FULL HARVEST

(Winnie Lynch Rockett)

Now is the season of fruition—
The time of ripening fruit' and grain.
Russet-coated apples hang
Heavy on orchard trees.
Brown-shouldered ears of golden corn,
Perched high on rustling stalks,
Wait the harvester's seasoned hands.
Between the trees
Great saffron globes lie in thy morning sun—
Huge pumpkins, which at dawn
Were crowned in silvery gossamer of frost.
The cool, ripe-scented air
Is sweet with preserved cider,
And the busy husbandman,
Contented with his harvest's yield,
Whistles at his tasks—
Flutist a melodious paean
Of thanksgiving.

RELIGIOUS

MEETING AT PLEASANT VALLEY

Sister Ina Mitchell, of Louisiana, will hold a short series of meetings at Pleasant Valley, beginning Oct. 20th and continuing until Oct. 22.

PRATHER HALL

It is of considerable importance that we distinguish the double relationship which we sustain to Christ and to the Lord. In Christ all physical distinctions are merged in one body and masters, even the sexes are not distinguished. In Christ Jesus there is "neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female, for ye are all one in Christ Jesus." But in the Lord these physical distinctions are recognized and made the basis of our conduct toward one another. Wives are subject, children are obedient, slaves are subservient "in the Lord."

Golden text: "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord" (Joshua 24:15). Christian has always been a personal matter with the author-ity. The home was the first "church." and from its "Traffic Towers" parental love has guided the destinies of its members. Many parents have neglected their duty and consequently reap a harvest of bitter tears, with remorse of conscience. Make Joshua's decision yours, and reap in joy.
