a reduction in salary.

Clarence Davis was again employed as keeper of the county poor farm. Under the terms of the contract Mr. Davis will receive the proceeds from crops grown on the county infirmary farm and the county will receive 15 cents per day for the keeping of each inmate. The county will furnish all beds, bedding, chairs, dishes, toweling, soap, washing powder, brooms, mops and disinfectants for the inmates.

Current accounts were allowed and other routine business transacted by the court.
